On behalf of EAC Commissioner Christy McCormick as the agency's DFO for the Standards Board, following is a statement issued by the EAC at 5:45 this afternoon. We will provide further information as appropriate.

U.S. Election Assistance Commission Reports Potential Breach of Web-Facing Application

The U.S. Election Assistance Commission (EAC) has become aware of a potential intrusion into an EAC web-facing application. The EAC is currently working with Federal law enforcement agencies to investigate the potential breach and its effects.

The EAC does not administer elections. State and local jurisdictions run elections.

The EAC's mission is to provide a clearinghouse of election administration best practices, administer a voluntary voting machine certification system, and survey election administration practices.

The EAC does not collect or store any personal information of voters. The EAC does not maintain voter databases. The EAC does not tabulate or store vote totals.

Upon detecting the intrusion, the EAC terminated access to the application and began working with federal law enforcement agencies to determine the source of this criminal activity. The FBI is currently conducting an ongoing criminal investigation. As such, questions concerning the investigation should be directed to the FBI.

I think we should not lose the opportunity (good point, Barbara) to mention that this sort of indicates why "we" are not in favor of IV.

Perhaps we should be sure to frame it in ways the EAC can't refute, like "While we are truly concerned about the fact that the EAC was hacked, we can at least find some benefit in that clearly they could now not possibly, after this, suggest to anyone that internet voting is something the country should think of doing now. If EAC isn't secure, with the relatively low-grade material it has on its site, it clearly can't expect 3000 county jurisdictions to be more secure in protecting material that is high grade."

On behalf of EAC Commissioner Christy McCormick as the agency's DFO for the Standards Board, following is a statement issued by the EAC at 5:45 this afternoon. We will provide further information as appropriate.

U.S. Election Assistance Commission Reports Potential Breach of Web-Facing Application

The U.S. Election Assistance Commission (EAC) has become aware of a potential intrusion into an EAC web-facing application. The EAC is currently working with Federal law enforcement agencies to investigate the potential breach and its effects.

The EAC does not administer elections. State and local jurisdictions run elections.

The EAC's mission is to provide a clearinghouse of election administration best practices, administer a voluntary voting machine certification system, and survey election administration practices.

The EAC does not collect or store any personal information of voters. The EAC does not maintain voter databases. The EAC does not tabulate or store vote totals.

Upon detecting the intrusion, the EAC terminated access to the application and began working with federal law enforcement agencies to determine the source of this criminal activity. The FBI is currently conducting an ongoing criminal investigation. As such, questions concerning the investigation should be directed to the FBI.

On behalf of EAC Commissioner Christy McCormick as the agency's DFO for the Standards Board, following is a statement issued by the EAC at 5:45 this afternoon. We will provide further information as appropriate.

U.S. Election Assistance Commission Reports Potential Breach of Web-Facing Application

The U.S. Election Assistance Commission (EAC) has become aware of a potential intrusion into an EAC web-facing application. The EAC is currently working with Federal law enforcement agencies to investigate the potential breach and its effects.

The EAC does not administer elections. State and local jurisdictions run elections.

The EAC's mission is to provide a clearinghouse of election administration best practices, administer a voluntary voting machine certification system, and survey election administration practices.

The EAC does not collect or store any personal information of voters. The EAC does not maintain voter databases. The EAC does not tabulate or store vote totals.

Upon detecting the intrusion, the EAC terminated access to the application and began working with federal law enforcement agencies to determine the source of this criminal activity. The FBI is currently conducting an ongoing criminal investigation. As such, questions concerning the investigation should be directed to the FBI.

I think we should not lose the opportunity (good point, Barbara) to mention that this sort of indicates why "we" are not in favor of IV.

Perhaps we should be sure to frame it in ways the EAC can't refute, like "While we are truly concerned about the fact that the EAC was hacked, we can at least find some benefit in that clearly they could now not possibly, after this, suggest to anyone that internet voting is something the country should think of doing now. If EAC isn't secure, with the relatively low-grade material it has on its site, it clearly can't expect 3000 county jurisdictions to be more secure in protecting material that is high grade."

Subject:Â EAC Statement

Resent-From: Â "Douglas A. Kellner" < Douglas.Kellner@elections.ny.gov>

On behalf of EAC Commissioner Christy McCormick as the agency's DFO for the Standards Board, following is a statement issued by the EAC at 5:45 this afternoon. We will provide further information as appropriate.

U.S. Election Assistance Commission Reports Potential Breach of Web-Facing Application

The U.S. Election Assistance Commission (EAC) has become aware of a potential intrusion into an EAC web-facing application. The EAC is currently working with Federal law enforcement agencies to investigate the potential breach and its effects.

The EAC does not administer elections. State and local jurisdictions run elections.

The EAC's mission is to provide a clearinghouse of election administration best practices, administer a voluntary voting machine certification system, and survey election administration practices.

The EAC does not collect or store any personal information of voters. The EAC does not maintain voter databases. The EAC does not tabulate or store vote totals.Â

Upon detecting the intrusion, the EAC terminated access to the application and began working with federal law enforcement agencies to determine the source of this criminal activity. The FBI is currently conducting an ongoing criminal investigation. As such, questions concerning the investigation should be directed to the FBI.

Ron,

I'm encouraging the notion that the organization to conduct this work should not have a vested interest in the outcome. While we can all agree that these claims are nonsense, asking election officials (NASS) to audit themselves will not provide needed objectivity for the public. In my view, it would be impossible to guarantee enough transparency to overcome having officials audit themselves.

I heard an interview with the representative of NASS on Meet the Press tonight, and they have staked out their "there is no problem" position here. She would not admit even minor instances of voter fraud. That's not accurate or believable either. Asking politicians (SOS's) to do this work creates too many partisan and other biases and complications.

I think that it is useful to read what the Republicans' conservative "go-to guys" are saying about this issue. See the link to John Fund's and Hans von Spakovsky's commentary today. http://www.foxnews.com/opinion/2017/01/25/john-fund-and-hans-von-spakovsky-why-trumps-probe-voter-fraud-is-long-overdue.html Understanding their perspective may be useful in considering how to design and conduct a review that will be persuasive to them.

HI Philip --

Perhaps the right organization to run this experiment would be NASS, as they've already spoken up against this fraud-fantasy. Each SOS could run it in their own state... They have the records and the folks who would know how to do this. If it is done in an publicly-observable way, the natural concern that the SOS's might be biased can be refuted.

Do all voter-registration rolls contain social security numbers? (I suppose any other form of ID could be used as well.)

Then you could use a random selection procedure of the form:

voter with given id is selected for review if:
hash(id) modulo C = x
where 1/C is the fraction of voters you wish to pick
(say C = 500,000), and x is some pseudo-random value

(like the hash of Trump's last tweet on this topic, modulo C).

Cheers,

Ron

On Wed, Jan 25, 2017 at 2:58 PM, Philip B. Stark <stark@stat.berkeley.edu<mailto:stark@stat.berkeley.edu>> wrote: Hi Ron--

We'd need to aggregate the voter rolls across the country; there are commercial entities that do that, but perhaps better done from scratch through the states' databases.

Then we'd need to put some shoe leather into matching voters to public records that give information about citizenship. That's the hard part. It probably does not require cooperation of the voter, but it might require access to Social Security records and other things. I'm sure DHS could make it happen, if the Trump administration really wants to know. I suspect there are political reasons for maintaining the uncertainty.

Is it really doable?

Didn't Trump or his advisor also specify particular states where

What is involved in telling whether a voter is legitimate? Does it require the cooperation of the identified individual? What happens to the statistics if 3% of the sample are uncooperative or unlocatable people?

The other approach here would be to pick and thoroughly investigate ~300 names at random off of the rolls of those who cast ballots in this election. (Use a "coin" biased by the number of cast votes to select a state, then do the same to select a county, then do the same to pick a precinct, then do the same to pick a voter, then carefully investigate the legitimacy of this voter. Repeat ~300 times). Philip can check my math on this, but I think that if, as expected, none of the 300 random voters turn out to be illegitimate, then there is extremely high confidence that there were not 3 million illegitimate votes in this election.

Of course, this is convincing if you believe in statistics, but I don't have a lot of confidence that people who don't accept photographic evidence will accept statistical evidence.

For the sake of argument, suppose that 75% are over the age of 18, i.e., 8.25 million.

Then the turnout rate would need to be 5/8.25 = 61% among illegal aliens for them to account for 5 million votes. The overall turnout in the election was about 56%--substantially lower. For an illegal alien to vote would mean registering illegally and casting a vote, for which the federal penalty is $10,000 and 5 years in prison. And yet they did it more frequently than legal voters?

Statistical check:

Suppose 3 million people voted illegally, among the 139 million or so who voted: 2.16%.

Imagine drawing a random sample of 250 2016 voters from whole US.

If indeed 2.16% or more 2016 voters voted illegally, the chance that the sample finds at least one illegal voter is 99.6%. The cost of doing this experiment/research would probably be on the order of $100k.

HI Philip --

Perhaps the right organization to run this experiment would be NASS, as they've already spoken up against this fraud-fantasy. Each SOS could run it in their own state... They have the records and the folks who would know how to do this. If it is done in an publicly-observable way, the natural concern that the SOS's might be biased can be refuted.

Do all voter-registration rolls contain social security numbers? (I suppose any other form of ID could be used as well.)

Then you could use a random selection procedure of the form: voter with given id is selected for review if:
 hash(id) modulo C = x
 where 1/C is the fraction of voters you wish to pick
 (say C = 500,000), and x is some pseudo-random value
 (like the hash of Trump's last tweet on this topic, modulo C).

The other approach here would be to pick and thoroughly investigate ~ 300 names at random off those who cast ballots in this election. (Use a "coin" biased by the number of cast votes to select do the same to select a county, then do the same to pick a precinct, then do the same to pick a vot carefully investigate the legitimacy of this voter. Repeat ~ 300 times). Philip can check my math think that if, as expected, none of the 300 random voters turn out to be illegitimate, then there is 6 high confidence that there were not 3 million illegitimate votes in this election.

Of course, this is convincing if you believe in statistics, but I don't have a lot of confidence that $\mathfrak x$ don't accept photographic evidence will accept statistical evidence.

Ron,

I'm encouraging the notion that the organization to conduct this work should not have a vested interest in the outcome. While we can all agree that these claims are nonsense, asking election officials (NASS) to audit themselves will not provide needed objectivity for the public. In my view, it would be impossible to guarantee enough transparency to overcome having officials audit themselves.

I heard an interview with the representative of NASS on Meet the Press tonight, and they have staked out their "there is no problem" position here. She would not admit even minor instances of voter fraud. That's not accurate or believable either. Asking politicians (SOS's) to do this work creates too many partisan and other biases and complications.

I think that it is useful to read what the Republicans' conservative "go-to guys" are saying about this issue. See the link to John Fund's and Hans von Spakovsky's commentary today. http://www.foxnews.com/opinion/2017/01/25/john-fund-and-hans-von-spakovsky-why-trumps-probe-voter-fraud-is-long-overdue.html Understanding their perspective may be useful in considering how to design and conduct a review that will be persuasive to them.

HI Philip --

Perhaps the right organization to run this experiment would be NASS, as they've already spoken up against this fraud-fantasy. Each SOS could run it in their own state... They have the records and the folks who would know how to do this. If it is done in an publicly-observable way, the natural concern that the SOS's might be biased can be refuted.

Do all voter-registration rolls contain social security numbers? (I suppose any other form of ID could be used as well.)

Then you could use a random selection procedure of the form:

voter with given id is selected for review if:
hash(id) modulo C = x
where 1/C is the fraction of voters you wish to pick
(say C = 500,000), and x is some pseudo-random value

(like the hash of Trump's last tweet on this topic, modulo C).

Cheers,

Ron

Here's a sniff test and a proposal to check the assertion that 3-5 million illegal aliens voted.

There are about 11 million illegal aliens in the US.

For the sake of argument, suppose that 75% are over the age of 18, i.e., 8.25 million.

Then the turnout rate would need to be 5/8.25 = 61% among illegal aliens for them to account for 5 million votes. The overall turnout in the election was about 56%--substantially lower. For an illegal alien to vote would mean registering illegally and casting a vote, for which the federal penalty is $10,000 and 5 years in prison. And yet they did it more frequently than legal voters?

Statistical check:

Suppose 3 million people voted illegally, among the 139 million or so who voted: 2.16%.

Imagine drawing a random sample of 250 2016 voters from whole US.

If indeed 2.16% or more 2016 voters voted illegally, the chance that the sample finds at least one illegal voter is 99.6%. The cost of doing this experiment/research would probably be on the order of $100k.

I believe he specifically cited dead voters and people double-registered in more than one state. Election officials are already pointing out that rolls not being up-to-date does not equal fraud. The question is whether dead voters actually voted, or double-registered voters voted in both places they are registered. That would be fraud.

Subject: Re: [evnlist] Voter fraud discussion in the news.

I gave a lecture yesterday that touched on this.

Here's a sniff test and a proposal to check the assertion that 3-5 million illegal aliens voted.

Sniff test:

There are about 11 million illegal aliens in the US.

http://www.wsj.com/articles/number-of-illegal-immigrants-in-u-s-holds-steady-at-11-million-1474394518 http://www.pewresearch.org/fact-tank/2016/11/03/5-facts-about-illegal-immigration-in-the-u-s/

For the sake of argument, suppose that 75% are over the age of 18, i.e., 8.25 million.

Then the turnout rate would need to be 5/8.25 = 61% among illegal aliens for them to account for 5 million votes. The overall turnout in the election was about 56%--substantially lower. For an illegal alien to vote would mean registering illegally and casting a vote, for which the federal penalty is $10,000 and 5 years in prison. And yet they did it more frequently than legal voters?

Statistical check:

Suppose 3 million people voted illegally, among the 139 million or so who voted: 2.16%.

Imagine drawing a random sample of 250 2016 voters from whole US.

If indeed 2.16% or more 2016 voters voted illegally, the chance that the sample finds at least one illegal voter is 99.6%. The cost of doing this experiment/research would probably be on the order of $100k.

Cheers, Philip

That's the hard part. It probably does not require cooperation of the voter, but it might require access to Social Security records and other things. I'm sure DHS could make it happen, if the Trump administration really wants to know. I

HI Philip --

Perhaps the right organization to run this experiment would be NASS, as they've already spoken up against this fraud-fantasy. Each SOS could run it in their own state... They have the records and the folks who would know how to do this. If it is done in an publicly-observable way, the natural concern that the SOS's might be biased can be refuted.

Do all voter-registration rolls contain social security numbers? (I suppose any other form of ID could be used as well.)

Then you could use a random selection procedure of the form:

voter with given id is selected for review if:

hash(id) modulo C = x

where 1/C is the fraction of voters you wish to pick

(say C = 500,000), and x is some pseudo-random value

(like the hash of Trump's last tweet on this topic, modulo C).

Cheers.

In my view, it would be impossible to guarantee enough transparency to overcome having officials audit themselves.

I heard an interview with the representative of NASS on Meet the Press tonight, and they have staked out their "there is no problem" position here. She would not admit even minor instances of voter fraud. That's not accurate or believable either. Asking politicians (SOS's) to do this work creates too many partisan and other biases and complications.

I think that it is useful to read what the Republicans' conservative "go-to guys" are saying about this issue. See the link to John Fund's and Hans von Spakovsky's commentary today. http://www.foxnews.com/opinion/2017/01/25/john-fund-and-hans-von-spakovsky-why-trumps-probe-voter-fraud-is-long-overdue.html Understanding their perspective may be useful in considering how to design and conduct a review that will be persuasive to them.

HI Philip --

Perhaps the right organization to run this experiment would be NASS, as they've already spoken up against this fraud-fantasy. Each SOS could run it in their own state... They have the records and the folks who would know how to do this. If it is done in an publicly-observable way, the natural concern that the SOS's might be biased can be refuted.

Do all voter-registration rolls contain social security numbers? (I suppose any other form of ID could be used as well.)

Then you could use a random selection procedure of the form: voter with given id is selected for review if:
 hash(id) modulo C = x
 where 1/C is the fraction of voters you wish to pick
 (say C = 500,000), and x is some pseudo-random value
 (like the hash of Trump's last tweet on this topic, modulo C).

I gave a lecture yesterday that touched on this.

Here's a sniff test and a proposal to check the assertion that 3-5 million illegal aliens voted.

Sniff test:

There are about 11 million illegal aliens in the US.

http://www.wsj.com/articles/number-of-illegal-immigrants-in-u-s-holds-steady-at-11-million-1474394518 http://www.pewresearch.org/fact-tank/2016/11/03/5-facts-about-illegal-immigration-in-the-u-s/

For the sake of argument, suppose that 75% are over the age of 18, i.e., 8.25 million.

Then the turnout rate would need to be 5/8.25 = 61% among illegal aliens for them to account for 5 million votes. The overall turnout in the election was about 56%--substantially lower. For an illegal alien to vote would mean registering illegally and casting a vote, for which the federal penalty is $10,000 and 5 years in prison. And yet they did it more frequently than legal voters?

Statistical check:

Suppose 3 million people voted illegally, among the 139 million or so who voted: 2.16%.

Imagine drawing a random sample of 250 2016 voters from whole US.

If indeed 2.16% or more 2016 voters voted illegally, the chance that the sample finds at least one illegal voter is 99.6%. The cost of doing this experiment/research would probably be on the order of $100k.

In my view, it would be impossible to guarantee enough transparency to overcome having officials audit themselves.

I heard an interview with the representative of NASS on Meet the Press tonight, and they have staked out their "there is no problem" position here. HI Philip --

Perhaps the right organization to run this experiment would be NASS, as they've already spoken up against this fraud-fantasy. Each SOS could run it in their own state... They have the records and the folks who would know how to do this. If it is done in an publicly-observable way, the natural concern that the SOS's might be biased can be refuted.

Do all voter-registration rolls contain social security numbers? (I suppose any other form of ID could be used as well.)

Then you could use a random selection procedure of the form: voter with given id is selected for review if:
 hash(id) modulo C = x
 where 1/C is the fraction of voters you wish to pick
 (say C = 500,000), and x is some pseudo-random value
 (like the hash of Trump's last tweet on this topic, modulo C).

Cheers,

I gave a lecture yesterday that touched on this.

Here's a sniff test and a proposal to check the assertion that 3-5 million illegal aliens voted.

Sniff test:

There are about 11 million illegal aliens in the US.

http://www.wsj.com/articles/number-of-illegal-immigrants-in-u-s-holds-steady-at-11-million-1474394518 http://www.pewresearch.org/fact-tank/2016/11/03/5-facts-about-illegal-immigration-in-the-u-s/ For the sake of argument, suppose that 75% are over the age of 18, i.e., 8.25 million.

Then the turnout rate would need to be 5/8.25 = 61% among illegal aliens for them to account for 5 million votes. The overall turnout in the election was about 56%--substantially lower. For an illegal alien to vote would mean registering illegally and casting a vote, for which the federal penalty is $10,000 and 5 years in prison. And yet they did it more frequently than legal voters?

Statistical check:

Suppose 3 million people voted illegally, among the 139 million or so who voted: 2.16%.

Imagine drawing a random sample of 250 2016 voters from whole US.

If indeed 2.16% or more 2016 voters voted illegally, the chance that the sample finds at least one illegal voter is 99.6%. The cost of doing this experiment/research would probably be on the order of $100k.

If anyone has contact with members of the press on this story, please suggest follow up on the fact that Trump signed up his own election observer team via his website and engaged an attorney to supervise the effort.

(http://www.weeklystandard.com/trump-campaign-seeks-election-observers-to-prevent-rigged-election/article/2003813?custom_click=rss?utm_medium=twitter&utm_source=TWSAutoTweet) Additionally his friend and conspiracy theorist Roger Stone ran his own "Stop the Steal" effort for stopping voter fraud. Journalists should ask how many instances they located and how many complaints they filed.

If his own team of thousands of volunteers found no material fraud, how can he claim that it happened on widespread basis?

I Tweeted this out, but it's unlikely that it will reach the right journalists.

Subject: Re: [evnlist] Voter fraud discussion in the news.

Unfortunately I agree with Poorvi that data may not be what this is really about, but reliable data is still important to add to the conversation.

There is a conservative group, True the Vote, that leads the charge on the voter fraud issue. Here's Wikipedia on them: https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/True_the_Vote

And here's an excerpt from their statement about Pres. Trump's call for an investigation: https://truethevote.org/news

It is for this reason that True the Vote, supported by a select group of technologists, statisticians, researchers, auditors, scholars, futurists, election law experts, and process specialists, is leading a forensic audit with targeted investigations to expose election fraud and offer solutions. ...

The audit is phase one of our four year plan to include; development of a American Voter ID Program, Evaluation of Enhanced Election Technologies, Identifying Dynamic Voter Registration Verification Processes, and Development of Model Legislation.

For awhile the group had a very active chapter in MD, Election Integrity MD, that trained poll monitors and combed through registration data:

http://monoblogue.us/tag/election-integrity-maryland/

They did actually find a few instances of double-voting, including bringing down a MD politician who had voted in both MD & FL in a past election. They also claimed to have found a list of non-citizens who were registered but, when called for jury duty, stated that they were not citizens. I'm not sure how many of them actually voted. The motor-voter process was not easily understood, even by fluent English-speakers, so many may have been confused about their right to vote, and some municipalities in MD allow noncitizen residents to vote. MD has now changed the driver's license issuing process so that you have to show a birth certificate, passport, or citizenship papers to get a regular license, and non-citizens get a different format license (I think). Anyone who proves citizenship can opt to register to vote on a tablet device so the registration process is more direct now than it used to be when the SBE had to depend on the MVA to forward voter registration forms to them.

I should note our frustration that these groups chose names that closely resembled the names of defunct MD orgs that had worked for verifiable elections, TrueVoteMD and MD Election Integrity Coalition, which caused a lot of confusion among our elected officials. We haven't heard much from the MD group for a few years, but this blog notes that they were reorganizing and reviving early last year so that may change. They seemed to do pretty careful and thorough combing through the data and, as far as I know, did not engage in "caging" (but I'm not sure about that). I attended one of their webinars training poll monitors, and they played it very straight and by the book, in compliance with MD election law.

I am depressed to say that I'm not sure anything we do will make much of a difference. This is another version of the birth certificate issue: doubt can always be cast on the source of data used to make a decision, and the issue can be kept alive as long as the vocal folks want.

I believe it is in response to the crowd photos displayed online and on TV; Trump just wants to make sure his base (the ones who still want to see Obama's birth certificate) continue to believe he rocks and is being unfairly vilified whenever information that does not comply with his version of the events is publicized.

Maybe there are others who don't know enough about the voter fraud possibilities who will be convinced by a rational experimental argument. And maybe a well-thoughtout experiment can prevent voter ID laws from dis-enfranchising poor and/or minority voters. Maybe the experimental results will have to be presented in court to have an effect, and not to Congress or the public.

Josh: I think it is better to do the sampling in the states with larger populations of illegal immigrants. But to be effective, we will need Republican officials to vouch for the data.

For the sake of argument, suppose that 75% are over the age of 18, i.e., 8.25 million.

Then the turnout rate would need to be 5/8.25 = 61% among illegal aliens for them to account for 5 million votes. The overall turnout in the election was about 56%--substantially lower. For an illegal alien to vote would mean registering illegally and casting a vote, for which the federal penalty is $10,000 and 5 years in prison. And yet they did it more frequently than legal voters?

Statistical check:

Suppose 3 million people voted illegally, among the 139 million or so who voted: 2.16%.

Imagine drawing a random sample of 250 2016 voters from whole US.

If indeed 2.16% or more 2016 voters voted illegally, the chance that the sample finds at least one illegal voter is 99.6%. The cost of doing this experiment/research would probably be on the order of $100k.

Unfortunately I agree with Poorvi that data may not be what this is really about, but reliable data is still important to conversation.

There is a conservative group, True the Vote, that leads the charge on the voter fraud issue. Here's Wikipedia on the https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/True_the_Vote

And here's an excerpt from their statement about Pres. Trump's call for an investigation: https://truethevote.org/new

It is for this reason that True the Vote, supported by a select group of technologi statisticians, researchers, auditors, scholars, futurists, election law experts, and p specialists, is leading a forensic audit with targeted investigations to expose elect and offer solutions. ...

The audit is phase one of our four year plan to include; development of a Ameri ID Program, Evaluation of Enhanced Election Technologies, Identifying Dynam Registration Verification Processes, and Development of Model Legislation.

For awhile the group had a very active chapter in MD, Election Integrity MD, that trained poll monitors and combe registration data:

http://monoblogue.us/tag/election-integrity-maryland/

They did actually find a few instances of double-voting, including bringing down a MD politician who had voted in FL in a past election. They also claimed to have found a list of non-citizens who were registered but, when called for stated that they were not citizens. I'm not sure how many of them actually voted. The motor-voter process was not of understood, even by fluent English-speakers, so many may have been confused about their right to vote, and some in MD allow noncitizen residents to vote. MD has now changed the driver's license issuing process so that you have birth certificate, passport, or citizenship papers to get a regular license, and non-citizens get a different format licent Anyone who proves citizenship can opt to register to vote on a tablet device so the registration process is more directly used to be when the SBE had to depend on the MVA to forward voter registration forms to them.

I should note our frustration that these groups chose names that closely resembled the names of defunct MD orgs th for verifiable elections, TrueVoteMD and MD Election Integrity Coalition, which caused a lot of confusion among officials. We haven't heard much from the MD group for a few years, but this blog notes that they were reorganizing early last year so that may change. They seemed to do pretty careful and thorough combing through the data and, as did not engage in "caging" (but I'm not sure about that). I attended one of their webinars training poll monitors, and very straight and by the book, in compliance with MD election law.

I believe it is in response to the crowd photos displayed online and on TV; Trump just wants to a his base (the ones who still want to see Obama's birth certificate) continue to believe he rocks an unfairly vilified whenever information that does not comply with his version of the events is put

Maybe there are others who don't know enough about the voter fraud possibilities who will be contained argument. HI Philip --

Perhaps the right organization to run this experiment would be NASS, as they've already spoken up against this fraud-fantasy. Each SOS could run it in their own state... They have the records and the folks who would know how to do this. If it is done in an publicly-observable way, the natural concern that the SOS's might be biased can be refuted.

Do all voter-registration rolls contain social security numbers? (I suppose any other form of ID could be used as well.)

Then you could use a random selection procedure of the form: voter with given id is selected for review if:
 hash(id) modulo C = x
 where 1/C is the fraction of voters you wish to pick
 (say C = 500,000), and x is some pseudo-random value
 (like the hash of Trump's last tweet on this topic, modulo C).

We'd need to aggregate the voter rolls across the country; there are commercial entition do that, but perhaps better done from scratch through the states' databases.

Then we'd need to put some shoe leather into matching voters to public records that g information about citizenship. That's the hard part. It probably does not require coope of the voter, but it might require access to Social Security records and other things. I'l DHS could make it happen, if the Trump administration really wants to know. I su there are political reasons for maintaining the uncertainty.

Is it really doable?

Didn't Trump or his advisor also specify particular states where they thought voter fraud was particular rampant?

What is involved in telling whether a voter is legitimate? Does it require the cooperation of the identified individual? What happens to the statistics if 3% of the sample are uncooperative or unlocatable people?

The question is whether dead voters actually voted, or double-registered voters who both places they are registered. That would be fraud.

I am depressed to say that I'm not sure anything we do will make much of a difference. This is another version of the birth certificate issue: doubt can always be cast on the source of data used to make a decision, and the issue can be kept alive as long as the vocal folks want.

I believe it is in response to the crowd photos displayed online and on TV; Trump just wants to make sure his base (the ones who still want to see Obama's birth certificate) continue to believe he rocks and is being unfairly vilified whenever information that does not comply with his version of the events is publicized.

Maybe there are others who don't know enough about the voter fraud possibilities who will be convinced by a rational experimental argument. And maybe a well-thoughtout experiment can prevent voter ID laws from dis-enfranchising poor and/or minority voters. Maybe the experimental results will have to be presented in court to have an effect, and not to Congress or the public.

Josh: I think it is better to do the sampling in the states with larger populations of illegal immigrants. But to be effective, we will need Republican officials to vouch for the data.

I'm encouraging the notion that the organization to conduct this work should not have a vested interest in the outcome. While we can all agree that these claims are nonsense, asking election officials (NASS) to audit themselves will not provide needed objectivity for the public. In my view, it would be impossible to guarantee enough transparency to overcome having officials audit themselves.

I heard an interview with the representative of NASS on Meet the Press tonight, and they have staked out their "there is no problem" position here. She would not admit even minor instances of voter fraud. That's not accurate or believable either. Asking politicians (SOS's) to do this work creates too many partisan and other biases and complications.

I think that it is useful to read what the Republicans' conservative "go-to guys" are saying about this issue. See the link to John Fund's and Hans von Spakovsky's commentary today. http://www.foxnews.com/opinion/2017/01/25/john-fund- and-hans-von-spakovsky-why- trumps-probe-voter-fraud-is- long-overdue.html Understanding their perspective may be useful in considering how to design and conduct a review that will be persuasive to them.

HI Philip --

Perhaps the right organization to run this experiment would be NASS, as they've already spoken up against this fraud-fantasy. Each SOS could run it in their own state... They have the records and the folks who would know how to do this. If it is done in an publicly-observable way, the natural concern that the SOS's might be biased can be refuted.

Do all voter-registration rolls contain social security numbers? (I suppose any other form of ID could be used as well.)

Then you could use a random selection procedure of the form: voter with given id is selected for review if:
 hash(id) modulo C = x
 where 1/C is the fraction of voters you wish to pick
 (say C = 500,000), and x is some pseudo-random value
 (like the hash of Trump's last tweet on this topic, modulo C).

I gave a lecture yesterday that touched on this.

Here's a sniff test and a proposal to check the assertion that 3-5 million illegal aliens voted.

Sniff test:

There are about 11 million illegal aliens in the US.

http://www.wsj.com/articles/ number-of-illegal-immigrants- in-u-s-holds-steady-at-11- million-1474394518

http://www.pewresearch.org/ fact-tank/2016/11/03/5-facts- about-illegal-immigration-in- the-u-s/

For the sake of argument, suppose that 75% are over the age of 18, i.e., 8.25 million.

Then the turnout rate would need to be 5/8.25 = 61% among illegal aliens for them to account for 5 million votes. The overall turnout in the election was about 56%--substantially lower. For an illegal alien to vote would mean registering illegally and casting a vote, for which the federal penalty is $10,000 and 5 years in prison. And yet they did it more frequently than legal voters?

Statistical check:

Suppose 3 million people voted illegally, among the 139 million or so who voted: 2.16%.

Imagine drawing a random sample of 250 2016 voters from whole US.

If indeed 2.16% or more 2016 voters voted illegally, the chance that the sample finds at least one illegal voter is 99.6%. The cost of doing this experiment/research would probably be on the order of $100k.

If anyone has contact with members of the press on this story, please suggest follow up on the fact that Trump signed up his own election observer team via his website and engaged an attorney to supervise the effort.

(http://www.weeklystandard.com/trump-campaign-seeks-election-observers-to-prevent-rigged-election/article/2003813?custom_click=rss?utm_medium=twitter&utm_source=TWSAutoTweet) Additionally his friend and conspiracy theorist Roger Stone ran his own "Stop the Steal" effort for stopping voter fraud. Journalists should ask how many instances they located and how many complaints they filed.

If his own team of thousands of volunteers found no material fraud, how can he claim that it happened on widespread basis?

I Tweeted this out, but it's unlikely that it will reach the right journalists.

Unfortunately I agree with Poorvi that data may not be what this is really about, but reliable data is still important to add to the conversation.

There is a conservative group, True the Vote, that leads the charge on the voter fraud issue. Here's Wikipedia on them: https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/True_the_Vote

And here's an excerpt from their statement about Pres. Trump's call for an investigation: https://truethevote.org/news

It is for this reason that True the Vote, supported by a select group of technologists, statisticians, researchers, auditors, scholars, futurists, election law experts, and process specialists, is leading a forensic audit with targeted investigations to expose election fraud and offer solutions. ...

The audit is phase one of our four year plan to include; development of a American Voter ID Program, Evaluation of Enhanced Election Technologies, Identifying Dynamic Voter Registration Verification Processes, and Development of Model Legislation.

For awhile the group had a very active chapter in MD, Election Integrity MD, that trained poll monitors and combed through registration data:

http://monoblogue.us/tag/election-integrity-maryland/

They did actually find a few instances of double-voting, including bringing down a MD politician who had voted in both MD & FL in a past election. They also claimed to have found a list of non-citizens who were registered but, when called for jury duty, stated that they were not citizens. I'm not sure how many of them actually voted. The motor-voter process was not easily understood, even by fluent English-speakers, so many may have been confused about their right to vote, and some municipalities in MD allow noncitizen residents to vote. MD has now changed the driver's license issuing process so that you have to show a birth certificate, passport, or citizenship papers to get a regular license, and non-citizens get a different format license (I think). Anyone who proves citizenship can opt to register to vote on a tablet device so the registration process is more direct now than it used to be when the SBE had to depend on the MVA to forward voter registration forms to them.

I should note our frustration that these groups chose names that closely resembled the names of defunct MD orgs that had worked for verifiable elections, TrueVoteMD and MD Election Integrity Coalition, which caused a lot of confusion among our elected officials. We haven't heard much from the MD group for a few years, but this blog notes that they were reorganizing and reviving early last year so that may change. They seemed to do pretty careful and thorough combing through the data and, as far as I know, did not engage in "caging" (but I'm not sure about that). I attended one of their webinars training poll monitors, and they played it very straight and by the book, in compliance with MD election law.

For the sake of argument, suppose that 75% are over the age of 18, i.e., 8.25 million.

Then the turnout rate would need to be 5/8.25 = 61% among illegal aliens for them to account for 5 million votes. The overall turnout in the election was about 56%--substantially lower. For an illegal alien to vote would mean registering illegally and casting a vote, for which the federal penalty is $10,000 and 5 years in prison. And yet they did it more frequently than legal voters?

Statistical check:

Suppose 3 million people voted illegally, among the 139 million or so who voted: 2.16%.

Imagine drawing a random sample of 250 2016 voters from whole US.

If indeed 2.16% or more 2016 voters voted illegally, the chance that the sample finds at least one illegal voter is 99.6%. The cost of doing this experiment/research would probably be on the order of $100k.

Unfortunately I agree with Poorvi that data may not be what this is really about, but reliable data is still important to conversation.

There is a conservative group, True the Vote, that leads the charge on the voter fraud issue. Here's Wikipedia on the https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/True_the_Vote

And here's an excerpt from their statement about Pres. Trump's call for an investigation: https://truethevote.org/new

It is for this reason that True the Vote, supported by a select group of technologi statisticians, researchers, auditors, scholars, futurists, election law experts, and p specialists, is leading a forensic audit with targeted investigations to expose elect and offer solutions. ...

The audit is phase one of our four year plan to include; development of a Ameri ID Program, Evaluation of Enhanced Election Technologies, Identifying Dynam Registration Verification Processes, and Development of Model Legislation.

For awhile the group had a very active chapter in MD, Election Integrity MD, that trained poll monitors and combe registration data:

http://monoblogue.us/tag/election-integrity-maryland/

They did actually find a few instances of double-voting, including bringing down a MD politician who had voted in FL in a past election. They also claimed to have found a list of non-citizens who were registered but, when called for stated that they were not citizens. I'm not sure how many of them actually voted. The motor-voter process was not of understood, even by fluent English-speakers, so many may have been confused about their right to vote, and some in MD allow noncitizen residents to vote. MD has now changed the driver's license issuing process so that you have birth certificate, passport, or citizenship papers to get a regular license, and non-citizens get a different format licent Anyone who proves citizenship can opt to register to vote on a tablet device so the registration process is more directly used to be when the SBE had to depend on the MVA to forward voter registration forms to them.

I should note our frustration that these groups chose names that closely resembled the names of defunct MD orgs th for verifiable elections, TrueVoteMD and MD Election Integrity Coalition, which caused a lot of confusion among officials. We haven't heard much from the MD group for a few years, but this blog notes that they were reorganizing early last year so that may change. They seemed to do pretty careful and thorough combing through the data and, as did not engage in "caging" (but I'm not sure about that). I attended one of their webinars training poll monitors, and very straight and by the book, in compliance with MD election law.

I believe it is in response to the crowd photos displayed online and on TV; Trump just wants to a his base (the ones who still want to see Obama's birth certificate) continue to believe he rocks an unfairly vilified whenever information that does not comply with his version of the events is put

Perhaps the right organization to run this experiment would be NASS, as they've already spoken up against this fraud-fantasy. Each SOS could run it in their own state... They have the records and the folks who would know how to do this. If it is done in an publicly-observable way, the natural concern that the SOS's might be biased can be refuted.

Do all voter-registration rolls contain social security numbers? (I suppose any other form of ID could be used as well.)

Then you could use a random selection procedure of the form: voter with given id is selected for review if:
 hash(id) modulo C = x
 where 1/C is the fraction of voters you wish to pick
 (say C = 500,000), and x is some pseudo-random value
 (like the hash of Trump's last tweet on this topic, modulo C).

We'd need to aggregate the voter rolls across the country; there are commercial entition do that, but perhaps better done from scratch through the states' databases.

Then we'd need to put some shoe leather into matching voters to public records that g information about citizenship. That's the hard part. It probably does not require coope of the voter, but it might require access to Social Security records and other things. I'l DHS could make it happen, if the Trump administration really wants to know. I su there are political reasons for maintaining the uncertainty.

Is it really doable?

Didn't Trump or his advisor also specify particular states where they thought voter fraud was particular rampant?

What is involved in telling whether a voter is legitimate? Does it require the cooperation of the identified individual? What happens to the statistics if 3% of the sample are uncooperative or unlocatable people?

I should note our frustration that these groups chose names that closely resembled the names of defunct MD orgs that had worked for verifiable elections, TrueVoteMD and MD Election Integrity Coalition, which caused a lot of confusion among our elected officials. We haven't heard much from the MD group for a few years, but this blog notes that they were reorganizing and reviving early last year so that may change. They seemed to do pretty careful and thorough combing through the data and, as far as I know, did not engage in "caging" (but I'm not sure about that). I attended one of their webinars training poll monitors, and they played it very straight and by the book, in compliance with MD election law.

I am depressed to say that I'm not sure anything we do will make much of a difference. This is another version of the birth certificate issue: doubt can always be cast on the source of data used to make a decision, and the issue can be kept alive as long as the vocal folks want.

I believe it is in response to the crowd photos displayed online and on TV; Trump just wants to make sure his base (the ones who still want to see Obama's birth certificate) continue to believe he rocks and is being unfairly vilified whenever information that does not comply with his version of the events is publicized.

Maybe there are others who don't know enough about the voter fraud possibilities who will be convinced by a rational experimental argument. And maybe a well-thoughtout experiment can prevent voter ID laws from dis-enfranchising poor and/or minority voters. Maybe the experimental results will have to be presented in court to have an effect, and not to Congress or the public.

Josh: I think it is better to do the sampling in the states with larger populations of illegal immigrants. But to be effective, we will need Republican officials to vouch for the data.

I'm encouraging the notion that the organization to conduct this work should not have a vested interest in the outcome. While we can all agree that these claims are nonsense, asking election officials (NASS) to audit themselves will not provide needed objectivity for the public. In my view, it would be impossible to guarantee enough transparency to overcome having officials audit themselves.

I heard an interview with the representative of NASS on Meet the Press tonight, and they have staked out their "there is no problem" position here. She would not admit even minor instances of voter fraud. That's not accurate or believable either. Asking politicians (SOS's) to do this work creates too many partisan and other biases and complications.

I think that it is useful to read what the Republicans' conservative "go-to guys" are saying about this issue. See the link to John Fund's and Hans von Spakovsky's commentary today. http://www.foxnews.com/opinion/2017/01/25/john-fund- and-hans-von-spakovsky-why- trumps-probe-voter-fraud-is- long-overdue.html Understanding their perspective may be useful in considering how to design and conduct a review that will be persuasive to them.

HI Philip --

Perhaps the right organization to run this experiment would be NASS, as they've already spoken up against this fraud-fantasy. Each SOS could run it in their own state... They have the records and the folks who would know how to do this. If it is done in an publicly-observable way, the natural concern that the SOS's might be biased can be refuted.

Do all voter-registration rolls contain social security numbers? (I suppose any other form of ID could be used as well.)

Then you could use a random selection procedure of the form: voter with given id is selected for review if:
 hash(id) modulo C = x
 where 1/C is the fraction of voters you wish to pick
 (say C = 500,000), and x is some pseudo-random value
 (like the hash of Trump's last tweet on this topic, modulo C).

We'd need to aggregate the voter rolls across the country; there are commercial entities that do that, but perhaps better done from scratch through the states' databases.

Then we'd need to put some shoe leather into matching voters to public records that give information about citizenship. That's the hard part. It probably does not require cooperation of the voter, but it might require access to Social Security records and other things. I'm sure DHS could make it happen, if the Trump administration really wants to know. I suspect there are political reasons for maintaining the uncertainty.

Didn't Trump or his advisor also specify particular states where they thought voter fraud was particular rampant?

What is involved in telling whether a voter is legitimate? Does it require the cooperation of the identified individual? What happens to the statistics if 3% of the sample are uncooperative or unlocatable people?

Repeat ~300 times). Philip can check my math on this, but I think that if, as expected, none of the 300 random voters turn out to be illegitimate, then there is extremely high confidence that there were not 3 million illegitimate votes in this election.

Of course, this is convincing if you believe in statistics, but I don't have a lot of confidence that people who don't accept photographic evidence will accept statistical evidence.

Subject: Re: [evnlist] Voter fraud discussion in the news.

I gave a lecture yesterday that touched on this.

Here's a sniff test and a proposal to check the assertion that 3-5 million illegal aliens voted.

Sniff test:

There are about 11 million illegal aliens in the US.

http://www.wsj.com/articles/ number-of-illegal-immigrants- in-u-s-holds-steady-at-11- million-1474394518

http://www.pewresearch.org/ fact-tank/2016/11/03/5-facts- about-illegal-immigration-in- the-u-s/

For the sake of argument, suppose that 75% are over the age of 18, i.e., 8.25 million.

Then the turnout rate would need to be 5/8.25 = 61% among illegal aliens for them to account for 5 million votes. The overall turnout in the election was about 56%--substantially lower. For an illegal alien to vote would mean registering illegally and casting a vote, for which the federal penalty is $10,000 and 5 years in prison. And yet they did it more frequently than legal voters?

Statistical check:

Suppose 3 million people voted illegally, among the 139 million or so who voted: 2.16%.

Imagine drawing a random sample of 250 2016 voters from whole US.

If indeed 2.16% or more 2016 voters voted illegally, the chance that the sample finds at least one illegal voter is 99.6%. The cost of doing this experiment/research would probably be on the order of $100k.

I am depressed to say that I'm not sure anything we do will make much of a difference. This is another version of the birth certificate issue: doubt can always be cast on the source of data used to make a decision, and the issue can be kept alive as long as the vocal folks want.

I believe it is in response to the crowd photos displayed online and on TV; Trump just wants to make sure his base (the ones who still want to see Obama's birth certificate) continue to believe he rocks and is being unfairly vilified whenever information that does not comply with his version of the events is publicized.

Maybe there are others who don't know enough about the voter fraud possibilities who will be convinced by a rational experimental argument. And maybe a well-thoughtout experiment can prevent voter ID laws from dis-enfranchising poor and/or minority voters. Maybe the experimental results will have to be presented in court to have an effect, and not to Congress or the public.

Josh: I think it is better to do the sampling in the states with larger populations of illegal immigrants. But to be effective, we will need Republican officials to vouch for the data.

I'm encouraging the notion that the organization to conduct this work should not have a vested interest in the outcome. While we can all agree that these claims are nonsense, asking election officials (NASS) to audit themselves will not provide needed objectivity for the public. In my view, it would be impossible to guarantee enough transparency to overcome having officials audit themselves.

I heard an interview with the representative of NASS on Meet the Press tonight, and they have staked out their "there is no problem" position here. She would not admit even minor instances of voter fraud. That's not accurate or believable either. Asking politicians (SOS's) to do this work creates too many partisan and other biases and complications.

HI Philip --

Perhaps the right organization to run this experiment would be NASS, as they've already spoken up against this fraud-fantasy. Each SOS could run it in their own state... They have the records and the folks who would know how to do this. If it is done in an publicly-observable way, the natural concern that the SOS's might be biased can be refuted.

Do all voter-registration rolls contain social security numbers?
(I suppose any other form of ID could be used as well.)

Then you could use a random selection procedure of the form:

voter with given id is selected for review if:

hash(id) modulo C = x

where 1/C is the fraction of voters you wish to pick

	(say $C = 500,000$), and x is some pseudo-random value
	(like the hash of Trump's last tweet on this topic, modulo C).

Didn't Trump or his advisor also specify particular states where they thought voter fraud was particular rampant?

What is involved in telling whether a voter is legitimate? Does it require the cooperation of the identified individual? What happens to the statistics if 3% of the sample are uncooperative or unlocatable people?

Repeat ~300 times). Philip can check my math on this, but I think that if, as expected, none of the 300 random voters turn out to be illegitimate, then there is extremely high confidence that there were not 3 million illegitimate votes in this election.

Of course, this is convincing if you believe in statistics, but I don't have a lot of confidence that people who don't accept photographic evidence will accept statistical evidence.

Subject: Re: [evnlist] Voter fraud discussion in the news.

I gave a lecture yesterday that touched on this.

Here's a sniff test and a proposal to check the assertion that 3-5 million illegal aliens voted.

Sniff test:

There are about 11 million illegal aliens in the US.

http://www.wsj.com/articles/number-of-illegal-immigrants-in-u-s-holds-steady-at-11-million-1474394518

http://www.pewresearch.org/fact-tank/2016/11/03/5-facts-about-illegal-immigration-in-the-u-s/

For the sake of argument, suppose that 75% are over the age of 18, i.e., 8.25 million.

Then the turnout rate would need to be 5/8.25 = 61% among illegal aliens for them to account for 5 million votes. The overall turnout in the election was about 56%--substantially lower. For an illegal alien to vote would mean registering illegally and casting a vote, for which the federal penalty is $10,000 and 5 years in prison. And yet they did it more frequently than legal voters?

Statistical check:

Suppose 3 million people voted illegally, among the 139 million or so who voted: 2.16%.

Imagine drawing a random sample of 250 2016 voters from whole US.

If indeed 2.16% or more 2016 voters voted illegally, the chance that the sample finds at least one illegal voter is 99.6%. The cost of doing this experiment/research would probably be on the order of $100k.

Philip

And maybe a well-thoughtout experiment can prevent voter ID laws from dis-enfranchising poor and/or minority voters. Maybe the experimental results will have to be presented in court to have an effect, and not to Congress or the public.

Josh: I think it is better to do the sampling in the states with larger populations of illegal immigrants. But to be effective, we will need Republican officials to vouch for the data.

I am depressed to say that I'm not sure anything we do will make much of a difference. This is another version of the birth certificate issue: doubt can always be cast on the source of data used to make a decision, and the issue can be kept alive as long as the vocal folks want.

I believe it is in response to the crowd photos displayed online and on TV; Trump just wants to make sure his base (the ones who still want to see Obama's birth certificate) continue to believe he rocks and is being unfairly vilified whenever information that does not comply with his version of the events is publicized.

Maybe there are others who don't know enough about the voter fraud possibilities who will be convinced by a rational experimental argument. And maybe a well-thoughtout experiment can prevent voter ID laws from dis-enfranchising poor and/or minority voters. Maybe the experimental results will have to be presented in court to have an effect, and not to Congress or the public.

Josh: I think it is better to do the sampling in the states with larger populations of illegal immigrants. But to be effective, we will need Republican officials to vouch for the data.

In my view, it would be impossible to guarantee enough transparency to overcome having officials audit themselves.

I heard an interview with the representative of NASS on Meet the Press tonight, and they have staked out their "there is no problem" position here. She would not admit even minor instances of voter fraud. That's not accurate or believable either. Asking politicians (SOS's) to do this work creates too many partisan and other biases and complications.

HI Philip --

Perhaps the right organization to run this experiment would be NASS, as they've already spoken up against this fraud-fantasy. Each SOS could run it in their own state... They have the records and the folks who would know how to do this. If it is done in an publicly-observable way, the natural concern that the SOS's might be biased can be refuted.

Do all voter-registration rolls contain social security numbers?
(I suppose any other form of ID could be used as well.)

Then you could use a random selection procedure of the form:

voter with given id is selected for review if:

hash(id) modulo C = x

where 1/C is the fraction of voters you wish to pick

	(say $C = 500,000$), and x is some pseudo-random value
	(like the hash of Trump's last tweet on this topic, modulo C).

Philip can check my math on this, but I think that if, as expected, none of the 300 random voters turn out to be illegitimate, then there is extremely high confidence that there were not 3 million illegitimate votes in this election.

Of course, this is convincing if you believe in statistics, but I don't have a lot of confidence that people who don't accept photographic evidence will accept statistical evidence.

I gave a lecture yesterday that touched on this.

Here's a sniff test and a proposal to check the assertion that 3-5 million illegal aliens voted.

Sniff test:

There are about 11 million illegal aliens in the US.

http://www.wsj.com/articles/number-of-illegal-immigrants-in-u-s-holds-steady-at-11-million-1474394518

http://www.pewresearch.org/fact-tank/2016/11/03/5-facts-about-illegal-immigration-in-the-u-s/

For the sake of argument, suppose that 75% are over the age of 18, i.e., 8.25 million.

Then the turnout rate would need to be 5/8.25 = 61% among illegal aliens for them to account for 5 million votes. The overall turnout in the election was about 56%--substantially lower. For an illegal alien to vote would mean registering illegally and casting a vote, for which the federal penalty is $10,000 and 5 years in prison. And yet they did it more frequently than legal voters?

Statistical check:

Suppose 3 million people voted illegally, among the 139 million or so who voted: 2.16%.

Imagine drawing a random sample of 250 2016 voters from whole US.

If indeed 2.16% or more 2016 voters voted illegally, the chance that the sample finds at least one illegal voter is 99.6%. The cost of doing this experiment/research would probably be on the order of $100k.

I am depressed to say that I'm not sure anything we do will make much of a difference. This is another version of the birth certificate issue: doubt can always be cast on the source of data used to make a decision, and the issue can be kept alive as long as the vocal folks want.

I believe it is in response to the crowd photos displayed online and on TV; Trump just wants to make sure his base (the ones who still want to see Obama's birth certificate) continue to believe he rocks and is being unfairly vilified whenever information that does not comply with his version of the events is publicized.

Maybe there are others who don't know enough about the voter fraud possibilities who will be convinced by a rational experimental argument. And maybe a well-thoughtout experiment can prevent voter ID laws from dis-enfranchising poor and/or minority voters. Maybe the experimental results will have to be presented in court to have an effect, and not to Congress or the public.

Josh: I think it is better to do the sampling in the states with larger populations of illegal immigrants. But to be effective, we will need Republican officials to vouch for the data.

I heard an interview with the representative of NASS on Meet the Press tonight, and they have staked out their " there is no problem†position here. I think that it is useful to read what the Republicans' conservative â€œgo-to guys†Â are saying about this issue. HI Philip --

Â

Perhaps the right organization to run this experiment would be NASS, as they've already spoken up against this fraud-fantasy. Each SOS could run it in their own state... They have the records and the folks who would know how to do this. If it is done in an publicly-observable way, the natural concern that the SOS's might be biased can be refuted.

Â

Do all voter-registration rolls contain social security numbers?
(I suppose any other form of ID could be used as well.)

Â

Then you could use a random selection procedure of the form:

Â Â voter with given id is selected for review if:

 $\hat{A} \hat{A} \hat{A} \hat{A} \hat{A} \hat{A} \hat{A}$ hash(id) modulo C = x

Â Â where 1/C is the fraction of voters you wish to pick

 \hat{A} \hat{A} \hat{A} (say C = 500,000), and x is some pseudo-random value

Â Â (like the hash of Trump's last tweet on this topic, modulo C).

Â

Cheers.

Then we'd need to put some shoe leather into matching voters to public records that give information about citizenship. That's the hard part. It probably does not require cooperation of the voter, but it might require access to Social Security records and other things. Unfortunately I agree with Poorvi that data may not be what this is really about, but reliable data is still important to add to the conversation.

There is a conservative group, True the Vote, that leads the charge on the voter fraud issue. Here's Wikipedia on them:https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/True the Vote

And here's an excerpt from their statement about Pres. Trump's call for an investigation: https://truethevote.org/news

It is for this reason that True the Vote, supported by a select group of technologists, statisticians, researchers, auditors, scholars, futurists, election law experts, and process specialists, is leading a forensic audit with targeted investigations to expose election fraud and offer solutions. ...

The audit is phase one of our four year plan to include; development of a American Voter ID Program, Evaluation of Enhanced Election Technologies, Identifying Dynamic Voter Registration Verification Processes, and Development of Model Legislation.

For awhile the group had a very active chapter in MD, Election Integrity MD, that trained poll monitors and combed through registration data: http://monoblogue.us/tag/election-integrity-maryland/

They did actually find a few instances of double-voting, including bringing down a MD politician who had voted in both MD & FL in a past election. They also claimed to have found a list of non-citizens who were registered but, when called for jury duty, stated that they were not citizens. I'm not sure how many of them actually voted. The motor-voter process was not easily understood, even by fluent English-speakers, so many may have been confused about their right to vote, and some municipalities in MD allow noncitizen residents to vote. MD has now changed the driver's license issuing process so that you have to show a birth certificate, passport, or citizenship papers to get a regular license, and non-citizens get a different format license (I think). Anyone who proves citizenship can opt to register to vote on a tablet device so the registration process is more direct now than it used to be when the SBE had to depend on the MVA to forward voter registration forms to them.

I should note our frustration that these groups chose names that closely resembled the names of defunct MD orgs that had worked for verifiable elections, TrueVoteMD and MD Election Integrity Coalition, which caused a lot of confusion among our elected officials. We haven't heard much from the MD group for a few years, but this blog notes that they were reorganizing and reviving early last year so that may change. They seemed to do pretty careful and thorough combing through the data and, as far as I know, did not engage in "caging" (but I'm not sure about that). I attended one of their webinars training poll monitors, and they played it very straight and by the book, in compliance with MD election law.

Unfortunately I agree with Poorvi that data may not be what this is really about, but reliable data is still important to add to the conversation.

There is a conservative group, True the Vote, that leads the charge on the voter fraud issue. Here's Wikipedia on them: https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/True the Vote

And here's an excerpt from their statement about Pres. Trump's call for an investigation: https://truethevote.org/news

It is for this reason that True the Vote, supported by a select group of technologists, statisticians, researchers, auditors, scholars, futurists, election law experts, and process specialists, is leading a forensic audit with targeted investigations to expose election fraud and offer solutions. ...

The audit is phase one of our four year plan to include; development of a American Voter ID Program, Evaluation of Enhanced Election Technologies, Identifying Dynamic Voter Registration Verification Processes, and Development of Model Legislation.

For awhile the group had a very active chapter in MD, Election Integrity MD, that trained poll monitors and combed through registration data:

http://monoblogue.us/tag/election-integrity-maryland/

They did actually find a few instances of double-voting, including bringing down a MD politician who had voted in both MD & FL in a past election. They also claimed to have found a list of non-citizens who were registered but, when called for jury duty, stated that they were not citizens. I'm not sure how many of them actually voted. The motor-voter process was not easily understood, even by fluent English-speakers, so many may have been confused about their right to vote, and some municipalities in MD allow noncitizen residents to vote. MD has now changed the driver's license issuing process so that you have to show a birth certificate, passport, or citizenship papers to get a regular license, and non-citizens get a different format license (I think). Anyone who proves citizenship can opt to register to vote on a tablet device so the registration process is more direct now than it used to be when the SBE had to depend on the MVA to forward voter registration forms to them.

I should note our frustration that these groups chose names that closely resembled the names of defunct MD orgs that had worked for verifiable elections, TrueVoteMD and MD Election Integrity Coalition, which caused a lot of confusion among our elected officials. We haven't heard much from the MD group for a few years, but this blog notes that they were reorganizing and reviving early last year so that may change. They seemed to do pretty careful and thorough combing through the data and, as far as I know, did not engage in "caging" (but I'm not sure about that). I attended one of their webinars training poll monitors, and they played it very straight and by the book, in compliance with MD election law.

I believe it is in response to the crowd photos displayed online and on TV; Trump just wants to make sure his base (the ones who still want to see Obama's birth certificate) continue to believe he rocks and is being unfairly vilified whenever information that does not comply with his version of the events is publicized.

Maybe there are others who don't know enough about the voter fraud possibilities who will be convinced by a rational experimental argument. And maybe a well-thoughtout experiment can prevent voter ID laws from dis-enfranchising poor and/or minority voters. Maybe the experimental results will have to be presented in court to have an effect, and not to Congress or the public.

Josh: I think it is better to do the sampling in the states with larger populations of illegal immigrants. But to be effective, we will need Republican officials to vouch for the data.

Perhaps the right organization to run this experiment would be NASS, as they've already spoken up against this fraud-fantasy. Each SOS could run it in their own state... They have the records and the folks who would know how to do this. If it is done in an publicly-observable way, the natural concern that the SOS's might be biased can be refuted.

Do all voter-registration rolls contain social security numbers? (I suppose any other form of ID could be used as well.)

Then you could use a random selection procedure of the form: voter with given id is selected for review if:
 hash(id) modulo C = x
 where 1/C is the fraction of voters you wish to pick
 (say C = 500,000), and x is some pseudo-random value
 (like the hash of Trump's last tweet on this topic, modulo C).

http://www.pewresearch.org/ fact-tank/2016/11/03/5-facts- about-illegal-immigration-in- the-u-s/

For the sake of argument, suppose that 75% are over the age of 18, i.e., 8.25 million.

Then the turnout rate would need to be 5/8.25 = 61% among illegal aliens for them to account for 5 million votes. The overall turnout in the election was about 56%--substantially lower. For an illegal alien to vote would mean registering illegally and casting a vote, for which the federal penalty is $10,000 and 5 years in prison. And yet they did it more frequently than legal voters?

Statistical check:

Suppose 3 million people voted illegally, among the 139 million or so who voted: 2.16%.

Imagine drawing a random sample of 250 2016 voters from whole US.

If indeed 2.16% or more 2016 voters voted illegally, the chance that the sample finds at least one illegal voter is 99.6%. The cost of doing this experiment/research would probably be on the order of $100k.

Cheers.

Unfortunately I agree with Poorvi that data may not be what this is really about, but reliable data is still important to add to the conversation.

There is a conservative group, True the Vote, that leads the charge on the voter fraud issue. Here's Wikipedia on them:https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/True the Vote

And here's an excerpt from their statement about Pres. Trump's call for an investigation: https://truethevote.org/news

It is for this reason that True the Vote, supported by a select group of technologists, statisticians, researchers, auditors, scholars, futurists, election law experts, and process specialists, is leading a forensic audit with targeted investigations to expose election fraud and offer solutions. ...

The audit is phase one of our four year plan to include; development of a American Voter ID Program, Evaluation of Enhanced Election Technologies, Identifying Dynamic Voter Registration Verification Processes, and Development of Model Legislation.

For awhile the group had a very active chapter in MD, Election Integrity MD, that trained poll monitors and combed through registration data: http://monoblogue.us/tag/election-integrity-maryland/

They did actually find a few instances of double-voting, including bringing down a MD politician who had voted in both MD & FL in a past election. They also claimed to have found a list of non-citizens who were registered but, when called for jury duty, stated that they were not citizens. I'm not sure how many of them actually voted. The motor-voter process was not easily understood, even by fluent English-speakers, so many may have been confused about their right to vote, and some municipalities in MD allow noncitizen residents to vote. MD has now changed the driver's license issuing process so that you have to show a birth certificate, passport, or citizenship papers to get a regular license, and non-citizens get a different format license (I think). Anyone who proves citizenship can opt to register to vote on a tablet device so the registration process is more direct now than it used to be when the SBE had to depend on the MVA to forward voter registration forms to them.

I should note our frustration that these groups chose names that closely resembled the names of defunct MD orgs that had worked for verifiable elections, TrueVoteMD and MD Election Integrity Coalition, which caused a lot of confusion among our elected officials. We haven't heard much from the MD group for a few years, but this blog notes that they were reorganizing and reviving early last year so that may change. They seemed to do pretty careful and thorough combing through the data and, as far as I know, did not engage in "caging" (but I'm not sure about that). I attended one of their webinars training poll monitors, and they played it very straight and by the book, in compliance with MD election law.

I am depressed to say that I'm not sure anything we do will make much of a difference. This is another version of the birth certificate issue: doubt can always be cast on the source of data used to make a decision, and the issue can be kept alive as long as the vocal folks want.

I believe it is in response to the crowd photos displayed online and on TV; Trump just wants to make sure his base (the ones who still want to see Obama's birth certificate) continue to believe he rocks and is being unfairly vilified whenever information that does not comply with his version of the events is publicized.

Maybe there are others who don't know enough about the voter fraud possibilities who will be convinced by a rational experimental argument. And maybe a well-thoughtout experiment can prevent voter ID laws from dis-enfranchising poor and/or minority voters. Maybe the experimental results will have to be presented in court to have an effect, and not to Congress or the public.

Josh: I think it is better to do the sampling in the states with larger populations of illegal immigrants. But to be effective, we will need Republican officials to vouch for the data.

I gave a lecture yesterday that touched on this.

Here's a sniff test and a proposal to check the assertion that 3-5 million illegal aliens voted.

Sniff test:

There are about 11 million illegal aliens in the US.

http://www.wsj.com/articles/ number-of-illegal-immigrants- in-u-s-holds-steady-at-11- million-1474394518 http://www.pewresearch.org/ fact-tank/2016/11/03/5-facts- about-illegal-immigration-in- the-u-s/

For the sake of argument, suppose that 75% are over the age of 18, i.e., 8.25 million.

Then the turnout rate would need to be 5/8.25 = 61% among illegal aliens for them to account for 5 million votes. The overall turnout in the election was about 56%--substantially lower. For an illegal alien to vote would mean registering illegally and casting a vote, for which the federal penalty is $10,000 and 5 years in prison. And yet they did it more frequently than legal voters?

Statistical check:

Suppose 3 million people voted illegally, among the 139 million or so who voted: 2.16%.

Imagine drawing a random sample of 250 2016 voters from whole US.

If indeed 2.16% or more 2016 voters voted illegally, the chance that the sample finds at least one illegal voter is 99.6%. The cost of doing this experiment/research would probably be on the order of $100k.

There is a conservative group, True the Vote, that leads the charge on the voter fraud issue. Here's Wikipedia on them: https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/True_the_Vote

And here's an excerpt from their statement about Pres. Trump's call for an investigation: https://truethevote.org/news

It is for this reason that True the Vote, supported by a select group of technologists, statisticians, researchers, auditors, scholars, futurists, election law experts, and process specialists, is leading a forensic audit with targeted investigations to expose election fraud and offer solutions. ...

The audit is phase one of our four year plan to include; development of a American Voter ID Program, Evaluation of Enhanced Election Technologies, Identifying Dynamic Voter Registration Verification Processes, and Development of Model Legislation.

For awhile the group had a very active chapter in MD, Election Integrity MD, that trained poll monitors and combed through registration data: http://monoblogue.us/tag/election-integrity-maryland/

They did actually find a few instances of double-voting, including bringing down a MD politician who had voted in both MD & FL in a past election. They also claimed to have found a list of non-citizens who were registered but, when called for jury duty, stated that they were not citizens. I'm not sure how many of them actually voted. The motor-voter process was not easily understood, even by fluent English-speakers, so many may have been confused about their right to vote, and some municipalities in MD allow noncitizen residents to vote. MD has now changed the driver's license issuing process so that you have to show a birth certificate, passport, or citizenship papers to get a regular license, and non-citizens get a different format license (I think). Anyone who proves citizenship can opt to register to vote on a tablet device so the registration process is more direct now than it used to be when the SBE had to depend on the MVA to forward voter registration forms to them.

I should note our frustration that these groups chose names that closely resembled the names of defunct MD orgs that had worked for verifiable elections, TrueVoteMD and MD Election Integrity Coalition, which caused a lot of confusion among our elected officials. We haven't heard much from the MD group for a few years, but this blog notes that they were reorganizing and reviving early last year so that may change. They seemed to do pretty careful and thorough combing through the data and, as far as I know, did not engage in "caging" (but I'm not sure about that). I attended one of their webinars training poll monitors, and they played it very straight and by the book, in compliance with MD election law.

HI Philip --

Perhaps the right organization to run this experiment would be NASS, as they've already spoken up against this fraud-fantasy. Each SOS could run it in their own state... They have the records and the folks who would know how to do this. If it is done in an publicly-observable way, the natural concern that the SOS's might be biased can be refuted.

Do all voter-registration rolls contain social security numbers? (I suppose any other form of ID could be used as well.)

Then you could use a random selection procedure of the form: voter with given id is selected for review if:
 hash(id) modulo C = x
 where 1/C is the fraction of voters you wish to pick
 (say C = 500,000), and x is some pseudo-random value
 (like the hash of Trump's last tweet on this topic, modulo C).

Subject: Re: [evnlist] Voter fraud discussion in the news.

I gave a lecture yesterday that touched on this.

Here's a sniff test and a proposal to check the assertion that 3-5 million illegal aliens voted.

Sniff test:

There are about 11 million illegal aliens in the US.

http://www.wsj.com/articles/ number-of-illegal-immigrants- in-u-s-holds-steady-at-11- million-1474394518

http://www.pewresearch.org/ fact-tank/2016/11/03/5-facts- about-illegal-immigration-in- the-u-s/

For the sake of argument, suppose that 75% are over the age of 18, i.e., 8.25 million.

Then the turnout rate would need to be 5/8.25 = 61% among illegal aliens for them to account for 5 million votes. The overall turnout in the election was about 56%--substantially lower. For an illegal alien to vote would mean registering illegally and casting a vote, for which the federal penalty is $10,000 and 5 years in prison. And yet they did it more frequently than legal voters?

Statistical check:

Suppose 3 million people voted illegally, among the 139 million or so who voted: 2.16%.

Imagine drawing a random sample of 250 2016 voters from whole US.

If indeed 2.16% or more 2016 voters voted illegally, the chance that the sample finds at least one illegal voter is 99.6%. The cost of doing this experiment/research would probably be on the order of $100k.

Unfortunately I agree with Poorvi that data may not be what this is really about, but reliable data is still important to add to the conversation.

There is a conservative group, True the Vote, that leads the charge on the voter fraud issue. Here's Wikipedia on them: https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/True the Vote

And here's an excerpt from their statement about Pres. Trump's call for an investigation: https://truethevote.org/news

It is for this reason that True the Vote, supported by a select group of technologists, statisticians, researchers, auditors, scholars, futurists, election law experts, and process specialists, is leading a forensic audit with targeted investigations to expose election fraud and offer solutions. ...

The audit is phase one of our four year plan to include; development of a American Voter ID Program, Evaluation of Enhanced Election Technologies, Identifying Dynamic Voter Registration Verification Processes, and Development of Model Legislation.

For awhile the group had a very active chapter in MD, Election Integrity MD, that trained poll monitors and combed through registration data:

http://monoblogue.us/tag/election-integrity-maryland/

They did actually find a few instances of double-voting, including bringing down a MD politician who had voted in both MD & FL in a past election. They also claimed to have found a list of non-citizens who were registered but, when called for jury duty, stated that they were not citizens. I'm not sure how many of them actually voted. The motor-voter process was not easily understood, even by fluent English-speakers, so many may have been confused about their right to vote, and some municipalities in MD allow noncitizen residents to vote. MD has now changed the driver's license issuing process so that you have to show a birth certificate, passport, or citizenship papers to get a regular license, and non-citizens get a different format license (I think). Anyone who proves citizenship can opt to register to vote on a tablet device so the registration process is more direct now than it used to be when the SBE had to depend on the MVA to forward voter registration forms to them.

I should note our frustration that these groups chose names that closely resembled the names of defunct MD orgs that had worked for verifiable elections, TrueVoteMD and MD Election Integrity Coalition, which caused a lot of confusion among our elected officials. We haven't heard much from the MD group for a few years, but this blog notes that they were reorganizing and reviving early last year so that may change. They seemed to do pretty careful and thorough combing through the data and, as far as I know, did not engage in "caging" (but I'm not sure about that). I attended one of their webinars training poll monitors, and they played it very straight and by the book, in compliance with MD election law.

I am depressed to say that I'm not sure anything we do will make much of a difference. This is another version of the birth certificate issue: doubt can always be cast on the source of data used to make a decision, and the issue can be kept alive as long as the vocal folks want.

I believe it is in response to the crowd photos displayed online and on TV; Trump just wants to make sure his base (the ones who still want to see Obama's birth certificate) continue to believe he rocks and is being unfairly vilified whenever information that does not comply with his version of the events is publicized.

Maybe there are others who don't know enough about the voter fraud possibilities who will be convinced by a rational experimental argument. And maybe a well-thoughtout experiment can prevent voter ID laws from dis-enfranchising poor and/or minority voters. Maybe the experimental results will have to be presented in court to have an effect, and not to Congress or the public.

Josh: I think it is better to do the sampling in the states with larger populations of illegal immigrants. But to be effective, we will need Republican officials to vouch for the data.

HI Philip --

Perhaps the right organization to run this experiment would be NASS, as they've already spoken up against this fraud-fantasy. Each SOS could run it in their own state... They have the records and the folks who would know how to do this. If it is done in an publicly-observable way, the natural concern that the SOS's might be biased can be refuted.

Do all voter-registration rolls contain social security numbers? (I suppose any other form of ID could be used as well.)

Then you could use a random selection procedure of the form: voter with given id is selected for review if:
 hash(id) modulo C = x
 where 1/C is the fraction of voters you wish to pick
 (say C = 500,000), and x is some pseudo-random value
 (like the hash of Trump's last tweet on this topic, modulo C).

I believe he specifically cited dead voters and people double-registered in more than one state. Election officials are already pointing out that rolls not being up-to-date does not equal fraud. The question is whether dead voters actually voted, or double-registered voters voted in both places they are registered. That would be fraud.

I believe he specifically cited dead voters and people double-registered in more than one state. Election officials are already pointing out that rolls not being up-to-date does not equal fraud. The question is whether dead voters actually voted, or double-registered voters voted in both places they are registered. That would be fraud.

Subject: Re: [evnlist] Voter fraud discussion in the news.

I gave a lecture yesterday that touched on this.

Here's a sniff test and a proposal to check the assertion that 3-5 million illegal aliens voted.

Sniff test:

There are about 11 million illegal aliens in the US.

http://www.wsj.com/articles/ number-of-illegal-immigrants- in-u-s-holds-steady-at-11- million-1474394518

http://www.pewresearch.org/ fact-tank/2016/11/03/5-facts- about-illegal-immigration-in- the-u-s/

For the sake of argument, suppose that 75% are over the age of 18, i.e., 8.25 million.

Then the turnout rate would need to be 5/8.25 = 61% among illegal aliens for them to account for 5 million votes. The overall turnout in the election was about 56%--substantially lower. For an illegal alien to vote would mean registering illegally and casting a vote, for which the federal penalty is $10,000 and 5 years in prison. And yet they did it more frequently than legal voters?

Statistical check:

Suppose 3 million people voted illegally, among the 139 million or so who voted: 2.16%.
FL-LEON-19-0521-A-000341

Imagine drawing a random sample of 250 2016 voters from whole US.

If indeed 2.16% or more 2016 voters voted illegally, the chance that the sample finds at least one illegal voter is 99.6%. The cost of doing this experiment/research would probably be on the order of $100k.

Cheers, Philip

Unfortunately I agree with Poorvi that data may not be what this is really about, but reliable data is still important to add to the conversation.

There is a conservative group, True the Vote, that leads the charge on the voter fraud issue. Here's Wikipedia on them:https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/True_the_Vote

And here's an excerpt from their statement about Pres. Trump's call for an investigation: https://truethevote.org/news

It is for this reason that True the Vote, supported by a select group of technologists, statisticians, researchers, auditors, scholars, futurists, election law experts, and process specialists, is leading a forensic audit with targeted investigations to expose election fraud and offer solutions. ...

The audit is phase one of our four year plan to include; development of a American Voter ID Program, Evaluation of Enhanced Election Technologies, Identifying Dynamic Voter Registration Verification Processes, and Development of Model Legislation.

For awhile the group had a very active chapter in MD, Election Integrity MD, that trained poll monitors and combed through registration data: http://monoblogue.us/tag/election-integrity-maryland/

They did actually find a few instances of double-voting, including bringing down a MD politician who had voted in both MD & FL in a past election. They also claimed to have found a list of non-citizens who were registered but, when called for jury duty, stated that they were not citizens. I'm not sure how many of them actually voted. The motor-voter process was not easily understood, even by fluent English-speakers, so many may have been confused about their right to vote, and some municipalities in MD allow noncitizen residents to vote. MD has now changed the driver's license issuing process so that you have to show a birth certificate, passport, or citizenship papers to get a regular license, and non-citizens get a different format license (I think). Anyone who proves citizenship can opt to register to vote on a tablet device so the registration process is more direct now than it used to be when the SBE had to depend on the MVA to forward voter registration forms to them.

I should note our frustration that these groups chose names that closely resembled the names of defunct MD orgs that had worked for verifiable elections, TrueVoteMD and MD Election Integrity Coalition, which caused a lot of confusion among our elected officials. We haven't heard much from the MD group for a few years, but this blog notes that they were reorganizing and reviving early last year so that may change. They seemed to do pretty careful and thorough combing through the data and, as far as I know, did not engage in "caging" (but I'm not sure about that). I attended one of their webinars training poll monitors, and they played it very straight and by the book, in compliance with MD election law.

I believe it is in response to the crowd photos displayed online and on TV; Trump just wants to make sure his base (the ones who still want to see Obama's birth certificate) continue to believe he rocks and is being unfairly vilified whenever information that does not comply with his version of the events is publicized.

Maybe there are others who don't know enough about the voter fraud possibilities who will be convinced by a rational experimental argument. And maybe a well-thoughtout experiment can prevent voter ID laws from dis-enfranchising poor and/or minority voters. Maybe the experimental results will have to be presented in court to have an effect, and not to Congress or the public.

Josh: I think it is better to do the sampling in the states with larger populations of illegal immigrants. But to be effective, we will need Republican officials to vouch for the data.

Philip can check my math on this, but I think that if, as expected, none of the 300 random voters turn out to be illegitimate, then there is extremely high confidence that there were not 3 million illegitimate votes in this election. Of course, this is convincing if you believe in statistics, but I don't have a lot of confidence that people who don't accept photographic evidence will accept statistical evidence. amusing and far-fetched. But as this nonsense continues to come from Trump, perhaps it is worth exploring in more detail.

Is it really doable?

Didn't Trump or his advisor also specify particular states where they thought voter fraud was particular rampant?

What is involved in telling whether a voter is legitimate? Does it require the cooperation of the identified individual? What happens to the statistics if 3% of the sample are uncooperative or unlocatable people?

I gave a lecture yesterday that touched on this.

Here's a sniff test and a proposal to check the assertion that 3-5 million illegal aliens voted.

Sniff test:

There are about 11 million illegal aliens in the US.

http://www.wsj.com/articles/ number-of-illegal-immigrants- in-u-s-holds-steady-at-11- million-1474394518

http://www.pewresearch.org/ fact-tank/2016/11/03/5-facts- about-illegal-immigration-in- the-u-s/

For the sake of argument, suppose that 75% are over the age of 18, i.e., 8.25 million.

Then the turnout rate would need to be 5/8.25 = 61% among illegal aliens for them to account for 5 million votes. The overall turnout in the election was about 56%--substantially lower. For an illegal alien to vote would mean registering illegally and casting a vote, for which the federal penalty is $10,000 and 5 years in prison. And yet they did it more frequently than legal voters?

Statistical check:

Suppose 3 million people voted illegally, among the 139 million or so who voted: 2.16%.

Imagine drawing a random sample of 250 2016 voters from whole US.

If indeed 2.16% or more 2016 voters voted illegally, the chance that the sample finds at least one illegal voter is 99.6%. The cost of doing this experiment/research would probably be on the order of $100k.

Unfortunately I agree with Poorvi that data may not be what this is really about, but reliable data is still important to add to the conversation.

There is a conservative group, True the Vote, that leads the charge on the voter fraud issue. Here's Wikipedia on them: https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/True_the_Vote

And here's an excerpt from their statement about Pres. Trump's call for an investigation: https://truethevote.org/news

It is for this reason that True the Vote, supported by a select group of technologists, statisticians, researchers, auditors, scholars, futurists, election law experts, and process specialists, is leading a forensic audit with targeted investigations to expose election fraud and offer solutions. ...

The audit is phase one of our four year plan to include; development of a American Voter ID Program, Evaluation of Enhanced Election Technologies, Identifying Dynamic Voter Registration Verification Processes, and Development of Model Legislation.

For awhile the group had a very active chapter in MD, Election Integrity MD, that trained poll monitors and combed through registration data: http://monobloque.us/tag/election-integrity-maryland/

They did actually find a few instances of double-voting, including bringing down a MD politician who had voted in both MD & FL in a past election. They also claimed to have found a list of non-citizens who were registered but, when called for jury duty, stated that they were not citizens. I'm not sure how many of them actually voted. The motor-voter process was not easily understood, even by fluent English-speakers, so many may have been confused about their right to vote, and some municipalities in MD allow noncitizen residents to vote. MD has now changed the driver's license issuing process so that you have to show a birth certificate, passport, or citizenship papers to get a regular license, and non-citizens get a different format license (I think). Anyone who proves citizenship can opt to register to vote on a tablet device so the registration process is more direct now than it used to be when the SBE had to depend on the MVA to forward voter registration forms to them.

I should note our frustration that these groups chose names that closely resembled the names of defunct MD orgs that had worked for verifiable elections, TrueVoteMD and MD Election Integrity Coalition, which caused a lot of confusion among our elected officials. We haven't heard much from the MD group for a few years, but this blog notes that they were reorganizing and reviving early last year so that may change. They seemed to do pretty careful and thorough combing through the data and, as far as I know, did not engage in "caging" (but I'm not sure about that). I attended one of their webinars training poll monitors, and they played it very straight and by the book, in compliance with MD election law.

I am depressed to say that I'm not sure anything we do will make much of a difference. This is another version of the birth certificate issue: doubt can always be cast on the source of data used to make a decision, and the issue can be kept alive as long as the vocal folks want.

I believe it is in response to the crowd photos displayed online and on TV; Trump just wants to make sure his base (the ones who still want to see Obama's birth certificate) continue to believe he rocks and is being unfairly vilified whenever information that does not comply with his version of the events is publicized.

Maybe there are others who don't know enough about the voter fraud possibilities who will be convinced by a rational experimental argument. And maybe a well-thoughtout experiment can prevent voter ID laws from dis-enfranchising poor and/or minority voters. Maybe the experimental results will have to be presented in court to have an effect, and not to Congress or the public.

Josh: I think it is better to do the sampling in the states with larger populations of illegal immigrants. But to be effective, we will need Republican officials to vouch for the data.

enough transparency to overcome having officials audit themselves.

I heard an interview with the representative of NASS on Meet the Press tonight, and they have staked out their " there is no problem†position here. She would not admit even minor instances of voter fraud. That's not accurate or believable either. Asking politicians (SOS's) to do this work creates too many partisan and other biases and complications.

I think that it is useful to read what the Republicans' conservative "go-to guys†are saying about this issue. See the link to John Fund's and Hans von Spakovsky's commentary today. http://www.foxnews.com/opinion/2017/01/25/john-fund-and-hans-von-spakovsky-why-trumps-probe-voter-fraud-is-long-overdue.html Understanding their perspective may be useful in considering how to design and conduct a review that will be persuasive to them.

HI Philip --

Perhaps the right organization to run this experiment would be NASS, as they've already spoken up against this fraud-fantasy. Each SOS could run it in their own state... They have the records and the folks who would know how to do this. If it is done in an publicly-observable way, the natural concern that the SOS's might be biased can be refuted.

Do all voter-registration rolls contain social security numbers? (I suppose any other form of ID could be used as well.)

Then you could use a random selection procedure of the form: voter with given id is selected for review if:
 hash(id) modulo C = x
 where 1/C is the fraction of voters you wish to pick
 (say C = 500,000), and x is some pseudo-random value
 (like the hash of Trump's last tweet on this topic, modulo C).

Hi Ron--

We'd need to aggregate the voter rolls across the country; there are commercial entities that do that, but perhaps better done from scratch through the states' databases.

Then we'd need to put some shoe leather into matching voters to public records that give information about citizenship. That's the hard part. It probably does not require cooperation of the voter, but it might require access to Social Security records and other things. I'm sure DHS could make it happen, if the Trump administration really wants to know. I suspect there are political reasons for maintaining the uncertainty.

Subject: [evnlist] For Immediate Comment for Media Use... Gregg Phillips and VoteStand A major mainstream media asked this morning if we could provide some comments (attributable) from the EVN Community about the following exchange. If you have an objective, evidence-based ;-) comment that will either support or debunk the following CNN exchange please send it to me directly to avoid burying this Forum in something that I think is on topic, but could quickly digress. Thanks!

Hi Gregory

As I'm sure you know, ...Gregg Phillips, founder of VoteStand – who Trump name checked in a tweet this morning -- appeared on CNN at 7am in a roundabout interview where he claimed he has proof of 3 million illegal voters but won't release it – and admits that he's going back and checking the names of the people in his database now. The question remains when Gregg Phillips will release his proof to the public, which he hasn't done yet.

Can you reach out to your election integrity professional community for any objective fact-based comment to support or refute the possibility that Phillips has actually achieved what he claims? We would need attribution (not "sources say"), and of course we need to act fast as usual. Would love to know if VoteStand App/Service is credible and if so why hasn't OSET Institute come up with something like that?

No guarantees anything will be used and we're pursuing multiple channels so there may be overlap, but know that you, John, Iain likely have a take and likely know other experts who can simply explain how and why this is either possible or impossible.

Thx

CF

07:17:29 CUOMO: Do you know, and can you prove right now, that 3 million people voted illegally?

07:17:32 PHILLIPS: Yes. We began this effort years and years ago. We have developed a database of 189 million voting records, we've augmented that database with everything from geocoding to all sorts of identifying information. We've developed algorithms that first allow us to verify identity. We can verify residency. We can verify citizenship, felon status, and all of the other factors that go into making a legal, registered voter.

07:18:04 CUOMO: So, you have the proof?

07:18:07 PHILLIPS: Yes. 07:19:26 CUOMO: Do you have the proof?

07:19:27 PHILLIPS: Yes.

07:19:29 CUOMO: Can I have it?

07:19:30 PHILLIPS: No.

07:19:30 CUOMO: Why?

07:19:31 PHILLIPS: We're not—the rest of the tweets, there was a whole series of tweets, those were taken slightly out of context, but one of the key tweets that we have stuck with all along is we're going to release all of this to the public. We're going to release our methodology, we're going to release the raw data, we're going to release our conclusions, we're going to release everything to the public.

07:19:52 CUOMO: When?

07:19:53 PHILLIPS: As soon as we get done with the checks.

07:19:56 CUOMO: Hold on, so you're not done checking it yet? 07:21:02 CUOMO: You're given yourself the benefit of some facts here that aren't in your favor, which is, you already said you proved this.

07:21:10 PHILLIPS: Right, right.

07:21:11 CUOMO: Now you're saying why you don't want to put out the information: because you're not 100% percent yet about who everybody is that you think they are. Well those fight each other, right? Because if I say I know, and you say, "great, prove it," and I say, "I can't because I'm not done checking whether or not I'm sure," it sounds unconvincing. Do you understand why?

07:21:27 PHILLIPS: I do understand, but it's not different than say a poll. You guys quote polls all the time, right?

07:21:34 CUOMO: It better be a lot different because that is a guesstimate. A poll is a guesstimate.

07:21:37 PHILLIPS: But, they've actually talked to people. So what you're publishing is you're publishing statistic, and so you're publishing the number, you know, that it's plus or minus 3 percent that we believe this this veracity. They don't publish he people, what the people said, right? They don't publish the names of the people. And that's what we're doing. We're going back in and checking. We know the numbers are right, we're going back in and checking. 07:24:15 CUOMO: You're making an assumption on an unknown. You can't know how many people checked the box wrongly—

07:24:20 PHILLIPS: But we do. We've gathered that information.

07:24:22 CUOMO: And you have to show us the proof.

07:24:23 PHILLIPS: We will. CUOMO: But you haven't. PHILLIPS: We will.

07:24:26 CUOMO: But why would I believe your conclusion if you won't show me your method of means and analysis?

07:24:30 PHILLIPS: Whether you believe it or not doesn't mean that it's not true. Whether you have the information or not doesn't mean I don't have the information. Truth is truth. If you [inaudible] respect it, right?—

07:24:40 CUOMO: Right. Ronald Reagan, trust but verify. You're not allowing the second part of that equation because you're not allowing the second part of that equation because you haven't put out that information, and you're doing it to the disadvantage of a lot of Americans who want to know the answer to this.

07:24:51 PHILLIPS: There's 3 million people's own veracity on whether or not they're citizens in the balance here, we're not going to make a mistake. 07:25:00 07:25:09 CUOMO: You put it out there, it got picked up by all these righty sites, made its way to the President, he's now putting it forth as truth. You gotta show what you know.

07:25:17 PHILLIPS: We will. CUOMO: But when?

For those who missed it (I miss a lot of discussions on this list myself), here's what I posted about TTV yesterday. I believe that their primary agenda is to force national ID.

-- Rebecca

There is a conservative group, True the Vote, that leads the charge on the voter fraud issue. Here's Wikipedia on them: https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/True_the_Vote

And here's an excerpt from their statement about Pres. Trump's call for an investigation: https://truethevote.org/news

It is for this reason that True the Vote, supported by a select group of technologists, statisticians, researchers, auditors, scholars, futurists, election law experts, and process specialists, is leading a forensic audit with targeted investigations to expose election fraud and offer solutions. ...

The audit is phase one of our four year plan to include; development of a American Voter ID Program, Evaluation of Enhanced Election Technologies, Identifying Dynamic Voter Registration Verification Processes, and Development of Model Legislation.

For awhile the group had a very active chapter in MD, Election Integrity MD, that trained poll monitors and combed through registration data:

http://monoblogue.us/tag/election-integrity-maryland/

They did actually find a few instances of double-voting, including bringing down a MD politician who had voted in both MD & FL in a past election. They also claimed to have found a list of non-citizens who were registered but, when called for jury duty, stated that they were not citizens. I'm not sure how many of them actually voted. The motor-voter process was not easily understood, even by fluent English-speakers, so many may have been confused about their right to vote, and some municipalities in MD allow noncitizen residents to vote. MD has now changed the driver's license issuing process so that you have to show a birth certificate, passport, or citizenship papers to get a regular license, and non-citizens get a different format license (I think). Anyone who proves citizenship can opt to register to vote on a tablet device so the registration process is more direct now than it used to be when the SBE had to depend on the MVA to forward voter registration forms to them.

I should note our frustration that these groups chose names that closely resembled the names of defunct MD orgs that had worked for verifiable elections, TrueVoteMD and MD Election Integrity Coalition, which caused a lot of confusion among our elected officials. We haven't heard much from the MD group for a few years, but this blog notes that they were reorganizing and reviving early last year so that may change. They seemed to do pretty careful and thorough combing through the data and, as far as I know, did not engage in "caging" (but I'm not sure about that). I attended one of their webinars training poll monitors, and they played it very straight and by the book, in compliance with MD election law.

Anyone who proves citizenship can opt to register to vote on a tablet device so the registration process is more direct now than it used to be when the SBE had to depend on the MVA to forward voter registration forms to them.

I should note our frustration that these groups chose names that closely resembled the names of defunct MD orgs that had worked for verifiable elections, TrueVoteMD and MD Election Integrity Coalition, which caused a lot of confusion among our elected officials. We haven't heard much from the MD group for a few years, but this blog notes that they were reorganizing and reviving early last year so that may change. They seemed to do pretty careful and thorough combing through the data and, as far as I know, did not engage in "caging" (but I'm not sure about that). I attended one of their webinars training poll monitors, and they played it very straight and by the book, in compliance with MD election law.

Subject: [evnlist] For Immediate Comment for Media Use... Gregg Phillips and VoteStand A major mainstream media asked this morning if we could provide some comments (attributable) from the EVN Community about the following exchange. If you have an objective, evidence-based ;-) comment that will either support or debunk the following CNN exchange please send it to me directly to avoid burying this Forum in something that I think is on topic, but could quickly digress. Thanks!

Hi Gregory

As I'm sure you know, ...Gregg Phillips, founder of VoteStand – who Trump name checked in a tweet this morning -- appeared on CNN at 7am in a roundabout interview where he claimed he has proof of 3 million illegal voters but won't release it – and admits that he's going back and checking the names of the people in his database now. The question remains when Gregg Phillips will release his proof to the public, which he hasn't done yet.

Can you reach out to your election integrity professional community for any objective fact-based comment to support or refute the possibility that Phillips has actually achieved what he claims? We would need attribution (not "sources say"), and of course we need to act fast as usual. Would love to know if VoteStand App/Service is credible and if so why hasn't OSET Institute come up with something like that?

No guarantees anything will be used and we're pursuing multiple channels so there may be overlap, but know that you, John, Iain likely have a take and likely know other experts who can simply explain how and why this is either possible or impossible.

Thx

CF

07:17:29 CUOMO: Do you know, and can you prove right now, that 3 million people voted illegally?

07:17:32 PHILLIPS: Yes. We began this effort years and years ago. We have developed a database of 189 million voting records, we've augmented that database with everything from geocoding to all sorts of identifying information. We've developed algorithms that first allow us to verify identity. We can verify residency. We can verify citizenship, felon status, and all of the other factors that go into making a legal, registered voter.

07:18:04 CUOMO: So, you have the proof?

07:18:07 PHILLIPS: Yes. 07:19:26 CUOMO: Do you have the proof?

07:19:27 PHILLIPS: Yes.

07:19:29 CUOMO: Can I have it?

07:19:30 PHILLIPS: No.

07:19:30 CUOMO: Why?

07:19:31 PHILLIPS: We're not—the rest of the tweets, there was a whole series of tweets, those were taken slightly out of context, but one of the key tweets that we have stuck with all along is we're going to release all of this to the public. We're going to release our methodology, we're going to release the raw data, we're going to release our conclusions, we're going to release everything to the public.

07:19:52 CUOMO: When?

07:19:53 PHILLIPS: As soon as we get done with the checks.

07:19:56 CUOMO: Hold on, so you're not done checking it yet? 07:21:02 CUOMO: You're given yourself the benefit of some facts here that aren't in your favor, which is, you already said you proved this.

07:21:10 PHILLIPS: Right, right.

07:21:11 CUOMO: Now you're saying why you don't want to put out the information: because you're not 100% percent yet about who everybody is that you think they are. Well those fight each other, right? Because if I say I know, and you say, "great, prove it," and I say, "I can't because I'm not done checking whether or not I'm sure," it sounds unconvincing. Do you understand why?

07:21:27 PHILLIPS: I do understand, but it's not different than say a poll. You guys quote polls all the time, right?

07:21:34 CUOMO: It better be a lot different because that is a guesstimate. A poll is a guesstimate.

07:21:37 PHILLIPS: But, they've actually talked to people. So what you're publishing is you're publishing statistic, and so you're publishing the number, you know, that it's plus or minus 3 percent that we believe this this veracity. They don't publish he people, what the people said, right? They don't publish the names of the people. And that's what we're doing. We're going back in and checking. We know the numbers are right, we're going back in and checking. 07:24:15 CUOMO: You're making an assumption on an unknown. You can't know how many people checked the box wrongly—

07:24:20 PHILLIPS: But we do. We've gathered that information.

07:24:22 CUOMO: And you have to show us the proof.

07:24:23 PHILLIPS: We will. CUOMO: But you haven't. PHILLIPS: We will.

07:24:26 CUOMO: But why would I believe your conclusion if you won't show me your method of means and analysis?

07:24:30 PHILLIPS: Whether you believe it or not doesn't mean that it's not true. Whether you have the information or not doesn't mean I don't have the information. Truth is truth. If you [inaudible] respect it, right?—

07:24:40 CUOMO: Right. Ronald Reagan, trust but verify. You're not allowing the second part of that equation because you're not allowing the second part of that equation because you haven't put out that information, and you're doing it to the disadvantage of a lot of Americans who want to know the answer to this.

07:24:51 PHILLIPS: There's 3 million people's own veracity on whether or not they're citizens in the balance here, we're not going to make a mistake. 07:25:00 07:25:09 CUOMO: You put it out there, it got picked up by all these righty sites, made its way to the President, he's now putting it forth as truth. You gotta show what you know.

07:25:17 PHILLIPS: We will. CUOMO: But when?

For those who missed it (I miss a lot of discussions on this list myself), here's what I posted about TTV yesterday. I believe that their primary agenda is to force national ID.

-- Rebecca

There is a conservative group, True the Vote, that leads the charge on the voter fraud issue. Here's Wikipedia on them: https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/True_the_Vote

And here's an excerpt from their statement about Pres. Trump's call for an investigation: https://truethevote.org/news

It is for this reason that True the Vote, supported by a select group of technologists, statisticians, researchers, auditors, scholars, futurists, election law experts, and process specialists, is leading a forensic audit with targeted investigations to expose election fraud and offer solutions. ...

The audit is phase one of our four year plan to include; development of a American Voter ID Program, Evaluation of Enhanced Election Technologies, Identifying Dynamic Voter Registration Verification Processes, and Development of Model Legislation.

For awhile the group had a very active chapter in MD, Election Integrity MD, that trained poll monitors and combed through registration data:

http://monoblogue.us/tag/election-integrity-maryland/

They did actually find a few instances of double-voting, including bringing down a MD politician who had voted in both MD & FL in a past election. They also claimed to have found a list of non-citizens who were registered but, when called for jury duty, stated that they were not citizens. I'm not sure how many of them actually voted. The motor-voter process was not easily understood, even by fluent English-speakers, so many may have been confused about their right to vote, and some municipalities in MD allow noncitizen residents to vote. MD has now changed the driver's license issuing process so that you have to show a birth certificate, passport, or citizenship papers to get a regular license, and non-citizens get a different format license (I think). Anyone who proves citizenship can opt to register to vote on a tablet device so the registration process is more direct now than it used to be when the SBE had to depend on the MVA to forward voter registration forms to them.

I should note our frustration that these groups chose names that closely resembled the names of defunct MD orgs that had worked for verifiable elections, TrueVoteMD and MD Election Integrity Coalition, which caused a lot of confusion among our elected officials. JANUARY 2017

From the President

"Moving Forward Together - A New Beginning"

Greetings:

The Mid-Winter Conference in Tucson was a great success. Many attendees came out to join us, the education sessions were excellent and we enjoyed some fun networking with everyone at a wonderful location. A huge "Thank You" to Dominion Voting Systems for sponsoring the Team Building Exercise. This was a fun event where we were able to give back to the community by giving three bicycles that we built for local children. We all worked together on teams to accomplish a goal. Thanks also to all the vendors in attendance and for participating.

Conference Highlights, Division Updates and more!

iGO Mid-Winter Conference

iGO is off to a great start! We had great attendance in Tucson, Ariz., with 115 attendees including 25 vendors from 14 companies. We offered 10.5 hours education credit for session attendees plus committee meetings, planning and two GWU Courses. We had a team building exercise that was sponsored by Dominion Voting. Members were divided into groups: three teams built bikes, three teams did blindfolded golf putting and three teams competed in the salsa making. The three bicycles were inspected by the owner of the bike shop and then given to three underprivileged children in the area. What great talent our groups had! They were competitive but willing to all work together - even the pro at the golf course said the iGO groups did better than any groups he had worked with. We then had a wonderful lunch outdoors. Way to go, everyone!

Our last evening in Tucson began with a Native American ceremony on the lawn with Mr. Larry Redhouse, a member of the Navajo Nation, playing his flute and doing a blessing and ceremony around the fire pit.

After dinner, we went indoors for the American Idol contest where six of our very talented members performed for us. We even had our own "Ryan Seacrest, Paula, Randy & Simon" for judges. It was so much fun and everyone did a great job! Congratulations to the American Idol winner: Omarey Williams, a first-time attendee. We missed you if you weren't there!

Clerks' Division: In the "Fix-It" Business!

At the iGO Mid-Winter Conference in Tucson, Ariz., the Clerks' and Recorders' Divisions heard from a panel of experts on "Recent Trends in Marriage Licensure." The Hon.

Ken Boulden (New Castle, Del.), The Hon. Nora Deitzel (Boone, Mo.) and Brenna Sawyer

(Fairfax, Va.) spoke on how local officials managed court-mandated and legislative changes, for same-sex marriage. The panel also shared practical tips on how to detect and prevent marriage fraud.

In The News: Just last week, DHS reported on federal indictments for marriage fraud, related to the terrorist case of the San Bernardino killers. Read more

Clerks who attended classes at the conference also heard from Utah State Auditor

John Dougall regarding how your "Public Audit is a Management Tool for Success."

His advice is "Find a Problem, Fix a Problem!" He urged clerks to be curious, work collaboratively with the public auditor and look for "trends and patterns."

In The News:A recent story coming out of Georgia makes the case about identifying trends in accountability and getting your community's support for outside audits.

Election Officials' Division

from across the U.S. and overseas converged for some well-received sun and excellent education and networking. Sessions included learning of several surprisingly helpful free resources available for election officials (presented by the Center for Technology & Civic Life), and learning about the Associated Press's Election Tabulation & Research, from its Director, Don Rehill. Dylan Smith, Chair of the nationwide Local Independent Online News Publishers, discussed how to create and maintain helpful relationships with local news reporters. The highest rated session was our Roundtable Discussion, where over 40 election officials (with jurisdictions from 2 million voters to 20,000 voters) shared best practices, successful programs, lessons learned and business cards. EAC Chair Tom Hicks and EAC Commissioner Christy McCormick shared valuable insight, as did Tammy Patrick of the Bipartisan Policy Center.

Tell us what you want! Keep an eye out for a survey where you can tell us what kind of training you'd like to see at the Annual Conference this summer. Our goal is to meet YOUR needs for training and to provide an active, supportive network of election official friends across the country and world.

In the News: On Jan. 6, Homeland Security Secretary Jeh Johnson designated the U.S. election infrastructure as critical infrastructure. Read more

Greetings:

The Mid-Winter Conference in Tucson was a great success. Many attendees came out to join us, the education sessions were excellent and we enjoyed some fun networking with everyone at a wonderful location. A huge "Thank You" to Dominion Voting Systems for sponsoring the Team Building Exercise. This was a fun event where we were able to give back to the community by giving three bicycles that we built for local children. We all worked together on teams to accomplish a goal. Thanks also to all the vendors in attendance and for participating.

Our Membership drive is underway; if you have not already renewed your membership please do so as soon as possible. Your membership will be for the calendar year 2017. I would like to also ask you spread the word to your colleagues about iGO. Please provide information about our great organization and ask them to join. The opportunities are rewarding, great educational sessions, webinars, networking and meeting folks from all over the U.S. and other countries - just to name a few of the great things about iGO.

I also encourage you to make plans to attend the 1st Annual iGO Conference, July 8 - 13, 2017 at the Swan and Dolphin, Lake Buena Vista, Fla. Hotel registrations and your conference registrations can be made now.

The iGO website is our hub for information. There you'll find all the latest updates on the conference, membership applications to share with your colleagues, and much more.

Hope to see you in Florida to "Experience the Magic of iGO."

Linda von Nessi, iGO President

We had a team building exercise that was sponsored by Dominion Voting. Members were divided into groups: three teams built bikes, three teams did blindfolded golf putting and three teams competed in the salsa making. The three bicycles were inspected by the owner of the bike shop and then given to three underprivileged children in the area. What great talent our groups had! They were competitive but willing to all work together even the pro at the golf course said the iGO groups did better than any groups he had worked with. We then had a wonderful lunch outdoors. Way to go, everyone!

Our last evening in Tucson began with a Native American ceremony on the lawn with Mr. Larry Redhouse, a member of the Navajo Nation, playing his flute and doing a blessing and ceremony around the fire pit.

After dinner, we went indoors for the American Idol contest where six of our very talented members performed for us. We even had our own "Ryan Seacrest, Paula, Randy & Simon" for judges. It was so much fun and everyone did a great job! Congratulations to the American Idol winner: Omarey Williams, a first-time attendee. We missed you if you weren't there!

Clerks' Division: In the "Fix-It" Business!

At the iGO Mid-Winter Conference in Tucson, Ariz., the Clerks' and Recorders' Divisions heard from a panel of experts on "Recent Trends in Marriage Licensure." The Hon. Ken Boulden (New Castle, Del.), The Hon. Nora Deitzel (Boone, Mo.) and Brenna Sawyer (Fairfax, Va.) spoke on how local officials managed court-mandated and legislative changes, for same-sex marriage. The panel also shared practical tips on how to detect and prevent marriage fraud.

In The News: Just last week, DHS reported on federal indictments for marriage fraud, related to the terrorist case of the San Bernardino killers. Read more.

Clerks who attended classes at the conference also heard from Utah State Auditor John Dougall regarding how your "Public Audit is a Management Tool for Success."
His advice is "Find a Problem, Fix a Problem!" He urged clerks to be curious, work collaboratively with the public auditor and look for "trends and patterns."

In The News: A recent story coming out of Georgia makes the case about identifying trends in accountability and getting your community's support for outside audits. Read more.

Election Officials' Division

What a fantastic iGO Mid-Winter Conference in sunny, warm Tucson! Election Officials from across the U.S. and overseas converged for some well-received sun and excellent education and networking. Sessions included learning of several surprisingly helpful free resources available for election officials (presented by the Center for Technology & Civic Life), and learning about the Associated Press's Election Tabulation & Research, from its Director, Don Rehill. Dylan Smith, Chair of the nationwide Local Independent Online News Publishers, discussed how to create and maintain helpful relationships with local news reporters. The highest rated session was our Roundtable Discussion, where over 40 election officials (with jurisdictions from 2 million voters to 20,000 voters) shared best practices, successful programs, lessons learned and business cards. EAC Chair Tom Hicks and EAC Commissioner Christy McCormick shared valuable insight, as did Tammy Patrick of the Bipartisan Policy Center.

Tell us what you want! Keep an eye out for a survey where you can tell us what kind of training you'd like to see at the Annual Conference this summer. Our goal is to meet YOUR needs for training and to provide an active, supportive network of election official friends across the country and world.

In the News: On Jan. 6, Homeland Security Secretary Jeh Johnson designated the U.S. election infrastructure as critical infrastructure. Read more. Stay tuned: iGO will provide additional details on what this designation means (and does not mean) for you and your voters.

There appears to be a fundamental misunderstanding of the significance of designating election administration as critical infrastructure. It does not mean federal control. Instead, it is confirmation that it is important to protect election systems from cyberattack. In effect, DHS supported those state and local election officials who sought assistance. The formal designation means that assistance will be institutionalized a very positive step.

We await a formal response from DHS to the EAC¹s request for a more detailed explanation of the significance of the designation. ³Federal control² would require an act of Congress, something which is extremely unlikely.

I second the comments of those who regret the politicization of this effort to provide federal assistance to those who can benefit from the substantially greater federal resources available.

Yes, Justin agreed!

I hope that election integrity organizations and proponents will reconsider their initial support of this designation, for the very reasons you state. Several people on this list told me at the time, that they supported this under Obama. Recall that leading Republicans, including thought leaders Hans von Spakovsky and John Fund strongly criticized the designation initially. I fear that Republicans will drop their fight under Trump. Therefore, the election integrity community must not be timid in picking up the fight against this designation and find other more appropriate legislation efforts to impose more controls.

I personally cannot imagine anything more dangerous than having Trump and his administration with centralized control over election mechanics with the cloak of protection from FOIA that the designation allows them.

A key premise of this article -- Obama made a mistake by applying the "critical infrastructure" label to elections -- is based on the assumption that Trump would be too timid to apply that label himself. I think that's a horrendously misplaced assumption. The last two weeks have shown that Trump will use every lever of power at his disposal to get what he wants with little concern for the optics or traditional political restraints.

Douglas,

I hope your view is accurate, and mine is needless worry. I understand that it is not technical "control," but it surely seems to be considerable and ill-defined influence. The last I read, no one really knew what the true statutory limits are once the designation is made. Is it truly only those states that asked for help, or in a declared "emergency," can DHS extend the scope? If you have a statutory or regulatory reference on this, please provide. I tried to get such a few weeks ago, and couldn't find much, and agency officials did not seem to have answers.

Can assistance not be provided and "institutionalized" without the risks of designation?

Thanks.

There appears to be a fundamental misunderstanding of the significance of designating election administration as critical infrastructure. It does not mean federal control. Instead, it is confirmation that it is important to protect election systems from cyberattack. In effect, DHS supported those state and local election officials who sought assistance. The formal designation means that assistance will be institutionalized—a very positive step.

We await a formal response from DHS to the EAC's request for a more detailed explanation of the significance of the designation. "Federal control" would require an act of Congress, something which is extremely unlikely.

I second the comments of those who regret the politicization of this effort to provide federal assistance to those who can benefit from the substantially greater federal resources available.

Yes, Justin—agreed!

I hope that election integrity organizations and proponents will reconsider their initial support of this designation, for the very reasons you state. Several people on this list told me at the time, that they supported this under Obama. Recall that leading Republicans, including thought leaders Hans von Spakovsky and John Fund strongly criticized the designation initially. I fear that Republicans will drop their fight under Trump. Therefore, the election integrity community must not be timid in picking up the fight against this designation and find other more appropriate legislation efforts to impose more controls.

I personally cannot imagine anything more dangerous than having Trump and his administration with centralized control over election mechanics with the cloak of protection from FOIA that the designation allows them.

A key premise of this article -- Obama made a mistake by applying the "critical infrastructure" label to elections -- is based on the assumption that Trump would be too timid to apply that label himself. I think that's a horrendously misplaced assumption. The last two weeks have shown that Trump will use every lever of power at his disposal to get what he wants with little concern for the optics or traditional political restraints.

Yes, Justin-agreed!

I hope that election integrity organizations and proponents will reconsider their initial support of this designation, for the very reasons you state. Several people on this list told me at the time, that they supported this under Obama. Recall that leading Republicans, including thought leaders Hans von Spakovsky and John Fund strongly criticized the designation initially. I fear that Republicans will drop their fight under Trump. Therefore, the election integrity community must not be timid in picking up the fight against this designation and find other more appropriate legislation efforts to impose more controls.

I personally cannot imagine anything more dangerous than having Trump and his administration with centralized control over election mechanics with the cloak of protection from FOIA that the designation allows them.

A key premise of this article -- Obama made a mistake by applying the "critical infrastructure" label to elections -- is based on the assumption that Trump would be too timid to apply that label himself. I think that's a horrendously misplaced assumption. The last two weeks have shown that Trump will use every lever of power at his disposal to get what he wants with little concern for the optics or traditional political restraints.

To Whom It May Concern,

I am a graduate student at Harvard University who is studying local government. I have two quick questions about your county that I hope you can answer by email:

- 1) Since the "Great Recession" that began in late 2008, after the housing and stock market crash, has the amount of state funding transferred to your county increased, decreased, or stayed the same? (If you don't know, please respond "I don't know".)
- 2) Since the Great Recession, has your county added or removed any county-level elective positions, or switched any positions from elective to appointive or vice-versa? By "county-level position" I mean any official position in your county's government, such as: county commissioner, county executive, district attorney, sheriff, treasurer, assessor-recorder, etc. (If a change occurred that was later reversed, please indicate this too.)

You are receiving this email because your county lists you as an election official. Please send your responses and questions directly to mkomisarchik@fas.harvard.edu<mailto:mkomisarchik@fas.harvard.edu>. Please DO NOT hit reply or reply all.

The Future of Elections: Technology Policy and Funding Conference

June 14-16, Williamsburg, Va.

http://www.ncsl.org/research/elections-and-campaigns/the-future-of-elections-technology-policy-and-funding-conference.aspx

It's not too early to reserve your seat at the table for NCSL's The Future of Elections: Technology Policy and Funding Conference http://www.ncsl.org/research/elections-and-campaigns/the-future-of-elections-technology-policy-and-funding-conference.aspx?ct=b2e78184d6057fdbcd2986c8da43a1925e7a6a74433827c1e11ac3e70359eccd0f216252d074a8d272 c18e93d92a91b1b7d36ce6c5b03b3d1aa98ddf82eb924c, June 14-16 in Williamsburg, Va.

Browse the conference agenda http://www.ncsl.org/research/elections-and-campaigns/agenda-resources-the-future-of-elections-technology-policy-and-funding-conference.aspx and register today http://comm.ncsl.org/NCSLMeetings.aspx?prid=90377915!

The conference begins with an afternoon in the Virginia state capitol building and ventures down to Williamsburg for two days of programming featuring sessions on elections security, technology procurement and funding strategies in other states, and election modernization efforts.

On Thursday, participants can explore the vendor fair in-between sessions, and in the evening Commissioner Christy McCormick of the U.S. Election Assistance Commission https://www.eac.gov/default.aspx will host the group for a networking reception. There are also plenty of reasons https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=PkC2aX77R8Q to bring the family and stay through the weekend.

There is no registration fee for state legislators or legislative staff. For questions, contact Amanda Buchanan mailto:amanda.buchanan@ncsl.org (303-856-1467) or Wendy Underhill mailto:wendy.underhill@ncsl.org (303-856-1379).

Check out the agenda for the NCSL conference in June. I am thinking about going, but because both of you have experience in the post-election audit, I thought it would definitely be of interest to you. Let me know your thoughts.

The Future of Elections: Technology Policy and Funding Conference June 14-16, Williamsburg, Va.

Image removed by sender. Ele	ctions

It's not too early to reserve your seat at the table for NCSL's The Future of Elections: Technology Policy and Funding Conference, June 14-16 in Williamsburg, Va.

Browse the conference agenda and register today!

The conference begins with an afternoon in the Virginia state capitol building and ventures down to Williamsburg for two days of programming featuring sessions on elections security, technology procurement and funding strategies in other states, and election modernization efforts.

On Thursday, participants can explore the vendor fair in-between sessions, and in the evening Commissioner Christy McCormick of the U.S. Election Assistance Commission will host the group for a networking reception. There are also plenty of reasons to bring the family and stay through the weekend. There is no registration fee for state legislators or legislative staff. For questions, contact Amanda Buchanan (303-856-1467) or Wendy Underhill (303-856-1379).

Exhibiting and sponsorship opportunities are available! Inquire today.

I'm thinking about writing to the commission and asking them to recommend prohibiting paperless electronic voting and requiring voter verified paper trails and post election auditing in all federal elections to ensure our election results are not hacked by Russians or anyone else without our knowledge and ability to detect it.

It has become common for statements that attempt to delegitimize democracy with claims of widespread voter fraud vote hacking or rigging. Voter confidence is thus reduced in the system and election professionals. David Becker has been in the middle of these discussions and will discuss how Florida can continue to stay above this fray.

Elections as critical infrastructure

Christy McCormick cmccormich@eac.gov

Definition of CI comes from Patriot Act. Sec. 1016(e)

Created in 2001 as result of Sept 11 terrorist acts

Presidential Policy Directive 21 (PPD 21) and NIPP work together

DHS is lead agency

Clearinghouse.gov has EAC list of questions.

EAC wants to be listed as Co-SAA to give access to local officials.

Confrontation Avoidance and Dealing with Active Intruder

3 steps -

Ask- ask the person how you can help

Advise - if they persist, then advise them what will happen next

Tell- If all else fails, call law enforcement and tell them to leave

First option is to run from active intruder. The hide, then fight

Office Security

Extra patrols on election night and during EV

Invite emergency management staff and law enforcement to office

Have a Control Plan for building access.

Clean desk policy for front office

Visitor badges for guests

Have an evacuation plan that covers exiting the building

Suspicious mail plan; isolate the package

Bomb threat documentation. DHS has handout.

Bomb sweeping for office night before election and all entering the facility

Is there a Sheriff Reserve program in place? Most reserves required to give 8 hours service

Video Run Hide Fight from Homeland Security

Hillsborough does not allow back packs in warehouse

OVR

Address validation is from the county street files. Only validates residence address if you use lookup feature

OVR splash page up now; https://registertovoteflorida.gov/

DHSMV required to verify name, DOB and DL#

OVR system does not retain any information from a completed transaction.

How fast will it be to register online? Depends on verification times.

System requires user to enter the name exactly as it appears on DL

Will be available in Spanish and English

If the OVR system is not available, it will direct to paper option

Session remains active for 15 minutes, then clear out

Unique identifier is transaction number, never repeated

Real time transactions upon submission of application

Signature will be pulled from DSHMV upon submission if it's newer than what is on file.

User acceptance testing calendar will be published so that every county has a chance to test the system.

Two projects going at DHSMV

Customers at DHSMV will start allowing customers to enter their own data for voter reg selections instead of asking customer (April 2019). But will take years until all DLs are converted to new format. 2026 will be when the mag stripe licenses will have expired.

New DL format coming- totally different. Will have a mag stripes...for a while (couple of years). Moving to 2D bar codes and special features law enforcement has requested. Double the number of security features, some unique to FL. 2D barcode is the national standard.

Voting Tabulation Districts

Suggestion program begins at the end of this year. December 2017 thru May 2018

Try to get block boundary suggestion to the Census Bureau using VTD boundaries.

Initial delineation Dec 17-May 18

Final Verification Dec 20-March 21

Mark would like Johnny to try and get into the program. If you participate in the first 2 phases, you can be part of the final verification project. Contact Jay Ferrin with the Senate Redistricting or James Whitehurst with US Census.

Authored article cited by candidate and Pres Trump regarding voter fraud. His article was used out of context and no data supports allegations of "millions" of illegal votes cast in 2016.

Fraud rates are below 0.001%. Non-existent problem.

Extensive information exists that attempts were made by Russian operatives against the US

2 known hacks exist

State of Illinois- statewide database hacked, was discovered by increased server activity. Data was taken but not altered.

Hacks ultimately are to be found out to sow seeds of distrust. Conversations going on now help that effort.

Arizona statewide database hacked but not breeched.

Other 3rd party systems attacked as well (VR and Kennesaw St)

Probably prudent to increase Prov Ballot materials at voting locations in case reg data is attacked/altered/erased

Democracy Fund research released in Dec 2016 regarding voter confidence

Recommendations

Rely on facts and evidence solely

Election officials are part of the solution, not the problem

Acknowledge that threat will not go away.

Stronger audits will be necessary

Good practice to analyze mail ballot requests (for location and number of ballots mailed)

Review of Security Protocols and training

Better 2-way communication between intelligence officials, federal govt and local officials. Primarily a Fed problem in that they are not sharing information.

Re-invest in elections infrastructure

Elections as critical infrastructure

Christy McCormick cmccormich@eac.gov

- Definition of CI comes from Patriot Act. Sec. 1016(e)
- Created in 2001 as result of Sept 11 terrorist acts
- Presidential Policy Directive 21 (PPD 21) and NIPP work together
- DHS is lead agency
- Clearinghouse.gov has EAC list of questions.
- EAC wants to be listed as Co-SAA to give access to local officials.

Confrontation Avoidance and Dealing with Active Intruder

- 3 steps
  - Ask- ask the person how you can help
  - Advise if they persist, then advise them what will happen next
  - o Tell- If all else fails, call law enforcement and tell them to leave
- First option is to run from active intruder. The hide, then fight

Office Security

- Extra patrols on election night and during EV
- Invite emergency management staff and law enforcement to office
- Have a Control Plan for building access.
- Clean desk policy for front office
- Visitor badges for guests
- Have an evacuation plan that covers exiting the building
- · Suspicious mail plan; isolate the package
- Bomb threat documentation. DHS has handout.
- Bomb sweeping for office night before election and all entering the facility
- Is there a Sheriff Reserve program in place? Most reserves required to give 8 hours service
- Video Run Hide Fight from Homeland Security
- Hillsborough does not allow back packs in warehouse

- Definition of CI comes from Patriot Act. Sec. 1016(e)
- Created in 2001 as result of Sept 11 terrorist acts
- Presidential Policy Directive 21 (PPD 21) and NIPP work together
- DHS is lead agency
- Clearinghouse.gov has EAC list of questions.
- EAC wants to be listed as Co-SAA to give access to local officials.

Confrontation Avoidance and Dealing with Active Intruder

- 3 steps
  - Ask- ask the person how you can help
  - Advise if they persist, then advise them what will happen next
  - o Tell- If all else fails, call law enforcement and tell them to leave
- First option is to run from active intruder. The hide, then fight

Office Security

- Extra patrols on election night and during EV
- Invite emergency management staff and law enforcement to office
- Have a Control Plan for building access.
- Clean desk policy for front office
- Visitor badges for guests
- Have an evacuation plan that covers exiting the building
- Suspicious mail plan; isolate the package
- Bomb threat documentation. DHS has handout.
- Bomb sweeping for office night before election and all entering the facility
- Is there a Sheriff Reserve program in place? Most reserves required to give 8 hours service
- Video Run Hide Fight from Homeland Security
- Hillsborough does not allow back packs in warehouse

OVR

Elections as critical infrastructure

Christy McCormick cmccormich@eac.gov

- Definition of CI comes from Patriot Act. Sec. 1016(e)
- Created in 2001 as result of Sept 11 terrorist acts
- Presidential Policy Directive 21 (PPD 21) and NIPP work together
- DHS is lead agency
- Clearinghouse.gov has EAC list of questions.
- EAC wants to be listed as Co-SAA to give access to local officials.

Confrontation Avoidance and Dealing with Active Intruder

- 3 steps
  - Ask- ask the person how you can help
  - Advise if they persist, then advise them what will happen next
  - o Tell- If all else fails, call law enforcement and tell them to leave
- First option is to run from active intruder. The hide, then fight

Office Security

- Extra patrols on election night and during EV
- Invite emergency management staff and law enforcement to office
- Have a Control Plan for building access.
- Clean desk policy for front office
- Visitor badges for guests
- Have an evacuation plan that covers exiting the building
- · Suspicious mail plan; isolate the package
- Bomb threat documentation. DHS has handout.
- Bomb sweeping for office night before election and all entering the facility
- Is there a Sheriff Reserve program in place? Most reserves required to give 8 hours service
- Video Run Hide Fight from Homeland Security
- Hillsborough does not allow back packs in warehouse

OVR

- Address validation is from the county street files. Only validates residence address if you use lookup feature
- OVR splash page up now; https://registertovoteflorida.gov/
- DHSMV required to verify name, DOB and DL #
- OVR system does not retain any information from a completed transaction.
- How fast will it be to register online? Depends on verification times.
- System requires user to enter the name exactly as it appears on DL
- Will be available in Spanish and English

ERSIGHT

- If the OVR system is not available, it will direct to paper option
- Session remains active for 15 minutes, then clear out
- Unique identifier is transaction number, never repeated
- Real time transactions upon submission of application
- Signature will be pulled from DSHMV upon submission if it's newer than what is on file.
- User acceptance testing calendar will be published so that every county has a chance to test the system.
- Two projects going at DHSMV
  - Customers at DHSMV will start allowing customers to enter their own data for voter reg selections instead of asking customer (April 2019). But will take years until all DLs are converted to new format. 2026 will be when the mag stripe licenses will have expired.
  - New DL format coming- totally different. Will have a mag stripes...for a while (couple of years).
     Moving to 2D bar codes and special features law enforcement has requested. Double the number of security features, some unique to FL. 2D barcode is the national standard.

Voting Tabulation Districts

- Suggestion program begins at the end of this year. December 2017 thru May 2018
- Try to get block boundary suggestion to the Census Bureau using VTD boundaries.
- Initial delineation Dec 17-May 18
- Verification Dec 18-May 19
- Final Verification Dec 20-March 21
- Mark would like Johnny to try and get into the program. If you participate in the first 2 phases, you can be part of the final verification project. Contact Jay Ferrin with the Senate Redistricting or James Whitehurst with US Census.

Civic Engagement

- Kids Voting- Florida #1, Leon ranked #7 in state with 14,000 participants; Leon #5 by % ranking (50%)

- Authored article cited by candidate and Pres Trump regarding voter fraud. His article was used out of context and no data supports allegations of "millions" of illegal votes cast in 2016.
- Fraud rates are below 0.001%. Non-existent problem.
- Extensive information exists that attempts were made by Russian operatives against the US
- 2 known hacks exist
  - State of Illinois- statewide database hacked, was discovered by increased server activity. Data was taken but not altered. Hacks ultimately are to be found out to sow seeds of distrust.
     Conversations going on now help that effort.
  - Arizona statewide database hacked but not breeched.
- Other 3rd party systems attacked as well (VR and Kennesaw St)
- Probably prudent to increase Prov Ballot materials at voting locations in case reg data is attacked/altered/erased
- Democracy Fund research released in Dec 2016 regarding voter confidence
- Recommendations
  - Rely on facts and evidence solely
  - Election officials are part of the solution, not the problem
  - o Acknowledge that threat will not go away.
  - Stronger audits will be necessary
  - Good practice to analyze mail ballot requests (for location and number of ballots mailed)
  - Review of Security Protocols and training
  - Better 2-way communication between intelligence officials, federal govt and local officials.
     Primarily a Fed problem in that they are not sharing information.

Elections as critical infrastructure

Christy McCormick cmccormich@eac.gov

- Definition of CI comes from Patriot Act. Sec. 1016(e)
- Created in 2001 as result of Sept 11 terrorist acts
- Presidential Policy Directive 21 (PPD 21) and NIPP work together
- DHS is lead agency
- Clearinghouse.gov has EAC list of questions.
- EAC wants to be listed as Co-SAA to give access to local officials.

Confrontation Avoidance and Dealing with Active Intruder

- 3 steps
  - Ask- ask the person how you can help
  - Advise if they persist, then advise them what will happen next
  - o Tell- If all else fails, call law enforcement and tell them to leave
- First option is to run from active intruder. The hide, then fight

Office Security

- Extra patrols on election night and during EV
- Invite emergency management staff and law enforcement to office
- Have a Control Plan for building access.
- Clean desk policy for front office
- Visitor badges for guests
- Have an evacuation plan that covers exiting the building
- Suspicious mail plan; isolate the package
- Bomb threat documentation. DHS has handout.
- Bomb sweeping for office night before election and all entering the facility
- Is there a Sheriff Reserve program in place? Most reserves required to give 8 hours service
- Video Run Hide Fight from Homeland Security
- Hillsborough does not allow back packs in warehouse

OVR

- Address validation is from the county street files. Only validates residence address if you use lookup feature
- OVR splash page up now; https://registertovoteflorida.gov/
- DHSMV required to verify name, DOB and DL #
- OVR system does not retain any information from a completed transaction.
- How fast will it be to register online? Depends on verification times.
- System requires user to enter the name exactly as it appears on DL
- Will be available in Spanish and English

- If the OVR system is not available, it will direct to paper option
- Session remains active for 15 minutes, then clear out
- Unique identifier is transaction number, never repeated
- Real time transactions upon submission of application
- Signature will be pulled from DSHMV upon submission if it's newer than what is on file.
- User acceptance testing calendar will be published so that every county has a chance to test the system.
- Two projects going at DHSMV
  - Customers at DHSMV will start allowing customers to enter their own data for voter reg selections instead of asking customer (April 2019). But will take years until all DLs are converted to new format. 2026 will be when the mag stripe licenses will have expired.
  - New DL format coming- totally different. Will have a mag stripes...for a while (couple of years).
     Moving to 2D bar codes and special features law enforcement has requested. Double the number of security features, some unique to FL. 2D barcode is the national standard.

Voting Tabulation Districts

- Suggestion program begins at the end of this year. December 2017 thru May 2018
- Try to get block boundary suggestion to the Census Bureau using VTD boundaries.
- Initial delineation Dec 17-May 18
- Verification Dec 18-May 19
- Final Verification Dec 20-March 21
- Mark would like Johnny to try and get into the program. If you participate in the first 2 phases, you can be part of the final verification project. Contact Jay Ferrin with the Senate Redistricting or James Whitehurst with US Census.

Civic Engagement

- Kids Voting- Florida #1, Leon ranked #7 in state with 14,000 participants; Leon #5 by % ranking (50%)
- Double Click Democracy allows for computer based voting
- Webinar on June 28 for FL Kids Voting 10-11 am
- Dates for 2018 General start in August and voting occurs between Sept 10 and Nov 6 for participating counties
- Florida has one of the weakest Civics Cultures in the Nation according to Census indicators.
- Sandra Day O'Connor Civics Act establishes reading criteria
- School engagement- find the person responsible for Civics for the School system and talk with them.
- Empowering students to make informed decisions. Provide information for students.
- Maybe SOEs should have an internship from university for each spring semester to help with KIDS Voting

Florida House on the Hill- supported by 110 Trustees. In DC

- Run an internship program (currently 4). Can provide meeting spaces, host school visits.
- Partner with the Philadelphia based Nat'l Constitution Center
- Teach about separation of powers and Bill of Rights

- Constitution Day Sept 18
- New adopted Bill/ legislation 2017: (takes effect 2019)
  - establishing Sept as Founders Month- schools work together
  - Civics test for incoming Freshman- must pass or take remedial Civics course in college.

Election Integrity- David Becker, Center for Election Innovation and Research dbecker@electioninnovatioon.org, @beckerdavidj on social media

- Authored article cited by candidate and Pres Trump regarding voter fraud. His article was used out of context and no data supports allegations of "millions" of illegal votes cast in 2016.
- Fraud rates are below 0.001%. Non-existent problem.
- Extensive information exists that attempts were made by Russian operatives against the US
- 2 known hacks exist
  - State of Illinois- statewide database hacked, was discovered by increased server activity. Data was taken but not altered. Hacks ultimately are to be found out to sow seeds of distrust.
     Conversations going on now help that effort.
  - Arizona statewide database hacked but not breeched.
- Other 3rd party systems attacked as well (VR and Kennesaw St)
- Probably prudent to increase Prov Ballot materials at voting locations in case reg data is attacked/altered/erased
- Democracy Fund research released in Dec 2016 regarding voter confidence
- Recommendations
  - Rely on facts and evidence solely
  - Election officials are part of the solution, not the problem
  - o Acknowledge that threat will not go away.
  - Stronger audits will be necessary
  - Good practice to analyze mail ballot requests (for location and number of ballots mailed)
  - Review of Security Protocols and training
  - Better 2-way communication between intelligence officials, federal govt and local officials.
     Primarily a Fed problem in that they are not sharing information.
  - Re-invest in elections infrastructure

Elections as critical infrastructure

Christy McCormick cmccormich@eac.gov

- Definition of CI comes from Patriot Act. Sec. 1016(e)
- Created in 2001 as result of Sept 11 terrorist acts
- Presidential Policy Directive 21 (PPD 21) and NIPP work together
- DHS is lead agency
- Clearinghouse.gov has EAC list of questions.
- EAC wants to be listed as Co-SAA to give access to local officials.

Confrontation Avoidance and Dealing with Active Intruder

- 3 steps
  - o Ask- ask the person how you can help
  - Advise if they persist, then advise them what will happen next
  - Tell- If all else fails, call law enforcement and tell them to leave
- First option is to run from active intruder. The hide, then fight

Office Security

- Extra patrols on election night and during EV
- Invite emergency management staff and law enforcement to office
- Have a Control Plan for building access.
- Clean desk policy for front office
- Visitor badges for guests
- Have an evacuation plan that covers exiting the building
- Suspicious mail plan; isolate the package
- Bomb threat documentation. DHS has handout.
- Bomb sweeping for office night before election and all entering the facility
- Is there a Sheriff Reserve program in place? Most reserves required to give 8 hours service
- Video Run Hide Fight from Homeland Security
- Hillsborough does not allow back packs in warehouse

OVR

- Address validation is from the county street files. Only validates residence address if you use lookup feature
- OVR splash page up now; https://registertovoteflorida.gov/
- DHSMV required to verify name, DOB and DL #
- OVR system does not retain any information from a completed transaction.
- How fast will it be to register online? Depends on verification times.
- System requires user to enter the name exactly as it appears on DL
- Will be available in Spanish and English

- If the OVR system is not available, it will direct to paper option
- Session remains active for 15 minutes, then clear out
- Unique identifier is transaction number, never repeated
- · Real time transactions upon submission of application
- Signature will be pulled from DSHMV upon submission if it's newer than what is on file.
- User acceptance testing calendar will be published so that every county has a chance to test the system.
- Two projects going at DHSMV
  - Customers at DHSMV will start allowing customers to enter their own data for voter reg selections instead of asking customer (April 2019). But will take years until all DLs are converted to new format. 2026 will be when the mag stripe licenses will have expired.
  - New DL format coming- totally different. Will have a mag stripes...for a while (couple of years).
     Moving to 2D bar codes and special features law enforcement has requested. Double the number of security features, some unique to FL. 2D barcode is the national standard.

Voting Tabulation Districts

- Suggestion program begins at the end of this year. December 2017 thru May 2018
- Try to get block boundary suggestion to the Census Bureau using VTD boundaries.
- Initial delineation Dec 17-May 18
- Verification Dec 18-May 19
- Final Verification Dec 20-March 21
- Mark would like Johnny to try and get into the program. If you participate in the first 2 phases, you can be part of the final verification project. Contact Jay Ferrin with the Senate Redistricting or James Whitehurst with US Census.

Civic Engagement

- Dates for 2018 General start in August and voting occurs between Sept 10 and Nov 6 for participating counties
- Florida has one of the weakest Civics Cultures in the Nation according to Census indicators.
- Sandra Day O'Connor Civics Act establishes reading criteria
- School engagement- find the person responsible for Civics for the School system and talk with them.
- Empowering students to make informed decisions. Provide information for students.
- Maybe SOEs should have an internship from university for each spring semester to help with KIDS Voting

Florida House on the Hill- supported by 110 Trustees. In DC

- Run an internship program (currently 4). Can provide meeting spaces, host school visits.

Elections as critical infrastructure

Christy McCormick cmccormich@eac.gov

- Definition of CI comes from Patriot Act. Sec. 1016(e)
- Created in 2001 as result of Sept 11 terrorist acts
- Presidential Policy Directive 21 (PPD 21) and NIPP work together
- DHS is lead agency
- Clearinghouse.gov has EAC list of questions.
- EAC wants to be listed as Co-SAA to give access to local officials.

Confrontation Avoidance and Dealing with Active Intruder

- 3 steps
  - Ask- ask the person how you can help
  - Advise if they persist, then advise them what will happen next
  - o Tell- If all else fails, call law enforcement and tell them to leave
- First option is to run from active intruder. The hide, then fight

Office Security

- Extra patrols on election night and during EV
- Invite emergency management staff and law enforcement to office
- Have a Control Plan for building access.
- Clean desk policy for front office
- Visitor badges for guests
- Have an evacuation plan that covers exiting the building
- Suspicious mail plan; isolate the package
- Bomb threat documentation. DHS has handout.
- Bomb sweeping for office night before election and all entering the facility
- Is there a Sheriff Reserve program in place? Most reserves required to give 8 hours service
- Video Run Hide Fight from Homeland Security
- Hillsborough does not allow back packs in warehouse

OVR

- Address validation is from the county street files. Only validates residence address if you use lookup feature
- OVR splash page up now; https://registertovoteflorida.gov/
- DHSMV required to verify name, DOB and DL #
- OVR system does not retain any information from a completed transaction.
- How fast will it be to register online? Depends on verification times.
- System requires user to enter the name exactly as it appears on DL
- Will be available in Spanish and English

- If the OVR system is not available, it will direct to paper option
- Session remains active for 15 minutes, then clear out
- Unique identifier is transaction number, never repeated
- Real time transactions upon submission of application
- Signature will be pulled from DSHMV upon submission if it's newer than what is on file.
- User acceptance testing calendar will be published so that every county has a chance to test the system.
- Two projects going at DHSMV
  - Customers at DHSMV will start allowing customers to enter their own data for voter reg selections instead of asking customer (April 2019). But will take years until all DLs are converted to new format. 2026 will be when the mag stripe licenses will have expired.
  - New DL format coming- totally different. Will have a mag stripes...for a while (couple of years).
     Moving to 2D bar codes and special features law enforcement has requested. Double the number of security features, some unique to FL. 2D barcode is the national standard.

Voting Tabulation Districts

- Suggestion program begins at the end of this year. December 2017 thru May 2018
- Try to get block boundary suggestion to the Census Bureau using VTD boundaries.
- Initial delineation Dec 17-May 18
- Verification Dec 18-May 19
- Final Verification Dec 20-March 21
- Mark would like Johnny to try and get into the program. If you participate in the first 2 phases, you can be part of the final verification project. Contact Jay Ferrin with the Senate Redistricting or James Whitehurst with US Census.

Civic Engagement

- Kids Voting- Florida #1, Leon ranked #7 in state with 14,000 participants; Leon #5 by % ranking (50%)
- Double Click Democracy allows for computer based voting
- Webinar on June 28 for FL Kids Voting 10-11 am
- Dates for 2018 General start in August and voting occurs between Sept 10 and Nov 6 for participating counties
- Florida has one of the weakest Civics Cultures in the Nation according to Census indicators.
- Sandra Day O'Connor Civics Act establishes reading criteria
- School engagement- find the person responsible for Civics for the School system and talk with them.
- Empowering students to make informed decisions. Provide information for students.
- Maybe SOEs should have an internship from university for each spring semester to help with KIDS Voting

- Definition of CI comes from Patriot Act. Sec. 1016(e)
- Created in 2001 as result of Sept 11 terrorist acts
- Presidential Policy Directive 21 (PPD 21) and NIPP work together
- DHS is lead agency
- Clearinghouse.gov has EAC list of questions.
- EAC wants to be listed as Co-SAA to give access to local officials.

Confrontation Avoidance and Dealing with Active Intruder

- 3 steps
  - Ask- ask the person how you can help
  - Advise if they persist, then advise them what will happen next
  - o Tell- If all else fails, call law enforcement and tell them to leave
- First option is to run from active intruder. The hide, then fight

Office Security

- Extra patrols on election night and during EV
- Invite emergency management staff and law enforcement to office
- Have a Control Plan for building access.
- Clean desk policy for front office
- Visitor badges for guests
- Have an evacuation plan that covers exiting the building
- · Suspicious mail plan; isolate the package

Elections as critical infrastructure

Christy McCormick cmccormich@eac.gov

- Definition of CI comes from Patriot Act. Sec. 1016(e)
- Created in 2001 as result of Sept 11 terrorist acts
- Presidential Policy Directive 21 (PPD 21) and NIPP work together
- DHS is lead agency
- Clearinghouse.gov has EAC list of questions.
- EAC wants to be listed as Co-SAA to give access to local officials.

Confrontation Avoidance

- Confrontation Avoidance, 3 steps
  - Ask- ask the person how you can help
  - Advise if they persist, then advise them what will happen next
  - o Tell- If all else fails, call law enforcement and tell them to leave

Dealing with Active Intruder

First option is to run from active intruder. Then hide, then fight

Office Security

- Extra patrols on election night and during EV
- Invite emergency management staff and law enforcement to office
- Have a Control Plan for building access.
- Clean desk policy for front office
- Visitor badges for guests
- Have an evacuation plan that covers exiting the building
- Suspicious mail plan; isolate the package
- Bomb threat documentation. DHS has handout.
- Bomb sweeping for office night before election and all entering the facility
- Is there a Sheriff Reserve program in place? Most reserves required to give 8 hours service
- Video Run Hide Fight from Homeland Security
- Hillsborough does not allow back packs in warehouse

OVR

- Address validation is from the county street files. Only validates residence address if you use lookup feature
- OVR splash page up now; https://registertovoteflorida.gov/
- DHSMV required to verify name, DOB and DL #
- OVR system does not retain any information from a completed transaction.
- How fast will it be to register online? Depends on verification times.

- System requires user to enter the name exactly as it appears on DL
- Will be available in Spanish and English
- If the OVR system is not available, it will direct to paper option
- Session remains active for 15 minutes, then clear out
- Unique identifier is transaction number, never repeated
- Real time transactions upon submission of application
- Signature will be pulled from DHSMV upon submission if it's newer than what is on file.
- User acceptance testing calendar will be published so that every county has a chance to test the system.
- Two projects going at DHSMV
  - DHSMV will start allowing customers to enter their own data for voter reg selections instead of asking customer (April 2019).
  - Will take years until all DLs are converted to new format. 2026 will be when the mag stripe licenses will have expired.
  - New DL format coming- totally different. Will have a mag stripes...for a while (couple of years).
     Moving to 2D bar codes and special features law enforcement has requested. Double the number of security features, some unique to FL. 2D barcode is the national standard.

Voting Tabulation Districts

- Suggestion program begins at the end of this year. December 2017 thru May 2018
- Try to get block boundary suggestion to the Census Bureau using VTD boundaries.
- Initial delineation Dec 17-May 18
- Verification Dec 18-May 19
- Final Verification Dec 20-March 21
- Mark would like Johnny to try and get into the program. If you participate in the first 2 phases, you can be part of the final verification project. Contact Jay Ferrin with the Senate Redistricting or James Whitehurst with US Census.

Civic Engagement

- Kids Voting- Florida #1, Leon ranked #7 in state with 14,000 participants; Leon #5 by % ranking (50%)
- Double Click Democracy allows for computer based voting
- Webinar on June 28 for FL Kids Voting 10-11 am
- Dates for 2018 General start in August and voting occurs between Sept 10 and Nov 6 for participating counties
- Florida has one of the weakest Civics Cultures in the Nation according to Census indicators.
- Sandra Day O'Connor Civics Act establishes reading criteria
- School engagement- find the person responsible for Civics for the School system and talk with them.
- Empowering students to make informed decisions. Provide information for students.
- Maybe SOEs should have an internship from university for each spring semester to help with KIDS Voting

Florida House on the Hill- supported by 110 Trustees. In DC

- Partner with the Philadelphia based Nat'l Constitution Center
- Teach about separation of powers and Bill of Rights
- Constitution Day Sept 18
- New adopted Bill/ legislation 2017: (takes effect 2019)
  - o establishing Sept as Founders Month- schools work together
  - o Civics test for incoming Freshman- must pass or take remedial Civics course in college.

Election Integrity- David Becker, Center for Election Innovation and Research dbecker@electioninnovatioon.org, @beckerdavidj on social media

- Authored article cited by candidate and Pres Trump regarding voter fraud. His article was used out of context and no data supports allegations of "millions" of illegal votes cast in 2016.
- Fraud rates are below 0.001%. Non-existent problem.
- Extensive information exists that attempts were made by Russian operatives against the US
- 2 known hacks exist
  - State of Illinois- statewide database hacked, was discovered by increased server activity. Data was taken but not altered. Hacks ultimately are to be found out to sow seeds of distrust.
     Conversations going on now help that effort.
  - o Arizona statewide database hacked but not breeched.
- Other 3rd party systems attacked as well (VR and Kennesaw St)
- Probably prudent to increase Prov Ballot materials at voting locations in case reg data is attacked/altered/erased
- Democracy Fund research released in Dec 2016 regarding voter confidence
- Recommendations
  - Rely on facts and evidence solely
  - o Election officials are part of the solution, not the problem
  - Acknowledge that threat will not go away.
  - Stronger audits will be necessary
  - Good practice to analyze mail ballot requests (for location and number of ballots mailed)
  - Review of Security Protocols and training
  - Better 2-way communication between intelligence officials, federal govt and local officials.
     Primarily a Fed problem in that they are not sharing information.
  - Re-invest in elections infrastructure

Sent: Saturday, June 24, 2017 11:12 AM EDT

made a couple of revisions upon review, specifically showing the difference in the discussion about confrontation solving and active shooters from the Sheriff Deputy.

This version shows the difference in suggested responses. It was not that clear in the first version, so I want to make sure there is no misunderstanding. These are for two totally different situations.

Elections as critical infrastructure

Christy McCormick cmccormich@eac.gov

- Definition of CI comes from Patriot Act. Sec. 1016(e)
- Created in 2001 as result of Sept 11 terrorist acts
- Presidential Policy Directive 21 (PPD 21) and NIPP work together
- DHS is lead agency
- Clearinghouse.gov has EAC list of questions.
- EAC wants to be listed as Co-SAA to give access to local officials.

Confrontation Avoidance

- Confrontation Avoidance, 3 steps
  - Ask- ask the person how you can help
  - Advise if they persist, then advise them what will happen next
  - o Tell- If all else fails, call law enforcement and tell them to leave

Dealing with Active Intruder

First option is to run from active intruder. Then hide, then fight

Office Security

- Extra patrols on election night and during EV
- Invite emergency management staff and law enforcement to office
- Have a Control Plan for building access.
- Clean desk policy for front office
- Visitor badges for guests
- Have an evacuation plan that covers exiting the building
- Suspicious mail plan; isolate the package
- · Bomb threat documentation. DHS has handout.
- Bomb sweeping for office night before election and all entering the facility
- Is there a Sheriff Reserve program in place? Most reserves required to give 8 hours service
- Video Run Hide Fight from Homeland Security
- Hillsborough does not allow back packs in warehouse

OVR

- Address validation is from the county street files. Only validates residence address if you use lookup feature
- OVR splash page up now; https://registertovoteflorida.gov/
- DHSMV required to verify name, DOB and DL #
- OVR system does not retain any information from a completed transaction.
- How fast will it be to register online? Depends on verification times.

- System requires user to enter the name exactly as it appears on DL
- Will be available in Spanish and English
- If the OVR system is not available, it will direct to paper option
- Session remains active for 15 minutes, then clear out
- Unique identifier is transaction number, never repeated
- Real time transactions upon submission of application
- Signature will be pulled from DHSMV upon submission if it's newer than what is on file.
- User acceptance testing calendar will be published so that every county has a chance to test the system.
- Two projects going at DHSMV
  - DHSMV will start allowing customers to enter their own data for voter reg selections instead of asking customer (April 2019).
  - Will take years until all DLs are converted to new format. 2026 will be when the mag stripe licenses will have expired.

made a couple of revisions upon review, specifically showing the difference in the discussion about confrontation solving and active shooters from the Sheriff Deputy.

This version shows the difference in suggested responses. It was not that clear in the first version, so I want to make sure there is no misunderstanding. These are for two totally different situations.

Elections as critical infrastructure

Christy McCormick cmccormich@eac.gov

- Definition of CI comes from Patriot Act. Sec. 1016(e)
- Created in 2001 as result of Sept 11 terrorist acts
- Presidential Policy Directive 21 (PPD 21) and NIPP work together
- DHS is lead agency
- Clearinghouse.gov has EAC list of questions.
- EAC wants to be listed as Co-SAA to give access to local officials.

Confrontation Avoidance

- Confrontation Avoidance, 3 steps
  - Ask- ask the person how you can help
  - Advise if they persist, then advise them what will happen next
  - o Tell- If all else fails, call law enforcement and tell them to leave

Dealing with Active Intruder

First option is to run from active intruder. Then hide, then fight

Office Security

- Extra patrols on election night and during EV
- Invite emergency management staff and law enforcement to office
- Have a Control Plan for building access.
- Clean desk policy for front office
- Visitor badges for guests
- Have an evacuation plan that covers exiting the building
- Suspicious mail plan; isolate the package
- Bomb threat documentation. DHS has handout.
- Bomb sweeping for office night before election and all entering the facility
- Is there a Sheriff Reserve program in place? Most reserves required to give 8 hours service
- Video Run Hide Fight from Homeland Security
- Hillsborough does not allow back packs in warehouse

OVR

- Address validation is from the county street files. Only validates residence address if you use lookup feature
- OVR splash page up now; https://registertovoteflorida.gov/
- DHSMV required to verify name, DOB and DL #
- OVR system does not retain any information from a completed transaction.
- How fast will it be to register online? Depends on verification times.

- System requires user to enter the name exactly as it appears on DL
- Will be available in Spanish and English
- If the OVR system is not available, it will direct to paper option
- · Session remains active for 15 minutes, then clear out
- Unique identifier is transaction number, never repeated
- Real time transactions upon submission of application
- Signature will be pulled from DHSMV upon submission if it's newer than what is on file.
- User acceptance testing calendar will be published so that every county has a chance to test the system.
- Two projects going at DHSMV
  - DHSMV will start allowing customers to enter their own data for voter reg selections instead of asking customer (April 2019).
  - Will take years until all DLs are converted to new format. 2026 will be when the mag stripe licenses will have expired.
  - New DL format coming- totally different. Will have a mag stripes...for a while (couple of years).
     Moving to 2D bar codes and special features law enforcement has requested. Double the number of security features, some unique to FL. 2D barcode is the national standard.

Voting Tabulation Districts

- Suggestion program begins at the end of this year. December 2017 thru May 2018
- Try to get block boundary suggestion to the Census Bureau using VTD boundaries.
- Initial delineation Dec 17-May 18
- Verification Dec 18-May 19
- Final Verification Dec 20-March 21
- Mark would like Johnny to try and get into the program. If you participate in the first 2 phases, you can be part of the final verification project. Contact Jay Ferrin with the Senate Redistricting or James Whitehurst with US Census.

Civic Engagement

- Kids Voting- Florida #1, Leon ranked #7 in state with 14,000 participants; Leon #5 by % ranking (50%)
- Double Click Democracy allows for computer based voting
- Webinar on June 28 for FL Kids Voting 10-11 am
- Dates for 2018 General start in August and voting occurs between Sept 10 and Nov 6 for participating counties
- Florida has one of the weakest Civics Cultures in the Nation according to Census indicators.
- Sandra Day O'Connor Civics Act establishes reading criteria
- School engagement- find the person responsible for Civics for the School system and talk with them.
- Empowering students to make informed decisions. Provide information for students.
- Maybe SOEs should have an internship from university for each spring semester to help with KIDS Voting

Florida House on the Hill- supported by 110 Trustees. In DC

- Partner with the Philadelphia based Nat'l Constitution Center
- Teach about separation of powers and Bill of Rights
- Constitution Day Sept 18
- New adopted Bill/ legislation 2017: (takes effect 2019)
  - o establishing Sept as Founders Month- schools work together
  - o Civics test for incoming Freshman- must pass or take remedial Civics course in college.

Elections as critical infrastructure

Christy McCormick cmccormich@eac.gov

- Definition of CI comes from Patriot Act. Sec. 1016(e)
- Created in 2001 as result of Sept 11 terrorist acts
- Presidential Policy Directive 21 (PPD 21) and NIPP work together
- DHS is lead agency
- Clearinghouse.gov has EAC list of questions.
- EAC wants to be listed as Co-SAA to give access to local officials.

Confrontation Avoidance

- Confrontation Avoidance, 3 steps
  - Ask- ask the person how you can help
  - Advise if they persist, then advise them what will happen next
  - o Tell- If all else fails, call law enforcement and tell them to leave

Dealing with Active Intruder

First option is to run from active intruder. Then hide, then fight

Office Security

- Extra patrols on election night and during EV
- Invite emergency management staff and law enforcement to office
- Have a Control Plan for building access.
- Clean desk policy for front office
- Visitor badges for guests
- Have an evacuation plan that covers exiting the building
- Suspicious mail plan; isolate the package
- · Bomb threat documentation. DHS has handout.
- Bomb sweeping for office night before election and all entering the facility
- Is there a Sheriff Reserve program in place? Most reserves required to give 8 hours service
- Video Run Hide Fight from Homeland Security
- Hillsborough does not allow back packs in warehouse

OVR

- Address validation is from the county street files. Only validates residence address if you use lookup feature
- OVR splash page up now; https://registertovoteflorida.gov/
- DHSMV required to verify name, DOB and DL #
- OVR system does not retain any information from a completed transaction.
- How fast will it be to register online? Depends on verification times.

- System requires user to enter the name exactly as it appears on DL
- Will be available in Spanish and English
- If the OVR system is not available, it will direct to paper option
- Session remains active for 15 minutes, then clear out
- Unique identifier is transaction number, never repeated
- Real time transactions upon submission of application
- Signature will be pulled from DHSMV upon submission if it's newer than what is on file.
- User acceptance testing calendar will be published so that every county has a chance to test the system.
- Two projects going at DHSMV
  - DHSMV will start allowing customers to enter their own data for voter reg selections instead of asking customer (April 2019).
  - Will take years until all DLs are converted to new format. 2026 will be when the mag stripe licenses will have expired.
  - New DL format coming- totally different. Will have a mag stripes...for a while (couple of years).
     Moving to 2D bar codes and special features law enforcement has requested. Double the number of security features, some unique to FL. 2D barcode is the national standard.

Voting Tabulation Districts

- Suggestion program begins at the end of this year. December 2017 thru May 2018
- Try to get block boundary suggestion to the Census Bureau using VTD boundaries.
- Initial delineation Dec 17-May 18
- Verification Dec 18-May 19
- Final Verification Dec 20-March 21
- Mark would like Johnny to try and get into the program. If you participate in the first 2 phases, you can be part of the final verification project. Contact Jay Ferrin with the Senate Redistricting or James Whitehurst with US Census.

Civic Engagement

- Kids Voting- Florida #1, Leon ranked #7 in state with 14,000 participants; Leon #5 by % ranking (50%)
- Double Click Democracy allows for computer based voting
- Webinar on June 28 for FL Kids Voting 10-11 am
- Dates for 2018 General start in August and voting occurs between Sept 10 and Nov 6 for participating counties
- Florida has one of the weakest Civics Cultures in the Nation according to Census indicators.
- Sandra Day O'Connor Civics Act establishes reading criteria
- School engagement- find the person responsible for Civics for the School system and talk with them.
- Empowering students to make informed decisions. Provide information for students.
- Maybe SOEs should have an internship from university for each spring semester to help with KIDS Voting

Florida House on the Hill- supported by 110 Trustees. In DC

- Partner with the Philadelphia based Nat'l Constitution Center
- Teach about separation of powers and Bill of Rights
- Constitution Day Sept 18
- New adopted Bill/ legislation 2017: (takes effect 2019)
  - o establishing Sept as Founders Month- schools work together
  - o Civics test for incoming Freshman- must pass or take remedial Civics course in college.

Election Integrity- David Becker, Center for Election Innovation and Research dbecker@electioninnovatioon.org, @beckerdavidj on social media

- Authored article cited by candidate and Pres Trump regarding voter fraud. His article was used out of context and no data supports allegations of "millions" of illegal votes cast in 2016.
- Fraud rates are below 0.001%. Non-existent problem.
- Extensive information exists that attempts were made by Russian operatives against the US
- 2 known hacks exist
  - State of Illinois- statewide database hacked, was discovered by increased server activity. Data was taken but not altered. Hacks ultimately are to be found out to sow seeds of distrust.
     Conversations going on now help that effort.
  - Arizona statewide database hacked but not breeched.
- Other 3rd party systems attacked as well (VR and Kennesaw St)
- Probably prudent to increase Prov Ballot materials at voting locations in case reg data is attacked/altered/erased
- Democracy Fund research released in Dec 2016 regarding voter confidence
- Recommendations
  - Rely on facts and evidence solely
  - o Election officials are part of the solution, not the problem
  - Acknowledge that threat will not go away.
  - Stronger audits will be necessary
  - Good practice to analyze mail ballot requests (for location and number of ballots mailed)
  - Review of Security Protocols and training
  - Better 2-way communication between intelligence officials, federal govt and local officials.
     Primarily a Fed problem in that they are not sharing information.
  - Re-invest in elections infrastructure

Sent: Saturday, June 24, 2017 11:12 AM EDT

made a couple of revisions upon review, specifically showing the difference in the discussion about confrontation solving and active shooters from the Sheriff Deputy.

This version shows the difference in suggested responses. It was not that clear in the first version, so I want to make sure there is no misunderstanding. These are for two totally different situations.

Elections as critical infrastructure

Christy McCormick cmccormich@eac.gov

- Definition of CI comes from Patriot Act. Sec. 1016(e)
- Created in 2001 as result of Sept 11 terrorist acts
- Presidential Policy Directive 21 (PPD 21) and NIPP work together
- DHS is lead agency
- Clearinghouse.gov has EAC list of questions.
- EAC wants to be listed as Co-SAA to give access to local officials.

Confrontation Avoidance

- Confrontation Avoidance, 3 steps
  - Ask- ask the person how you can help
  - Advise if they persist, then advise them what will happen next
  - o Tell- If all else fails, call law enforcement and tell them to leave

Dealing with Active Intruder

First option is to run from active intruder. Then hide, then fight

Office Security

- Extra patrols on election night and during EV
- Invite emergency management staff and law enforcement to office
- Have a Control Plan for building access.
- Clean desk policy for front office
- Visitor badges for guests
- Have an evacuation plan that covers exiting the building
- Suspicious mail plan; isolate the package
- Bomb threat documentation. DHS has handout.
- Bomb sweeping for office night before election and all entering the facility
- Is there a Sheriff Reserve program in place? Most reserves required to give 8 hours service
- Video Run Hide Fight from Homeland Security
- Hillsborough does not allow back packs in warehouse

OVR

- Address validation is from the county street files. Only validates residence address if you use lookup feature
- OVR splash page up now; https://registertovoteflorida.gov/
- DHSMV required to verify name, DOB and DL #
- OVR system does not retain any information from a completed transaction.
- How fast will it be to register online? Depends on verification times.

- System requires user to enter the name exactly as it appears on DL
- Will be available in Spanish and English
- If the OVR system is not available, it will direct to paper option
- Session remains active for 15 minutes, then clear out
- Unique identifier is transaction number, never repeated
- Real time transactions upon submission of application
- Signature will be pulled from DHSMV upon submission if it's newer than what is on file.
- User acceptance testing calendar will be published so that every county has a chance to test the system.
- Two projects going at DHSMV
  - DHSMV will start allowing customers to enter their own data for voter reg selections instead of asking customer (April 2019).
  - Will take years until all DLs are converted to new format. 2026 will be when the mag stripe licenses will have expired.
  - New DL format coming- totally different. Will have a mag stripes...for a while (couple of years).
     Moving to 2D bar codes and special features law enforcement has requested. Double the number of security features, some unique to FL. 2D barcode is the national standard.

Voting Tabulation Districts

- Suggestion program begins at the end of this year. December 2017 thru May 2018
- Try to get block boundary suggestion to the Census Bureau using VTD boundaries.
- Initial delineation Dec 17-May 18

  - New DL format coming- totally different. Will have a mag stripes...for a while (couple of years).
     Moving to 2D bar codes and special features law enforcement has requested. Double the number of security features, some unique to FL. 2D barcode is the national standard.

Voting Tabulation Districts

- Suggestion program begins at the end of this year. December 2017 thru May 2018
- Try to get block boundary suggestion to the Census Bureau using VTD boundaries.
- Initial delineation Dec 17-May 18
- Verification Dec 18-May 19
- Final Verification Dec 20-March 21
- Mark would like Johnny to try and get into the program. If you participate in the first 2 phases, you can be part of the final verification project. Contact Jay Ferrin with the Senate Redistricting or James Whitehurst with US Census.

Civic Engagement

- Kids Voting- Florida #1, Leon ranked #7 in state with 14,000 participants; Leon #5 by % ranking (50%)
- Double Click Democracy allows for computer based voting
- Webinar on June 28 for FL Kids Voting 10-11 am
- Dates for 2018 General start in August and voting occurs between Sept 10 and Nov 6 for participating counties
- Florida has one of the weakest Civics Cultures in the Nation according to Census indicators.
- Sandra Day O'Connor Civics Act establishes reading criteria
- School engagement- find the person responsible for Civics for the School system and talk with them.
- Empowering students to make informed decisions. Provide information for students.
- Maybe SOEs should have an internship from university for each spring semester to help with KIDS Voting

Florida House on the Hill- supported by 110 Trustees. In DC

- Partner with the Philadelphia based Nat'l Constitution Center
- Teach about separation of powers and Bill of Rights
- Constitution Day Sept 18
- New adopted Bill/ legislation 2017: (takes effect 2019)
  - o establishing Sept as Founders Month- schools work together
  - o Civics test for incoming Freshman- must pass or take remedial Civics course in college.

- Authored article cited by candidate and Pres Trump regarding voter fraud. His article was used out of context and no data supports allegations of "millions" of illegal votes cast in 2016.
- Fraud rates are below 0.001%. Non-existent problem.
- Extensive information exists that attempts were made by Russian operatives against the US
- 2 known hacks exist
  - State of Illinois- statewide database hacked, was discovered by increased server activity. Data was taken but not altered. Hacks ultimately are to be found out to sow seeds of distrust.
     Conversations going on now help that effort.
  - Arizona statewide database hacked but not breeched.
- Other 3rd party systems attacked as well (VR and Kennesaw St)
- Probably prudent to increase Prov Ballot materials at voting locations in case reg data is attacked/altered/erased
- Democracy Fund research released in Dec 2016 regarding voter confidence
- Recommendations
  - Rely on facts and evidence solely
  - o Election officials are part of the solution, not the problem
  - Acknowledge that threat will not go away.
  - Stronger audits will be necessary
  - Good practice to analyze mail ballot requests (for location and number of ballots mailed)
  - Review of Security Protocols and training
  - Better 2-way communication between intelligence officials, federal govt and local officials.
     Primarily a Fed problem in that they are not sharing information.
  - Re-invest in elections infrastructure

Elections as critical infrastructure

Christy McCormick cmccormich@eac.gov

- Definition of CI comes from Patriot Act. Sec. 1016(e)
- Created in 2001 as result of Sept 11 terrorist acts
- Presidential Policy Directive 21 (PPD 21) and NIPP work together
- DHS is lead agency
- Clearinghouse.gov has EAC list of questions.
- EAC wants to be listed as Co-SAA to give access to local officials.

Confrontation Avoidance

- Confrontation Avoidance, 3 steps
  - Ask- ask the person how you can help
  - Advise if they persist, then advise them what will happen next
  - o Tell- If all else fails, call law enforcement and tell them to leave

Dealing with Active Intruder

First option is to run from active intruder. Then hide, then fight

Office Security

- Extra patrols on election night and during EV
- Invite emergency management staff and law enforcement to office
- Have a Control Plan for building access.
- Clean desk policy for front office
- Visitor badges for guests
- Have an evacuation plan that covers exiting the building
- Suspicious mail plan; isolate the package
- Bomb threat documentation. DHS has handout.
- Bomb sweeping for office night before election and all entering the facility
- Is there a Sheriff Reserve program in place? Most reserves required to give 8 hours service
- Video Run Hide Fight from Homeland Security
- Hillsborough does not allow back packs in warehouse

OVR

- Address validation is from the county street files. Only validates residence address if you use lookup feature
- OVR splash page up now; https://registertovoteflorida.gov/
- DHSMV required to verify name, DOB and DL #
- OVR system does not retain any information from a completed transaction.
- How fast will it be to register online? Depends on verification times.

- System requires user to enter the name exactly as it appears on DL
- Will be available in Spanish and English
- If the OVR system is not available, it will direct to paper option
- Session remains active for 15 minutes, then clear out
- Unique identifier is transaction number, never repeated
- Real time transactions upon submission of application
- Signature will be pulled from DHSMV upon submission if it's newer than what is on file.
- User acceptance testing calendar will be published so that every county has a chance to test the system.
- Two projects going at DHSMV
  - DHSMV will start allowing customers to enter their own data for voter reg selections instead of asking customer (April 2019).
  - Will take years until all DLs are converted to new format. 2026 will be when the mag stripe licenses will have expired.
  - New DL format coming- totally different. Will have a mag stripes...for a while (couple of years).

- Signature will be pulled from DHSMV upon submission if it's newer than what is on file.
- User acceptance testing calendar will be published so that every county has a chance to test the system.
- Two projects going at DHSMV
  - DHSMV will start allowing customers to enter their own data for voter reg selections instead of asking customer (April 2019).
  - Will take years until all DLs are converted to new format. 2026 will be when the mag stripe licenses will have expired.
  - New DL format coming- totally different. Will have a mag stripes...for a while (couple of years).
     Moving to 2D bar codes and special features law enforcement has requested. Double the number of security features, some unique to FL. 2D barcode is the national standard.

Voting Tabulation Districts

- Suggestion program begins at the end of this year. December 2017 thru May 2018
- Try to get block boundary suggestion to the Census Bureau using VTD boundaries.
- Initial delineation Dec 17-May 18
- Verification Dec 18-May 19
- Final Verification Dec 20-March 21
- Mark would like Johnny to try and get into the program. If you participate in the first 2 phases, you can be part of the final verification project. Contact Jay Ferrin with the Senate Redistricting or James Whitehurst with US Census.

Civic Engagement

- Kids Voting- Florida #1, Leon ranked #7 in state with 14,000 participants; Leon #5 by % ranking (50%)
- Double Click Democracy allows for computer based voting
- Webinar on June 28 for FL Kids Voting 10-11 am
- Dates for 2018 General start in August and voting occurs between Sept 10 and Nov 6 for participating counties
- Florida has one of the weakest Civics Cultures in the Nation according to Census indicators.
- Sandra Day O'Connor Civics Act establishes reading criteria
- School engagement- find the person responsible for Civics for the School system and talk with them.
- Empowering students to make informed decisions. Provide information for students.
- Maybe SOEs should have an internship from university for each spring semester to help with KIDS Voting

Florida House on the Hill- supported by 110 Trustees. In DC

Office Security

- Extra patrols on election night and during EV
- Invite emergency management staff and law enforcement to office
- Have a Control Plan for building access.
- Clean desk policy for front office
- Visitor badges for guests
- Have an evacuation plan that covers exiting the building
- Suspicious mail plan; isolate the package
- · Bomb threat documentation. DHS has handout.
- Bomb sweeping for office night before election and all entering the facility
- Is there a Sheriff Reserve program in place? Most reserves required to give 8 hours service
- Video Run Hide Fight from Homeland Security
- Hillsborough does not allow back packs in warehouse

OVR

- Address validation is from the county street files. Only validates residence address if you use lookup feature

- Signature will be pulled from DHSMV upon submission if it's newer than what is on file.
- User acceptance testing calendar will be published so that every county has a chance to test the system.
- Two projects going at DHSMV
  - DHSMV will start allowing customers to enter their own data for voter reg selections instead of asking customer (April 2019).
  - Will take years until all DLs are converted to new format. 2026 will be when the mag stripe licenses will have expired.
  - New DL format coming- totally different. Will have a mag stripes...for a while (couple of years).
     Moving to 2D bar codes and special features law enforcement has requested. Double the number of security features, some unique to FL. 2D barcode is the national standard.

Voting Tabulation Districts

- Suggestion program begins at the end of this year. December 2017 thru May 2018
- Try to get block boundary suggestion to the Census Bureau using VTD boundaries.
- Initial delineation Dec 17-May 18
- Verification Dec 18-May 19
- Final Verification Dec 20-March 21
- Mark would like Johnny to try and get into the program. If you participate in the first 2 phases, you can be part of the final verification project. Contact Jay Ferrin with the Senate Redistricting or James Whitehurst with US Census.

Civic Engagement

- Kids Voting- Florida #1, Leon ranked #7 in state with 14,000 participants; Leon #5 by % ranking (50%)
- Double Click Democracy allows for computer based voting
- Webinar on June 28 for FL Kids Voting 10-11 am
- Dates for 2018 General start in August and voting occurs between Sept 10 and Nov 6 for participating counties
- Florida has one of the weakest Civics Cultures in the Nation according to Census indicators.
- Sandra Day O'Connor Civics Act establishes reading criteria
- School engagement- find the person responsible for Civics for the School system and talk with them.
- Empowering students to make informed decisions. Provide information for students.
- Maybe SOEs should have an internship from university for each spring semester to help with KIDS Voting

Florida House on the Hill- supported by 110 Trustees. In DC

- Partner with the Philadelphia based Nat'l Constitution Center
- Teach about separation of powers and Bill of Rights
- Constitution Day Sept 18
- New adopted Bill/ legislation 2017: (takes effect 2019)
  - o establishing Sept as Founders Month- schools work together
  - o Civics test for incoming Freshman- must pass or take remedial Civics course in college.

Office Security

- Extra patrols on election night and during EV
- Invite emergency management staff and law enforcement to office
- Have a Control Plan for building access.
- Clean desk policy for front office
- Visitor badges for guests
- Have an evacuation plan that covers exiting the building
- Suspicious mail plan; isolate the package
- Bomb threat documentation. DHS has handout.
- Bomb sweeping for office night before election and all entering the facility
- Is there a Sheriff Reserve program in place? Most reserves required to give 8 hours service
- Video Run Hide Fight from Homeland Security
- Hillsborough does not allow back packs in warehouse

  - New DL format coming- totally different. Will have a mag stripes...for a while (couple of years).
     Moving to 2D bar codes and special features law enforcement has requested. Double the number of security features, some unique to FL. 2D barcode is the national standard.

Voting Tabulation Districts

- Suggestion program begins at the end of this year. December 2017 thru May 2018
- Try to get block boundary suggestion to the Census Bureau using VTD boundaries.
- Initial delineation Dec 17-May 18
- Verification Dec 18-May 19
- Final Verification Dec 20-March 21
- Mark would like Johnny to try and get into the program. If you participate in the first 2 phases, you can be part of the final verification project. Contact Jay Ferrin with the Senate Redistricting or James Whitehurst with US Census.

Civic Engagement

- Kids Voting- Florida #1, Leon ranked #7 in state with 14,000 participants; Leon #5 by % ranking (50%)
- Double Click Democracy allows for computer based voting
- Webinar on June 28 for FL Kids Voting 10-11 am
- Dates for 2018 General start in August and voting occurs between Sept 10 and Nov 6 for participating counties
- Florida has one of the weakest Civics Cultures in the Nation according to Census indicators.
- Sandra Day O'Connor Civics Act establishes reading criteria
- School engagement- find the person responsible for Civics for the School system and talk with them.
- Empowering students to make informed decisions. Provide information for students.
- Maybe SOEs should have an internship from university for each spring semester to help with KIDS Voting

Florida House on the Hill- supported by 110 Trustees. In DC

- Partner with the Philadelphia based Nat'l Constitution Center
- Teach about separation of powers and Bill of Rights
- Constitution Day Sept 18

Office Security

- Extra patrols on election night and during EV
- Invite emergency management staff and law enforcement to office
- Have a Control Plan for building access.
- Clean desk policy for front office
- Visitor badges for guests
- Have an evacuation plan that covers exiting the building
- Suspicious mail plan; isolate the package
- · Bomb threat documentation. DHS has handout.
- · Bomb sweeping for office night before election and all entering the facility
- Is there a Sheriff Reserve program in place? Most reserves required to give 8 hours service
- Video Run Hide Fight from Homeland Security
- Hillsborough does not allow back packs in warehouse

OVR

- Address validation is from the county street files. Only validates residence address if you use lookup feature
- OVR splash page up now; https://registertovoteflorida.gov/
- DHSMV required to verify name, DOB and DL #
- OVR system does not retain any information from a completed transaction.
- How fast will it be to register online? Depends on verification times.

- System requires user to enter the name exactly as it appears on DL
- Will be available in Spanish and English
- If the OVR system is not available, it will direct to paper option
- Session remains active for 15 minutes, then clear out
- Unique identifier is transaction number, never repeated
- Real time transactions upon submission of application
- Signature will be pulled from DHSMV upon submission if it's newer than what is on file.
- User acceptance testing calendar will be published so that every county has a chance to test the system.
- Two projects going at DHSMV
  - DHSMV will start allowing customers to enter their own data for voter reg selections instead of asking customer (April 2019).
  - Will take years until all DLs are converted to new format. 2026 will be when the mag stripe licenses will have expired.

Elections as critical infrastructure

Christy McCormick cmccormich@eac.gov

- Definition of CI comes from Patriot Act. Sec. 1016(e)
- Created in 2001 as result of Sept 11 terrorist acts
- Presidential Policy Directive 21 (PPD 21) and NIPP work together
- DHS is lead agency
- Clearinghouse.gov has EAC list of questions.
- EAC wants to be listed as Co-SAA to give access to local officials.

  - Advise if they persist, then advise them what will happen next
  - o Tell- If all else fails, call law enforcement and tell them to leave

Dealing with Active Intruder

First option is to run from active intruder. Then hide, then fight

Office Security

- Extra patrols on election night and during EV
- Invite emergency management staff and law enforcement to office
- Have a Control Plan for building access.
- Clean desk policy for front office
- Visitor badges for guests
- Have an evacuation plan that covers exiting the building
- Suspicious mail plan; isolate the package
- Bomb threat documentation. DHS has handout.
- Bomb sweeping for office night before election and all entering the facility
- Is there a Sheriff Reserve program in place? Most reserves required to give 8 hours service
- Video Run Hide Fight from Homeland Security
- Hillsborough does not allow back packs in warehouse

OVR

- Address validation is from the county street files. Only validates residence address if you use lookup feature
- OVR splash page up now; https://registertovoteflorida.gov/
- DHSMV required to verify name, DOB and DL #
- OVR system does not retain any information from a completed transaction.
- How fast will it be to register online? Depends on verification times.

- System requires user to enter the name exactly as it appears on DL
- Will be available in Spanish and English
- If the OVR system is not available, it will direct to paper option
- Session remains active for 15 minutes, then clear out
- Unique identifier is transaction number, never repeated
- Real time transactions upon submission of application
- Signature will be pulled from DHSMV upon submission if it's newer than what is on file.
- User acceptance testing calendar will be published so that every county has a chance to test the system.
- Two projects going at DHSMV
  - DHSMV will start allowing customers to enter their own data for voter reg selections instead of asking customer (April 2019).
  - Will take years until all DLs are converted to new format. 2026 will be when the mag stripe licenses will have expired.
  - New DL format coming- totally different. Will have a mag stripes...for a while (couple of years).
     Moving to 2D bar codes and special features law enforcement has requested. Double the number of security features, some unique to FL. 2D barcode is the national standard.

Voting Tabulation Districts

- Suggestion program begins at the end of this year. December 2017 thru May 2018
- Try to get block boundary suggestion to the Census Bureau using VTD boundaries.
- Initial delineation Dec 17-May 18
- Verification Dec 18-May 19
- Final Verification Dec 20-March 21
- Mark would like Johnny to try and get into the program. If you participate in the first 2 phases, you can be part of the final verification project. Contact Jay Ferrin with the Senate Redistricting or James Whitehurst with US Census.

made a couple of revisions upon review, specifically showing the difference in the discussion about confrontation solving and active shooters from the Sheriff Deputy.

This version shows the difference in suggested responses. It was not that clear in the first version, so I want to make sure there is no misunderstanding. These are for two totally different situations.

Confrontation Avoidance

- · Confrontation Avoidance, 3 steps
  - o Ask- ask the person how you can help
  - o Advise if they persist, then advise them what will happen next
  - o Tell- If all else fails, call law enforcement and tell them to leave

Dealing with Active Intruder

· First option is to run from active intruder. Then hide, then fight

Elections as critical infrastructure

Christy McCormick cmccormich@eac.gov

- Definition of CI comes from Patriot Act. Sec. 1016(e)
- Created in 2001 as result of Sept 11 terrorist acts
- Presidential Policy Directive 21 (PPD 21) and NIPP work together
- DHS is lead agency
- Clearinghouse.gov has EAC list of questions.
- EAC wants to be listed as Co-SAA to give access to local officials.

Confrontation Avoidance

- Confrontation Avoidance, 3 steps
  - Ask- ask the person how you can help
  - Advise if they persist, then advise them what will happen next
  - o Tell- If all else fails, call law enforcement and tell them to leave

Dealing with Active Intruder

First option is to run from active intruder. Then hide, then fight

Office Security

- Extra patrols on election night and during EV
- Invite emergency management staff and law enforcement to office
- Have a Control Plan for building access.
- Clean desk policy for front office
- Visitor badges for guests
- Have an evacuation plan that covers exiting the building
- Suspicious mail plan; isolate the package
- Bomb threat documentation. DHS has handout.
- Bomb sweeping for office night before election and all entering the facility
- Is there a Sheriff Reserve program in place? Most reserves required to give 8 hours service
- Video Run Hide Fight from Homeland Security
- Hillsborough does not allow back packs in warehouse

OVR

- Address validation is from the county street files. Only validates residence address if you use lookup feature
- OVR splash page up now; https://registertovoteflorida.gov/
- DHSMV required to verify name, DOB and DL #
- OVR system does not retain any information from a completed transaction.
- How fast will it be to register online? Depends on verification times.

- System requires user to enter the name exactly as it appears on DL
- Will be available in Spanish and English
- If the OVR system is not available, it will direct to paper option
- Session remains active for 15 minutes, then clear out
- Unique identifier is transaction number, never repeated
- Real time transactions upon submission of application
- Signature will be pulled from DHSMV upon submission if it's newer than what is on file.
- User acceptance testing calendar will be published so that every county has a chance to test the system.
- Two projects going at DHSMV
  - DHSMV will start allowing customers to enter their own data for voter reg selections instead of asking customer (April 2019).
  - Will take years until all DLs are converted to new format. 2026 will be when the mag stripe licenses will have expired.
  - New DL format coming- totally different. Will have a mag stripes...for a while (couple of years).
     Moving to 2D bar codes and special features law enforcement has requested. Double the number of security features, some unique to FL. 2D barcode is the national standard.

Voting Tabulation Districts

- Suggestion program begins at the end of this year. December 2017 thru May 2018
- Try to get block boundary suggestion to the Census Bureau using VTD boundaries.
- Initial delineation Dec 17-May 18
- Verification Dec 18-May 19
- Final Verification Dec 20-March 21
- Mark would like Johnny to try and get into the program. If you participate in the first 2 phases, you can be part of the final verification project. Contact Jay Ferrin with the Senate Redistricting or James Whitehurst with US Census.

Civic Engagement

- Kids Voting- Florida #1, Leon ranked #7 in state with 14,000 participants; Leon #5 by % ranking (50%)
- Double Click Democracy allows for computer based voting
- Webinar on June 28 for FL Kids Voting 10-11 am
- Dates for 2018 General start in August and voting occurs between Sept 10 and Nov 6 for participating counties
- Florida has one of the weakest Civics Cultures in the Nation according to Census indicators.
- Sandra Day O'Connor Civics Act establishes reading criteria
- School engagement- find the person responsible for Civics for the School system and talk with them.
- Empowering students to make informed decisions. Provide information for students.
- Maybe SOEs should have an internship from university for each spring semester to help with KIDS Voting

Florida House on the Hill- supported by 110 Trustees. In DC

- Partner with the Philadelphia based Nat'l Constitution Center
- Teach about separation of powers and Bill of Rights
- Constitution Day Sept 18
- New adopted Bill/ legislation 2017: (takes effect 2019)
  - o establishing Sept as Founders Month- schools work together
  - o Civics test for incoming Freshman- must pass or take remedial Civics course in college.

Election Integrity- David Becker, Center for Election Innovation and Research dbecker@electioninnovatioon.org, @beckerdavidj on social media

- Authored article cited by candidate and Pres Trump regarding voter fraud. His article was used out of context and no data supports allegations of "millions" of illegal votes cast in 2016.
- Fraud rates are below 0.001%. Non-existent problem.
- Extensive information exists that attempts were made by Russian operatives against the US
- 2 known hacks exist
  - State of Illinois- statewide database hacked, was discovered by increased server activity. Data was taken but not altered. Hacks ultimately are to be found out to sow seeds of distrust.
     Conversations going on now help that effort.
  - o Arizona statewide database hacked but not breeched.
- Other 3rd party systems attacked as well (VR and Kennesaw St)
- Probably prudent to increase Prov Ballot materials at voting locations in case reg data is attacked/altered/erased
- Democracy Fund research released in Dec 2016 regarding voter confidence
- Recommendations
  - Rely on facts and evidence solely
  - o Election officials are part of the solution, not the problem
  - Acknowledge that threat will not go away.
  - Stronger audits will be necessary
  - Good practice to analyze mail ballot requests (for location and number of ballots mailed)
  - Review of Security Protocols and training
  - Better 2-way communication between intelligence officials, federal govt and local officials.
     Primarily a Fed problem in that they are not sharing information.
  - Re-invest in elections infrastructure

made a couple of revisions upon review, specifically showing the difference in the discussion about confrontation solving and active shooters from the Sheriff Deputy.

This version shows the difference in suggested responses. It was not that clear in the first version, so I want to make sure there is no misunderstanding. These are for two totally different situations.

Confrontation Avoidance

- · Confrontation Avoidance, 3 steps -
- o Ask- ask the person how you can help
- o Advise if they persist, then advise them what will happen next
- o Tell- If all else fails, call law enforcement and tell them to leave

Dealing with Active Intruder

· First option is to run from active intruder. Then hide, then fight

Elections as critical infrastructure

Christy McCormick cmccormich@eac.gov

- Definition of CI comes from Patriot Act. Sec. 1016(e)
- Created in 2001 as result of Sept 11 terrorist acts
- Presidential Policy Directive 21 (PPD 21) and NIPP work together
- DHS is lead agency
- Clearinghouse.gov has EAC list of questions.
- EAC wants to be listed as Co-SAA to give access to local officials.

Confrontation Avoidance

- Confrontation Avoidance, 3 steps
  - Ask- ask the person how you can help
  - Advise if they persist, then advise them what will happen next
  - o Tell- If all else fails, call law enforcement and tell them to leave

Dealing with Active Intruder

First option is to run from active intruder. Then hide, then fight

Office Security

- Extra patrols on election night and during EV
- Invite emergency management staff and law enforcement to office
- Have a Control Plan for building access.
- Clean desk policy for front office
- Visitor badges for guests
- Have an evacuation plan that covers exiting the building
- Suspicious mail plan; isolate the package
- Bomb threat documentation. DHS has handout.
- Bomb sweeping for office night before election and all entering the facility
- Is there a Sheriff Reserve program in place? Most reserves required to give 8 hours service
- Video Run Hide Fight from Homeland Security
- Hillsborough does not allow back packs in warehouse

OVR

- Address validation is from the county street files. Only validates residence address if you use lookup feature
- OVR splash page up now; https://registertovoteflorida.gov/
- DHSMV required to verify name, DOB and DL #
- OVR system does not retain any information from a completed transaction.
- How fast will it be to register online? Depends on verification times.

- System requires user to enter the name exactly as it appears on DL
- Will be available in Spanish and English
- If the OVR system is not available, it will direct to paper option
- Session remains active for 15 minutes, then clear out
- Unique identifier is transaction number, never repeated
- Real time transactions upon submission of application
- Signature will be pulled from DHSMV upon submission if it's newer than what is on file.
- User acceptance testing calendar will be published so that every county has a chance to test the system.
- Two projects going at DHSMV
  - DHSMV will start allowing customers to enter their own data for voter reg selections instead of asking customer (April 2019).
  - Will take years until all DLs are converted to new format. 2026 will be when the mag stripe licenses will have expired.
  - New DL format coming- totally different. Will have a mag stripes...for a while (couple of years).
     Moving to 2D bar codes and special features law enforcement has requested. Double the number of security features, some unique to FL. 2D barcode is the national standard.

Voting Tabulation Districts

- Suggestion program begins at the end of this year. December 2017 thru May 2018
- Try to get block boundary suggestion to the Census Bureau using VTD boundaries.
- Initial delineation Dec 17-May 18
- Verification Dec 18-May 19
- Final Verification Dec 20-March 21
- Mark would like Johnny to try and get into the program. If you participate in the first 2 phases, you can be part of the final verification project. Contact Jay Ferrin with the Senate Redistricting or James Whitehurst with US Census.

Civic Engagement

- Kids Voting- Florida #1, Leon ranked #7 in state with 14,000 participants; Leon #5 by % ranking (50%)
- Double Click Democracy allows for computer based voting
- Webinar on June 28 for FL Kids Voting 10-11 am
- Dates for 2018 General start in August and voting occurs between Sept 10 and Nov 6 for participating counties
- Florida has one of the weakest Civics Cultures in the Nation according to Census indicators.
- Sandra Day O'Connor Civics Act establishes reading criteria
- School engagement- find the person responsible for Civics for the School system and talk with them.
- Empowering students to make informed decisions. Provide information for students.
- Maybe SOEs should have an internship from university for each spring semester to help with KIDS Voting

Florida House on the Hill- supported by 110 Trustees. In DC

- Partner with the Philadelphia based Nat'l Constitution Center
- Teach about separation of powers and Bill of Rights
- Constitution Day Sept 18
- New adopted Bill/ legislation 2017: (takes effect 2019)
  - o establishing Sept as Founders Month- schools work together
  - o Civics test for incoming Freshman- must pass or take remedial Civics course in college.

Election Integrity- David Becker, Center for Election Innovation and Research dbecker@electioninnovatioon.org, @beckerdavidj on social media

- Authored article cited by candidate and Pres Trump regarding voter fraud. His article was used out of context and no data supports allegations of "millions" of illegal votes cast in 2016.
- Fraud rates are below 0.001%. Non-existent problem.
- Extensive information exists that attempts were made by Russian operatives against the US
- 2 known hacks exist
  - State of Illinois- statewide database hacked, was discovered by increased server activity. Data was taken but not altered. Hacks ultimately are to be found out to sow seeds of distrust.
     Conversations going on now help that effort.
  - o Arizona statewide database hacked but not breeched.
- Other 3rd party systems attacked as well (VR and Kennesaw St)
- Probably prudent to increase Prov Ballot materials at voting locations in case reg data is attacked/altered/erased
- Democracy Fund research released in Dec 2016 regarding voter confidence
- Recommendations
  - Rely on facts and evidence solely
  - o Election officials are part of the solution, not the problem
  - Acknowledge that threat will not go away.
  - Stronger audits will be necessary
  - Good practice to analyze mail ballot requests (for location and number of ballots mailed)
  - Review of Security Protocols and training
  - Better 2-way communication between intelligence officials, federal govt and local officials.
     Primarily a Fed problem in that they are not sharing information.
  - Re-invest in elections infrastructure

This is the first analysis I've seen of the commission and its members. Interestingly, in 4 states, inc MD, the representative selected for the commission is not the state election director. In MD our SoS office plays no role in elections. I don't know about the other 3. It looks like there will be 6 more members appointed. This article discusses many other aspects of the commission, including that the charge is to examine laws and procedures, not the voter rolls themselves. So far no laws or procedures have been requested from the states. In many states those might have to be requested from the individual counties, I guess?

http://themoderatevoice.com/trump-elections-commission-stacked-representatives-states-minorities/ Members of the commission

- Chair, vice president Mike Pence, former governor of IN (R)
- Vice-chair, Kansas secretary of state Kris Kobach (R)
- Election Assistance Commissioner Christy McCormick (R)
- Arkansas lobbyist and former state lawmaker David Dunn (D)
- Indiana secretary of state Connie Lawson (R)
- Maine secretary of state Matt Dunlap (D)

There are no state elections directors on the commission. The state elections directors (pdf) for the four states with active officials on the commission follow:

- Indiana: Brad King, Co-Director Indiana Election Division
- Maine: Julie L. Flynn, Deputy Secretary of State
- Maryland: Linda Lamone, Administrator of Elections, State Board of Elections

New Hampshire: Anthony Stevens, Assistant Secretary of State
 Although the US voting system is highly decentralized, there is only one county official on the commission.

Good Lord, Ken Blackwell. Now I've seen everything. You'd think after having his head handed to him in Blackwell v. League of Women Voters that he'd want to put it in the sand. Not so I guess.

Subject: [evnlist] Membership of president's commission

This is the first analysis I've seen of the commission and its members. Interestingly, in 4 states, inc MD, the representative selected for the commission is not the state election director. In MD our SoS office plays no role in elections. I don't know about the other 3. It looks like there will be 6 more members appointed. This article discusses many other aspects of the commission, including that the charge is to examine laws and procedures, not the voter rolls themselves. So far no laws or procedures have been requested from the states. In many states those might have to be requested from the individual counties, I guess?

Members of the commission

- 1. Chair, vice president Mike Pence, former governor of IN (R)
- 2. Vice-chair, Kansas secretary of state Kris Kobach (R)
- 3. Election Assistance Commissioner Christy McCormick (R)
- 4. Arkansas lobbyist and former state lawmaker David Dunn (D)
- 5. Indiana secretary of state Connie Lawson (R)
- 6. Maine secretary of state Matt Dunlap (D)
- 7. Maryland deputy secretary of state Luis Borunda (R)
- 8. New Hampshire secretary of state Bill Gardner (D)
- 9. West Virginia Wood County clerk Mark Rhodes (D)
- 10. Former Ohio secretary of state Ken Blackwell (R)

There are no state elections directors on the commission. The state elections directors (pdf) for the four states with active officials on the commission follow:

- 1. Indiana: Brad King, Co-Director Indiana Election Division
- 2. Maine: Julie L. Flynn, Deputy Secretary of State
- 3. Maryland: Linda Lamone, Administrator of Elections, State Board of Elections
- 4. New Hampshire: Anthony Stevens, Assistant Secretary of State

Although the US voting system is highly decentralized, there is only one county official on the commission.

By SVREP Vice President Lydia Camarillo @Icamarillo1 Every ten years, immediately after the US Census counts the nation's population, the US embarks in the redistricting process – some states lose congressional seats, while others gain them. SVREP called it! We projected that Texas would gain 2 to 4 new congressional seats and that New York would lose at least 1 seat, however could draw a new congressional Latino-majority seat. New York did draw a new congressional Latino-majority seat, which is currently held by the first Dominican member of congress. Texas will likely gain another 2 to 4 congressional seats after the 2020 census count; this would give Texas the 2nd largest number of the electoral votes - 40 to 42 electoral votes. Only California will have more electoral votes than Texas, as it currently has 54 votes. Our projected Texas seat increase for the previous redistricting, as well as for the upcoming one, have stemmed from the rising Latino population. Just look at the statistics from 2011. Texas gained 4 new congressional seats. Texas populations increased by 4.3 million, and 65% of whom were Latinos. Despite the significant Latino population rise, the Texas legislature still determined that it would steal away one congressional seat, rather than provide the Latino community with real representation. Texas retrogressed congressional District 23. With 7 Latino-majority seats drawn to provide Latinos the opportunity to elect the candidates of their choice, Texas drew its congressional maps where Latinos lost seats. The Latino community started the redistricting fight with not 9 or 10 congressional Latino-majority seats, but merely 6. The State House map is no different – Latinos are left behind and lost representation and the opportunity to elect candidates of their choice. Texas has a long, extensive, history of passing laws that discriminate and violate our civil and voting rights. Texas is not shy to promote systemic barriers that block the Latino political clout. These acts are intentional, methodical, and designed to undermine the Latino vote. SVREP sued Texas. But we didn't just start with a lawsuit. SVREP organized, took part in numerous meetings, presented our own sets of maps - we organized city and county redistricting committees and a statewide committee. The committees where inclusive and diverse. They included leaders, business men and women, activists, and elected officials from every corner of Texas - from the Rio Grande to El Paso, to Dallas, to Houston, to Corpus, to Austin, to San Antonio. We did this in partnership with other Latino leaders, groups including the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund (MALDEF), Texas Mexican American Bar Association (MABA), TX-HOPE, NOMAR, William C. Velásquez Institute (WCVI), Southwest Workers Union and many other groups from throughout Texas. Ultimately, the Texas Latino Redistricting Task Force formed and sued Texas. The membership of the Task Force that sued Texas is made up of MALDEF, WCVI, TX-MABA, TX-HOPE, NOMAR, SW Workers Union and SVREP. MALDEF is our legal representative and I serve as the Chair of the Task Force. The lawsuit gave way to Federal Court in San Antonio drawing remedy congressional and state House maps. Our lawsuit barred Texas from retrogressing congressional District 23, as well as it created new Latino-majority districts in the CD33

(Dallas/Ft Worth Metro-plex) and CD35 (San Antonio to Austin). The CD27 was lost, but Latinos gained a seat that starts in Brownville, and moves up the state all the way to Corpus. Texas voters have cast their vote under these maps in the -2012, 2014 and 2016 elections. Since we sued, the Federal Court found that Texas did draw redistricting maps with the intent to discriminate and dilute the Latino vote. It found that the 2011 maps are illegal, racially gerrymandered and unconstitutional. Next week, the Federal Court will address several issues at the hearing set on July 10th to 14that the San Antonio Federal Court House. During this court hearing, SVREP's legal battle is to keep HD90 a Latino-majority seat. Just in time to get ready for the 2018 elections and the next redistricting fight. And it won't be the last time we end up suing Texas, either. Sad, but true. ## The Texas Redistricting Case Headed to Federal Court, Again!

By SVREP Vice President Lydia Camarillo @lcamarillo1

Every ten years, immediately after the US Census counts the nation's population, the US embarks in the redistricting process – some states lose congressional seats, while others gain them.

SVREP called it! We projected that Texas would gain 2 to 4 new congressional seats and that New York would lose at least 1 seat, however could draw a new congressional Latino-majority seat. New York did draw a new congressional Latino-majority seat, which is currently held by the first Dominican member of congress.

Texas has a long, extensive, history of passing laws that discriminate and violate our civil and voting rights. Texas is not shy to promote systemic barriers that block the Latino political clout. These acts are intentional, methodical, and designed to undermine the Latino vote.

SVREP sued Texas. But we didn't just start with a lawsuit.

An anti-"sanctuary city" protester was arrested for brandishing a gun in a gas station after a city council meeting in Cudahy on Monday night. The weapon was pointed at local activists in the parking lot of a Circle K about a block away from the park where the council meeting was held. The individual brandishing the weapon—a white male who appeared to be in his 40s—was in the driver's seat of a white Toyota Corolla at the time. There were three other members of the pro-Trump, anti-immigration group in the car at the time of the incident.

Along with a number of other small, largely Latino cities in southeast Los Angeles County, the tiny city of Cudahynas become a flashpoint in the "sanctuary city" debate. Like several of its municipal neighbors, Cudahy voted to call itself a "sanctuary city" a few years back. Despite being largely symbolic, the designation has still brought protests and ire from anti-immigration groups since it passed in 2015—and tensions have increased drastically since President Trump took office in January. The predominantly working-class, 96% Latino city of Cudahy is located about ten miles southeast of downtown Los Angeles.....Read More

The Sacramento Bee: Gas tax vote triggers nearly 85,000 signatures to recall Orange County senator

The California Republican Party announced Tuesday that it submitted nearly 85,000 voter signatures on a petition to recall Sen. Josh Newman, D-Fullerton.

The campaign needed to come up with 63,593 total signatures by mid-October to force a recall vote in Senate District 29. The signatures must be certified by election officials before the measure can qualify for the ballot.

"The speed with which voters signed the petitions is a testament to the anger they feel towards these tax increases and a fear of what liberal Josh Newman might decide to tax next," said Jim Brulte, chairman of the California Republican Party, in a statement. ....Read More

Democrats in the state Legislature are walking a tightrope, seemingly oblivious to potential danger.

First, they raised gas taxes and vehicle fees. Then the Senate passed a ridiculously costly universal healthcare plan. Now, the Legislature is getting close to helping undocumented criminals avoid deportation.

The Hill: Dems face identity crisis

Democrats are grappling with how to keep their progressive base happy while winning over white working-class voters who left the party in the 2016 elections.

Defections by blue-collar voters cost Democrat Hillary Clinton the states of Michigan, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin, all of which went to President Trump. It was the first time since 1988 that a GOP presidential candidate had won Michigan or Pennsylvania, and the first time since 1984 in Wisconsin.

The fallout has created an identity crisis for a Democratic Party seeking to find its way forward in the post-Obama era. ......Read More

Houston Chronicle: In the Texas vs. California rivalry, California is winning Bashing California is a Texas politician's birthright. The states' respective approaches to economic development are perfect foils for one another; deep-red Texas prides itself on allowing corporations free rein, while blue California is happy to tax and regulate them to the sky.

That's why California is a convenient punch line for Governor Greg Abbott in speeches like the one he made announcing the new special session yesterday, in which he promised to crack down on liberal cities that want local rules on things like ride-hailing and home rentals. ....Read More

My San Antonio: La Prensa's longtime publisher Tino Duran dies

Florentino "Tino" Duran, longtime owner, publisher and CEO of the bilingual biweekly newspaper La Prensa, has died.

He had been battling Alzheimer's disease for several years and had retired in 2016. Nina Duran, his daughter and successor, took to Facebook Sunday to announce his passing.

"Our sweet, beautiful and loving daddy went to be with the Lord today," she wrote. "He passed peacefully in his sleep with my mama by his side." ......Read More

The July issue of The Canvass, NCSL's elections newsletter, is now available online http://www.ncsl.org/research/elections-and-campaigns/states-and-election-reform-the-canvass-july-2017.aspx.

Highlights include:

Elections Security: A Priority for Everyone. A look at what "elections security" means, who has responsibility for it and what legislators can consider to promote it.

Sample Questions Legislators Can Use When Talking About Security With Election Officials.

Bookmark This. The Election Administration and Voting Survey (EAVS)--NCSL thinks the newly released EAVS report, from the U.S. Election Assistance Commission, is the best yet.

Worth Noting. Snippets of news and links to new reports.

NCSL's Legislative Summit http://www.ncsl.org/meetings-training/legislative-summit-17/schedule/agenda/track/xelr.aspx is just around the corner: Aug. 6 - 9 in Boston. Most of the elections sessions are on Monday, Aug. 6, so if you can make it for just one day (with a one-day registration fee), that's the day to hit. But wait--Tuesday we will hear from Secretary of State Tre Hargett (Tennessee), EAC Commissioner Christy McCormick and Robby Mook (formerly with the Clinton campaign, now with Defending Digital Democracy, a new bipartisan project about voter confidence). So, I hope you'll come for it all.

Dear Supervisor of Elections,

The Bipartisan Policy Center and the Florida State Association of Supervisors of Elections cordially invite you to a half-day seminar entitled, The Bipartisan Benefits of Interstate Data-Sharing in Florida.

The seminar will take place on December 11, 2017 from 9:00am until 1:30pm, including lunch. It will be held at the Florida State Conference Center at 555 W Pensacola St, Tallahassee, Florida 32306.

The day's discussion includes a series of panels focused on the recommendations of the Presidential Commission on Election Administration (PCEA), specifically those covering interstate registration data-sharing. We will discuss the implementation of such programs, including the Electronic Registration Information Center, in states across the country and how implementation might work in Florida. Over lunch speakers and invited legislators will present on current legislation pending in the Florida Legislature. A brief agenda is included below.

Confirmed participants include Alabama Secretary of State John Merrill, West Virginia Secretary of State Mac Warner, EAC Commissioner Christy McCormick, and PCEA Co-Chair Ben Ginsberg. Each will share his or her perspective of interstate data sharing programs and answer questions. Several Florida Supervisors of Elections and other state election officials will be participating on informative panels to discuss the modernization of voter registration in Florida, including steps to improve the security and accuracy of data-sharing programs and maintenance of voter registration lists.

We have limited funding to cover one night (December 10) of hotel accommodations for guests traveling to attend this session in Tallahassee. Please let us know if you would like to access this funding, and we will book accommodations directly.

Please RSVP to the meeting to Brenna McAfee (BMcAfee@bipartisanpolicy.org) or Don Palmer (DPalmer@bipartisanpolicy.org). We will follow up with a full agenda of topics and panels.

I look forward to seeing you in Tallahassee.

Sincerely,

John Fortier Don Palmer

Director, Democracy Project, BPC Fellow, Democracy Project, BPC

The day's discussion includes a series of panels focused on the recommendations of the Presidential Commission on Election Administration (PCEA), specifically those covering interstate registration data-sharing. We will discuss the implementation of such programs, including the Electronic Registration Information Center, in states across the country and how implementation might work in Florida. Over lunch speakers and invited legislators will present on current legislation pending in the Florida Legislature. A brief agenda is included below.

Confirmed participants include Alabama Secretary of State John Merrill, West Virginia Secretary of State Mac Warner, EAC Commissioner Christy McCormick, and PCEA Co-Chair Ben Ginsberg. Each will share his or her perspective of interstate data sharing programs and answer questions. Several Florida Supervisors of Elections and other state election officials will be participating on informative panels to discuss the modernization of voter registration in Florida, including steps to improve the security and accuracy of data-sharing programs and maintenance of voter registration lists.

We have limited funding to cover one night (December 10) of hotel accommodations for guests traveling to attend this session in Tallahassee. Please let us know if you would like to access this funding, and we will book accommodations directly.

Please RSVP to the meeting to Brenna McAfee (BMcAfee@bipartisanpolicy.org) or Don Palmer (DPalmer@bipartisanpolicy.org). We will follow up with a full agenda of topics and panels.

I look forward to seeing you in Tallahassee.

Sincerely,

John Fortier Don Palmer

Dear Supervisor of Elections,

The Bipartisan Policy Center and the Florida State Association of Supervisors of Elections cordially invite you to a half-day seminar entitled, The Bipartisan Benefits of Interstate Data-Sharing in Florida.

The seminar will take place on December 11, 2017 from 9:00am until 1:30pm, including lunch. It will be held at the Florida State Conference Center at 555 W Pensacola St, Tallahassee, Florida 32306.

The day's discussion includes a series of panels focused on the recommendations of the Presidential Commission on Election Administration (PCEA), specifically those covering interstate registration data-sharing. We will discuss the implementation of such programs, including the Electronic Registration Information Center, in states across the country and how implementation might work in Florida. Over lunch speakers and invited legislators will present on current legislation pending in the Florida Legislature. A brief agenda is included below.

Confirmed participants include Alabama Secretary of State John Merrill, West Virginia Secretary of State Mac Warner, EAC Commissioner Christy McCormick, and PCEA Co-Chair Ben Ginsberg. Each will share his or her perspective of interstate data sharing programs and answer questions. Several Florida Supervisors of Elections and other state election officials will be participating on informative panels to discuss the modernization of voter registration in Florida, including steps to improve the security and accuracy of data-sharing programs and maintenance of voter registration lists.

We have limited funding to cover one night (December 10) of hotel accommodations for guests traveling to attend this session in Tallahassee. Please let us know if you would like to access this funding, and we will book accommodations directly.

Please RSVP to the meeting to Brenna McAfee (BMcAfee@bipartisanpolicy.org) or Don Palmer (DPalmer@bipartisanpolicy.org). We will follow up with a full agenda of topics and panels.

I look forward to seeing you in Tallahassee.

Sincerely,

John Fortier Don Palmer

Dear Supervisor of Elections,

The Bipartisan Policy Center and the Florida State Association of Supervisors of Elections cordially invite you to a half-day seminar entitled, The Bipartisan Benefits of Interstate Data-Sharing in Florida.

The seminar will take place on December 11, 2017 from 9:00am until 1:30pm, including lunch. It will be held at the Florida State Conference Center at 555 W Pensacola St, Tallahassee, Florida 32306.

The day's discussion includes a series of panels focused on the recommendations of the Presidential Commission on Election Administration (PCEA), specifically those covering interstate registration data-sharing. We will discuss the implementation of such programs, including the Electronic Registration Information Center, in states across the country and how implementation might work in Florida. Over lunch speakers and invited legislators will present on current legislation pending in the Florida Legislature. A brief agenda is included below.

Confirmed participants include Alabama Secretary of State John Merrill, West Virginia Secretary of State Mac Warner, EAC Commissioner Christy McCormick, and PCEA Co-Chair Ben Ginsberg. Each will share his or her perspective of interstate data sharing programs and answer questions. Several Florida Supervisors of Elections and other state election officials will be participating on informative panels to discuss the modernization of voter registration in Florida, including steps to improve the security and accuracy of data-sharing programs and maintenance of voter registration lists.

We have limited funding to cover one night (December 10) of hotel accommodations for guests traveling to attend this session in Tallahassee. Please let us know if you would like to access this funding, and we will book accommodations directly.

Please RSVP to the meeting to Brenna McAfee (BMcAfee@bipartisanpolicy.org) or Don Palmer (DPalmer@bipartisanpolicy.org). We will follow up with a full agenda of topics and panels.

I look forward to seeing you in Tallahassee.

Sincerely,

John Fortier Don Palmer

Director, Democracy Project, BPC Fellow, Democracy Project, BPC

Dear Supervisor of Elections,

The Bipartisan Policy Center and the Florida State Association of Supervisors of Elections cordially invite you to a half-day seminar entitled, The Bipartisan Benefits of Interstate Data-Sharing in Florida.

The seminar will take place on December 11, 2017 from 9:00am until 1:30pm, including lunch. It will be held at the Florida State Conference Center at 555 W Pensacola St, Tallahassee, Florida 32306.

The day's discussion includes a series of panels focused on the recommendations of the Presidential Commission on Election Administration (PCEA), specifically those covering interstate registration data-sharing. We will discuss the implementation of such programs, including the Electronic Registration Information Center, in states across the country and how implementation might work in Florida. Over lunch speakers and invited legislators will present on current legislation pending in the Florida Legislature. A brief agenda is included below.

Confirmed participants include Alabama Secretary of State John Merrill, West Virginia Secretary of State Mac Warner, EAC Commissioner Christy McCormick, and PCEA Co-Chair Ben Ginsberg. Each will share his or her perspective of interstate data sharing programs and answer questions. Several Florida Supervisors of Elections and other state election officials will be participating on informative panels to discuss the modernization of voter registration in Florida, including steps to improve the security and accuracy of data-sharing programs and maintenance of voter registration lists.

We have limited funding to cover one night (December 10) of hotel accommodations for guests traveling to attend this session in Tallahassee. Please let us know if you would like to access this funding, and we will book accommodations directly.

Please RSVP to the meeting to Brenna McAfee (BMcAfee@bipartisanpolicy.org) or Don Palmer (DPalmer@bipartisanpolicy.org). We will follow up with a full agenda of topics and panels.

I look forward to seeing you in Tallahassee.

Sincerely,

John Fortier Don Palmer

Director, Democracy Project, BPC Fellow, Democracy Project, BPC

>>> Don Palmer <DPalmer@bipartisanpolicy.org> 12/8/2017 2:13 PM >>> Supervisors,

It was a truly a pleasure to see so many of you all at the FSASE Conference!

I just wanted to remind everyone of our upcoming meeting in Tallahassee on Monday to discuss the interstate data-sharing recommendations of the PCEA, including the ERIC project - the time of the seminar is from 9:30am-1:30pm. Breakfast and COFFEE start at 9am and the Alabama Secretary of State John Merrill will be our luncheon speaker.

All the details are on the attached agenda - we will have PCEA Co-Chair Ben Ginsberg, EAC Commissioner McCormick, WV Secretary Mac Warner and other state election officials participating on panels with our Florida Supervisors of Elections.

If you haven't already, go ahead and RSVP. I promise there will be COFFEE even if you are a few minutes late. I look forward to seeing all of you.

I just wanted to remind everyone of our upcoming meeting in Tallahassee on Monday to discuss the interstate data-sharing recommendations of the PCEA, including the ERIC project - the time of the seminar is from 9:30am-1:30pm. Breakfast and COFFEE start at 9am and the Alabama Secretary of State John Merrill will be our luncheon speaker.

All the details are on the attached agenda - we will have PCEA Co-Chair Ben Ginsberg, EAC Commissioner McCormick, WV Secretary Mac Warner and other state election officials participating on panels with our Florida Supervisors of Elections.

If you haven't already, go ahead and RSVP. I promise there will be COFFEE even if you are a few minutes late. I look forward to seeing all of you.

It was a truly a pleasure to see so many of you all at the FSASE Conference!

I just wanted to remind everyone of our upcoming meeting in Tallahassee on Monday to discuss the interstate data-sharing recommendations of the PCEA, including the ERIC project - the time of the seminar is from 9:30am-1:30pm. Breakfast and COFFEE start at 9am and the Alabama Secretary of State John Merrill will be our luncheon speaker.

All the details are on the attached agenda - we will have PCEA Co-Chair Ben Ginsberg, EAC Commissioner McCormick, WV Secretary Mac Warner and other state election officials participating on panels with our Florida Supervisors of Elections.

If you haven't already, go ahead and RSVP. I promise there will be COFFEE even if you are a few minutes late. I look forward to seeing all of you.

It was a truly a pleasure to see so many of you all at the FSASE Conference!

I just wanted to remind everyone of our upcoming meeting in Tallahassee on Monday to discuss the interstate datasharing recommendations of the PCEA, including the ERIC project - the time of the seminar is from 9:30am-1:30pm. Breakfast and COFFEE start at 9am and the Alabama Secretary of State John Merrill will be our luncheon speaker.

All the details are on the attached agenda - we will have PCEA Co-Chair Ben Ginsberg, EAC Commissioner McCormick, WV Secretary Mac Warner and other state election officials participating on panels with our Florida Supervisors of Elections.

If you haven't already, go ahead and RSVP. I promise there will be COFFEE even if you are a few minutes late. I look forward to seeing all of you.

> Trump dissolves voter fraud commission

> Washington (CNN)President Donald Trump dissolved his much-touted voter fraud commission on Wednesday, attributing the step to various states' refusal to participate in the board, which was criticized as a misguided step to solve a practically non-existent problem.

> Trump established the commission in May, citing what he claimed were widespread accounts of falsified voting. The panel requested wide-reaching information about voters in every state, including dates of birth and partial Social Security numbers.

> "Despite substantial evidence of voter fraud, many states have refused to provide the Presidential Advisory Commission on Election Integrity with basic information relevant to its inquiry," the White House said in a statement. "Rather than engage in endless legal battles at taxpayer expense, today I signed an executive order to dissolve the commission, and FL-LEON-19-0521-A-001679 have asked the Department of Homeland Security to review these issues and determine next courses of action."

> Critics contended Trump was simply finding a way to account for his popular vote loss in the 2016 presidential election.

> The commission has been beset by controversy virtually since it began. A request for voter files from every state was met with swift and strong opposition by many state election officials http://www.cnn.com/2017/06/30/politics/kris-kobach-voter-commission-rolls/index.html, setting off a series of lawsuits over privacy, and requests were eventually scaled back.

> RELATED: Trump election commission head lambasted for voter fraud claims http://www.cnn.com/2017/09/12/politics/kris-kobach-trump-voter-commission-meeting/index.html

> Fact-checking Trump's claims on voter fraud 04:06

> Trump also named hard-liners to the panel who were known for their strong belief in widespread voter fraud, despite no research supporting the idea that fraudulent voting has been substantial in almost any election.

> One of those members, the Heritage Foundation's Hans Von Spakovsky, had also sent an email to the Justice Department prior to his appointment urging the government to not include any Democrats on the panel. The email was later made public.

> Last summer, Kris Kobach, the panel's vice chair, declined to say if Clinton won the popular vote in 2016 http://www.cnn.com/2017/07/20/politics/kobach-election-integrity-popular-vote/index.html.

> "We will probably never know the answer to that question," Kobach said on MSNBC. "Because even if you could prove that a certain number of votes were cast by ineligible voters, for example, you wouldn't know how they voted."

> Kobach again faced heat from state officials for statements he made within New Hampshire about New Hampshire's election practices https://www.cnn.com/2017/12/24/politics/matthew-dunlap-voter-fraud-commission/index.html. Those statements were part of the commission's last formal public meeting and drew further outrage from Democrats.

> Eventually, one Democratic member of the commission went public with his complaints that the commission was not including its Democratic members and his concern that it existed to substantiate Trump's prior assertion, without evidence, that mass voter fraud took place in the 2016 election.

> That Democratic member, Maine Secretary of State Matthew Dunlap https://www.cnn.com/2017/11/09/politics/voting-commission-lawsuit-kobach-dunlap/index.html, went to federal court to sue the commission and compel it to provide him with documents.

Trump dissolves voter fraud commission

Washington (CNN)President Donald Trump dissolved his much-touted voter fraud commission on Wednesday, attributing the step to various states' refusal to participate in the board, which was criticized as a misguided step to solve a practically non-existent problem.

Trump established the commission in May, citing what he claimed were widespread accounts of falsified voting. The panel requested wide-reaching information about voters in every state, including dates of birth and partial Social Security numbers.

"Despite substantial evidence of voter fraud, many states have refused to provide the Presidential Advisory Commission on Election Integrity with basic information relevant to its inquiry," the White House said in a statement. "Rather than engage in endless legal battles at taxpayer expense, today I signed an executive order to dissolve the commission, and have asked the Department of Homeland Security to review these issues and determine next courses of action."

Critics contended Trump was simply finding a way to account for his popular vote loss in the 2016 presidential election.

The commission has been beset by controversy virtually since it began. A request for voter files from every state was met with swift and strong opposition by many state election officials, setting off a series of lawsuits over privacy, and requests were eventually scaled back.

Fact-checking Trump's claims on voter fraud 04:06

Trump also named hard-liners to the panel who were known for their strong belief in widespread voter fraud, despite no research supporting the idea that fraudulent voting has been substantial in almost any election.

One of those members, the Heritage Foundation's Hans Von Spakovsky, had also sent an email to the Justice Department prior to his appointment urging the government to not include any Democrats on the panel. The email was later made public.

Last summer, Kris Kobach, the panel's vice chair, declined to say if Clinton won the popular vote in 2016.

"We will probably never know the answer to that question," Kobach said on MSNBC. "Because even if you could prove that a certain number of votes were cast by ineligible voters, for example, you wouldn't know how they voted."

Kobach again faced heat from state officials for statements he made within New Hampshire about New Hampshire's election practices. Those statements were part of the commission's last formal public meeting and drew further outrage from Democrats.

Eventually, one Democratic member of the commission went public with his complaints that the commission was not including its Democratic members and his concern that it existed to substantiate Trump's prior assertion, without evidence, that mass voter fraud took place in the 2016 election.

That Democratic member, Maine Secretary of State Matthew Dunlap, went to federal court to sue the commission and compel it to provide him with documents.

The US District Court in Washington sided with Dunlap in the lawsuit, which the commission's executive director, Andrew Kossack, previously said had "no merit," and ordered the commission to provide Dunlap with the information on commission activities and communications he requested.

Tim,

Can you send me a link to the JEOLC agenda? I need it for travel reimbursement, and I left my copy at the hotel I think.

Thanks,

Mark,

Did you indeed attend this back in December? Who else joined you?

We like to include even local workshops in our training records in case anyone can get credit for continuing education at some point. And I'm still catching up on some old emails. : )

@Sarah: please put together a blue folder with these materials and make note of who attended based on Mark's reply.

Thanks!

Good Afternoon Supervisors,

Please find attached an invitation to attend an upcoming seminar entitled, The Bipartisan Benefits of Interstate Data-Sharing in Florida on December 11, 2017 in Tallahassee, Florida.

FSASE along with The Bipartisan Policy Center is excited about this information sharing opportunity and look forward to the presentations scheduled. Several of our very own Supervisors will be participating on panels to discuss the modernization of voter registration in Florida, including steps to improve the security and accuracy of data-sharing programs and maintenance of voter registration lists.

If you are interesting in attending please RSVP to Brenna McAfee (BMcAfee@bipartisanpolicy.org) or Don Palmer (DPalmer@bipartisanpolicy.org), they will then follow up with a full agenda.

It was a truly a pleasure to see so many of you all at the FSASE Conference!

I just wanted to remind everyone of our upcoming meeting in Tallahassee on Monday to discuss the interstate data-sharing recommendations of the PCEA, including the ERIC project - the time of the seminar is from 9:30am-1:30pm. Breakfast and COFFEE start at 9am and the Alabama Secretary of State John Merrill will be our luncheon speaker.

All the details are on the attached agenda - we will have PCEA Co-Chair Ben Ginsberg, EAC Commissioner McCormick, WV Secretary Mac Warner and other state election officials participating on panels with our Florida Supervisors of Elections.

If you haven't already, go ahead and RSVP. I promise there will be COFFEE even if you are a few minutes late. I look forward to seeing all of you.

Mark,

Did you indeed attend this back in December? Who else joined you?

We like to include even local workshops in our training records in case anyone can get credit for continuing education at some point. And I'm still catching up on some old emails. : )

@Sarah: please put together a blue folder with these materials and make note of who attended based on Mark's reply.

Thanks!

It was a truly a pleasure to see so many of you all at the FSASE Conference!

I just wanted to remind everyone of our upcoming meeting in Tallahassee on Monday to discuss the interstate data-sharing recommendations of the PCEA, including the ERIC project - the time of the seminar is from 9:30am-1:30pm. Breakfast and COFFEE start at 9am and the Alabama Secretary of State John Merrill will be our luncheon speaker.

All the details are on the attached agenda - we will have PCEA Co-Chair Ben Ginsberg, EAC Commissioner McCormick, WV Secretary Mac Warner and other state election officials participating on panels with our Florida Supervisors of Elections.

If you haven't already, go ahead and RSVP. I promise there will be COFFEE even if you are a few minutes late. I look forward to seeing all of you.

Good Afternoon Supervisors,

Please find attached an invitation to attend an upcoming seminar entitled, The Bipartisan Benefits of Interstate Data-Sharing in Florida on December 11, 2017 in Tallahassee, Florida.

FSASE along with The Bipartisan Policy Center is excited about this information sharing opportunity and look forward to the presentations scheduled. Several of our very own Supervisors will be participating on panels to discuss the modernization of voter registration in Florida, including steps to improve the security and accuracy of data-sharing programs and maintenance of voter registration lists.

If you are interesting in attending please RSVP to Brenna McAfee (BMcAfee@bipartisanpolicy.org) or Don Palmer (DPalmer@bipartisanpolicy.org), they will then follow up with a full agenda.

BOSSERT OUT - White House homeland security adviser Tom Bossert's resignation on Tuesday left some lawmakers scratching their heads and left cyber policy specialists wary about who will replace him. One senior administration official told POLITICO that Bossert resigned at John Bolton's behest, although others warned that Bolton was not the driving force behind Bossert's exit.

Regardless, lawmakers were perplexed. Bossert had gained respect from both the right and the left, particularly for his emphasis on cybersecurity. "I don't know what's behind that," Sen. Claire McCaskill, the top Democrat on the Homeland Security Committee, told MC. "I'm anxious to find out whether" it was Bossert's decision "or if he was pushed out, and, if so, why?" McCaskill added that she "certainly thought he was competent" and loyal to Trump, a trait the president desires. "That's why I'm fascinated that he was pushed out on the day after Bolton got there," McCaskill said.

Senate Homeland Security Committee Chairman Ron Johnson said he "always liked" Bossert, and considered him to be "really knowledgeable in that position," adding, "I hated to hear" about his exit. Senate Intelligence Committee Chairman Richard Burr told MC he "didn't have any heads-up on" the resignation, before suggesting Bossert is "probably pursuing something that he thinks is better for him."

Bossert ran the cybersecurity unit at the National Security Council, helping to craft Trump's cyber executive order issued in May that pledged a new focus on protecting government networks and strengthening international and private-sector partnerships. He also blamed the Russian government for orchestrating last year's massively disruptive WannaCry malware attack, which seized networks in over 150 countries and caused billions of dollars worth of damage. The White House said Rob Joyce, the administration's top cyber adviser and deputy homeland security adviser, will temporarily assume the post in an acting capacity.

- WHAT DOES IT MEAN FOR CYBER? - Bossert's departure, and Joyce's elevation, will "slow down the cyber work" at the NSC, a former cyber staffer on the council told MC. "Tom was actively engaged in the cyber portfolio and so his (seemingly sudden) departure will be disruptive." There could also be fresh recruitment issues, which would also slow down policymaking. A second former NSC official said that many current staffers are "in a 'wait and see' mode, mainly around whether Bolton is as difficult a person to deal with as reputed." "The NSC has had a really hard time recruiting people generally," this person added, "so it will be interesting to see how they fare under Bolton."

Bossert reported directly to Trump, but according to The New York Times, Bolton is reorganizing the NSC so that the homeland security adviser reports only to him. This would also bring the cyber portfolio more directly under the national security adviser's supervision - a reversal of the current Trump NSC setup. And given that Bolton has "publicly spoken before about wanting to be more aggressive on cyber," said a former NSC cyber official, "we could potentially see a more assertive use of cyber as a foreign policy tool going forward." Cory detailed Bolton's years of bellicose cyber rhetoric in a piece last month.

This approach could have serious consequences, a former senior White House national security official cautioned. "We are very vulnerable to retaliation through cyberspace, in a way that we are not in the physical domain," the former official said. "I'm not saying you can't or shouldn't use cyber tools as part of your national security toolbox, but that you should be cautious and careful in doing so."

HAPPY Wednesday and welcome to Morning Cybersecurity! Show up a guy having an MVP-caliber season, why don't you, Boban? Send your thoughts, feedback and especially tips to tstarks@politico.com, and be sure to follow @POLITICOPro and @MorningCybersec. Full team info below.

A ROUNDUP OF FACEBOOK'S BIG DAY - Facebook CEO Mark Zuckerberg emerged from Tuesday's Senate hearing largely unscathed, to the point that his company's stock jumped. Lawmakers kicked off the joint Judiciary-Commerce hearing by indicating how worried they were about how Facebook protected user information, after Cambridge Analytica, a data analytics firm that worked with the Trump campaign, improperly obtained data on at least 87 million users. "If you and other social media companies do not get your act in order, none of us are going to have privacy anymore," said Sen. Bill Nelson. But in a live analysis of the hearing, the POLITICO team covering it largely concluded that Zuckerberg had managed to avoid any major pitfalls, although maybe he didn't do much to pave over his company's problems.

The hearing did make some news, however. Zuckerberg confirmed that special counsel Robert Mueller had contacted his company as part of its probe into 2016 election interference. He also said Facebook notified political campaigns when it saw Russian hackers trying to break into their pages, although Hillary Clinton's campaign said that's news to them. Facebook did not, however, alert the FTC to the Cambridge Analytica incident, Zuckerberg said.

The 33-year-old billionaire also said he did not have any information on whether Cambridge Analytica stored any user data on Russian servers, and acknowledged Facebook could have booted the data firm much earlier, in 2015, based on its policies.

On some policy questions, Zuckerberg offered tentative support for a rule requiring companies to issue data-breach notifications within 72 hours, and said internet service providers and other kinds of tech companies should have different privacy-protection rules.

Also: Zuckerberg said he didn't consider his company a monopoly. And however successful he was at the hearing, Sen. Richard Blumenthal still expressed skepticism. "We've seen the apology tours before," Blumenthal said. "Unless there are specific rules and requirements enforced by an outside agency, I have no assurance that these kinds of vague commitments are going to produce action." Here's an overarching rundown of the hearing, and key moments.

And remember: Zuckerberg is back at it this morning, testifying before the House Energy and Commerce Committee. As our Morning Tech friends report, House lawmakers have said they still have a series of outstanding questions for the tech executive: A GOP committee aide confirmed that Chairman Greg Walden spoke with Zuckerberg ahead of the hearing. Walden has said he's interested in developing a better understanding of how user data is collected and shared by the platform. And he's not the only one who'd still like to get more clarity on the subject. "For me, I am deeply concerned with Facebook's inability to pinpoint exactly where some of this personal information may have ended up, and whether Mr. Zuckerberg can definitively say that it is not in the hands of any foreign governments that could seek to exploit it," Rep. Bob Latta, chairman of the Digital Commerce and Consumer Protection Subcommittee, said in a statement.

HOUSE DOUBLEHEADER - The House Armed Services Committee gavels in today for a pair of hearings focused exclusively on cyber operations. In the morning, the full panel will hear from three former top officials: former Homeland Security secretaries Jeh Johnson and Michael Chertoff, and former NSA chief Keith Alexander. Their comments likely will inform lawmakers as they prepare to assemble their annual defense policy bill, which could take a crack at better defining the military's role and responsibilities in the event of a cyberattack.

In the afternoon, the Emerging Threats and Capabilities Subcommittee will convene to hear from outgoing NSA chief Adm. Mike Rogers and a senior Defense Department official about the Pentagon's cyber budget. Rep. Elise Stefanik, who chairs the subpanel, likely will ask Rogers about the country's efforts to spur the development of artificial intelligence. The New York Republican introduced a bill last month that would create an independent commission to help ensure the U.S. doesn't fall behind peer competitors in the bleeding-edge field.

TROUBLE SPOT - The Trump administration is concerned that new European privacy regulations will prohibit the publication of information about the owners of websites. On Tuesday, Rob Strayer, the deputy assistant secretary of State overseeing cyber policy, highlighted the precarious position of the WHOIS database - which details the registrants and operators of domain names - under the European Union's forthcoming data privacy rules, known as the General Data Protection Regulation.

"If there's a malicious domain, or there's an intellectual-property-infringing domain, one can go to this [WHOIS] registry and see who owns that domain and then ask them to take action with regard to it," Strayer said at a U.S. Chamber of Commerce event. Under GDPR, which takes effect on May 25, "there [could] be limited access to this registry - what could be in the registry and who could have access to it."

"There's been very little guidance put out by the European Union as to how this regulation will be implemented, what kind of use cases and user cases will be permissible under it," added Strayer. "So that creates a lot of uncertainty for the private sector."

The Chamber of Commerce used the event to unveil its new Global Digital Policy Declaration, which urges the international community to "view cybersecurity as a partnership by establishing collaborations between the government and private sector and by focusing on protection rather than mandatory incident reporting."

OUT IN THE COMMUNITY - The Election Assistance Commission, the federal agency that advises states on running elections, will hold a public forum next Wednesday to discuss a new wave of election security funding and efforts to protect the upcoming midterms. "The EAC public forum is the first of its kind ahead of the 2018 election and will be an opportunity for state and local election officials from across the nation to provide statements about their election cybersecurity efforts," the agency said in a statement. EAC Chairman Thomas Hicks and Vice Chair Christy McCormick will attend the hearing, along with the head of the EAC's grants program and various local officials. They'll discuss the recent $380 million grant package that Congress approved for states to upgrade their election systems ahead of the 2018 midterms.

The EAC made the news recently when House Speaker Paul Ryan declined to renew the term of its third commissioner, Matthew Masterson, who led the agency in the aftermath of the hacker-plagued 2016 election and made cybersecurity a top priority. Masterson is now working on election security issues at DHS.

RANSOMWARE, STILL A BIG THING - The percentage of ransomware involved in malware-related cases doubled from year to year in Verizon's annual, comprehensive report on data breaches out Tuesday. Ransomware was found in 700 instances, or 39 percent of the cases reviewed from Nov. 1, 2016, to Oct. 31, 2017.

Overall, Verizon analyzed more than 53,000 cybersecurity incidents and over 2,300 data breaches from 65 countries. Another conclusion: The human factor is an ongoing key weakness, with financial pretexting - where an identity thief tricks a victim into giving over personal information - and phishing representing 98 percent of social incidents and 93 percent of breaches.

ANY PORT IN A STORM - This year's Cyber Storm exercise, a massive Homeland Security Department drill that began Tuesday, has an element of election security to it. The focus of the DHS exercise is on critical manufacturing and transportation sectors, but two participating states asked for some election security scenarios, according to a department official. In all, seven states are taking part: Colorado, Delaware, Iowa, Montana, Texas, Virginia and Washington.

WINNING TIME - Lewis University came up victorious in the Energy Department's annual cyber defense competition, DOE announced Tuesday. Held across three national labs, the competition saw 25 universities try to defend their networks against simulated attacks. "Competition breeds excellence," Energy Secretary Rick Perry said. "It brings out the best in us. And when America's cyber experts are challenging one another on the virtual battlefield, we all win."

RECENTLY ON PRO CYBERSECURITY - Leading House Democrats implored Speaker Paul Ryan to help them obtain documents related to alleged Russian cyberattacks on states during the 2016 election. ... The Senate Intelligence Committee advanced the nomination of Lt. Gen. Paul Nakasone to lead the NSA and U.S. Cyber Command, setting him up for confirmation by the full Senate.

The New York Republican introduced a bill last month that would create an independent commission to help ensure the U.S. doesn't fall behind peer competitors in the bleeding-edge field.

TROUBLE SPOT - The Trump administration is concerned that new European privacy regulations will prohibit the publication of information about the owners of websites. On Tuesday, Rob Strayer, the deputy assistant secretary of State overseeing cyber policy, highlighted the precarious position of the WHOIS database - which details the registrants and operators of domain names - under the European Union's forthcoming data privacy rules, known as the General Data Protection Regulation.

"If there's a malicious domain, or there's an intellectual-property-infringing domain, one can go to this [WHOIS] registry and see who owns that domain and then ask them to take action with regard to it," Strayer said at a U.S. Chamber of Commerce event. Under GDPR, which takes effect on May 25, "there [could] be limited access to this registry - what could be in the registry and who could have access to it."

"There's been very little guidance put out by the European Union as to how this regulation will be implemented, what kind of use cases and user cases will be permissible under it," added Strayer. "So that creates a lot of uncertainty for the private sector."

The Chamber of Commerce used the event to unveil its new Global Digital Policy Declaration, which urges the international community to "view cybersecurity as a partnership by establishing collaborations between the government and private sector and by focusing on protection rather than mandatory incident reporting."

OUT IN THE COMMUNITY - The Election Assistance Commission, the federal agency that advises states on running elections, will hold a public forum next Wednesday to discuss a new wave of election security funding and efforts to protect the upcoming midterms. "The EAC public forum is the first of its kind ahead of the 2018 election and will be an opportunity for state and local election officials from across the nation to provide statements about their election cybersecurity efforts," the agency said in a statement. EAC Chairman Thomas Hicks and Vice Chair Christy McCormick will attend the hearing, along with the head of the EAC's grants program and various local officials. They'll discuss the recent $380 million grant package that Congress approved for states to upgrade their election systems ahead of the 2018 midterms.

The EAC made the news recently when House Speaker Paul Ryandeclined to renew the term of its third commissioner, Matthew Masterson, who led the agency in the aftermath of the hacker-plagued 2016 election and made cybersecurity a top priority. Masterson is now working on election security issues at DHS.

RANSOMWARE, STILL A BIG THING -The percentage of ransomware involved in malware-related cases doubled from year to year in Verizon's annual, comprehensive report on data breaches out Tuesday. Ransomware was found in 700 instances, or 39 percent of the cases reviewed from Nov. 1, 2016, to Oct. 31, 2017.

Overall, Verizon analyzed more than 53,000 cybersecurity incidents and over 2,300 data breaches from 65 countries. Another conclusion: The human factor is an ongoing key weakness, with financial pretexting - where an identity thief tricks a victim into giving over personal information - and phishing representing 98 percent of social incidents and 93 percent of breaches.

ANY PORT IN A STORM -This year's Cyber Storm exercise, a massive Homeland Security Department drill that began Tuesday, has an element of election security to it. The focus of the DHS exercise is on critical manufacturing and transportation sectors, but two participating states asked for some election security scenarios, according to a department official. In all, seven states are taking part: Colorado, Delaware, Iowa, Montana, Texas, Virginia and Washington.

WINNING TIME - Lewis University came up victorious in the Energy Department's annual cyber defense competition, DOE announced Tuesday. Held across three national labs, the competition saw 25 universities try to defend their networks against simulated attacks. "Competition breeds excellence," Energy Secretary Rick Perry said. "It brings out the best in us. And when America's cyber experts are challenging one another on the virtual battlefield, we all win."

RECENTLY ON PRO CYBERSECURITY -Leading House Democrats implored Speaker Paul Ryan to help them obtain documents related to alleged Russian cyberattacks on states during the 2016 election. ... The Senate Intelligence Committee advanced the nomination of Lt. Gen. Paul Nakasone to lead the NSA and U.S. Cyber Command, setting him up for confirmation by the full Senate.

TWEET OF THE DAY - Now this is what we call trolling.

QUICK BYTES

- Russia has been jamming U.S. military drones in Syria, according to NBC News.
- A cyberattack took out the national government of Sint Maarten. Register.
- The Federal Trade Commission is launching a national education campaign to help small businesses with cybersecurity.
- "Transcom head warns of cyber risks to civilian infrastructure." FCW.
- The Federal Financial Institutions Examination Council issued a statement on cyber insurance and risk management ABA Banking Journal.
- The Marine Corps is experimenting with cyber warriors inside an expeditionary unit. Defense News.
- Carbon Black filed for an initial public offering. Boston Business Journal.
- The U.K.'s National Cyber Security Centre issued a warning on cryptojacking. CoinDesk.

That's all for today. Also all the Boban dancing videos. Dude can move despite being 7'3".

My response:

Good afternoon.

Our office received, via email, the following questions regarding List and Eligibility Maintenance procedures. Below are the questions along with the answers.

Does your office receive juror change of address updates from your Clerk of Circuit Court? [__] YES [X] NO If yes, how often?

The Clerk of Circuit Court does not supply Jury Address Change Lists directly to our office because per Section 98.093(2)(b), Florida Statutes, the Clerk of Circuit Court must furnish to the Division of Elections, a monthly list of persons who have returned signed jury notices indicating a change of address. Once the Division of Elections receives this information, they forward it to all of the Supervisors of Elections.

In 2017, our office received 5 Jury Address Change Lists from the Department of State, Division of Elections, and so far in 2018, our office has received 6 Jury Address Change Lists.

Does your office receive information on the ineligibility of jurors (i.e. felon, non-citizen) from your Clerk of Circuit Court?

[__] YES [X] NO

Per section 98.075, Florida Statutes, the Department of State, Division of Elections receives ineligibility information from, but not limited to, the Clerk of the Circuit Court. The Division does a preliminary review of the information to determine whether it is creditable and reliable. If it is deemed creditable and reliable, the information is forwarded to the appropriate Supervisor of Elections office.

In what format do you receive this information (i.e. spreadsheet, copy of questionnaires?)

Our office receives all of the above information in PDF format.

Please let me know if you have any further questions.

Best,

My response:

Good afternoon,

Our office received, via email, the following questions regarding List and Eligibility Maintenance procedures. Below are the questions along with the answers.

Does your office receive juror change of address updates from your Clerk of Circuit Court? [__] YES [X] NO If yes, how often?

The Clerk of Circuit Court does not supply Jury Address Change Lists directly to our office because per Section 98.093(2)(b), Florida Statutes, the Clerk of Circuit Court must furnish to the Division of Elections, a monthly list of persons who have returned signed jury notices indicating a change of address. Once the Division of Elections receives this information, they forward it to all of the Supervisors of Elections.

In 2017, our office received 5 Jury Address Change Lists from the Department of State, Division of Elections, and so far in 2018, our office has received 6 Jury Address Change Lists.

Does your office receive information on the ineligibility of jurors (i.e. felon, non-citizen) from your Clerk of Circuit Court? [__] YES [X] NO

Per section 98.075, Florida Statutes, the Department of State, Division of Elections receives ineligibility information from, but not limited to, the Clerk of the Circuit Court. The Division does a preliminary review of the information to determine whether it is creditable and reliable. If it is deemed creditable and reliable, the information is forwarded to the appropriate Supervisor of Elections office.

In what format do you receive this information (i.e. spreadsheet, copy of questionnaires?)

Our office receives all of the above information in PDF format.

Please let me know if you have any further questions.

My response:

Good afternoon,

Our office received, via email, the following questions regarding List and Eligibility Maintenance procedures. Below are the questions along with the answers.

Does your office receive juror change of address updates from your Clerk of Circuit Court? [__] YES [X] NO If yes, how often?

The Clerk of Circuit Court does not supply Jury Address Change Lists directly to our office because per Section 98.093(2)(b), Florida Statutes, the Clerk of Circuit Court must furnish to the Division of Elections, a monthly list of persons who have returned signed jury notices indicating a change of address. ## Does your office receive information on the ineligibility of jurors (i.e. felon, non-citizen) from your Clerk of Circuit Court? [__] YES [X] NO

Per section 98.075, Florida Statutes, the Department of State, Division of Elections receives ineligibility information from, but not limited to, the Clerk of the Circuit Court. The Division does a preliminary review of the information to determine whether it is creditable and reliable. If it is deemed creditable and reliable, the information is forwarded to the appropriate Supervisor of Elections office.

My response:

Good afternoon,

Our office received, via email, the following questions regarding List and Eligibility Maintenance procedures. Below are the questions along with the answers.

Does your office receive juror change of address updates from your Clerk of Circuit Court? [__] YES [X] NO If yes, how often?

The Clerk of Circuit Court does not supply Jury Address Change Lists directly to our office because per Section 98.093(2)(b), Florida Statutes, the Clerk of Circuit Court must furnish to the Division of Elections, a monthly list of persons who have returned signed jury notices indicating a change of address. Once the Division of Elections receives this information, they forward it to all of the Supervisors of Elections.

In 2017, our office received 5 Jury Address Change Lists from the Department of State, Division of Elections, and so far in 2018, our office has received 6 Jury Address Change Lists.

Does your office receive information on the ineligibility of jurors (i.e. felon, non-citizen) from your Clerk of Circuit Court?

[__] YES [X] NO

Per section 98.075, Florida Statutes, the Department of State, Division of Elections receives ineligibility information from, but not limited to, the Clerk of the Circuit Court. The Division does a preliminary review of the information to determine whether it is creditable and reliable. If it is deemed creditable and reliable, the information is forwarded to the appropriate Supervisor of Elections office.

In what format do you receive this information (i.e. spreadsheet, copy of questionnaires?)

Our office receives all of the above information in PDF format.

Please let me know if you have any further questions. Best.

My response:

Good afternoon,

Our office received, via email, the following questions regarding List and Eligibility Maintenance procedures. Below are the questions along with the answers.

Does your office receive juror change of address updates from your Clerk of Circuit Court? [__] YES [X] NO If yes, how often?

The Clerk of Circuit Court does not supply Jury Address Change Lists directly to our office because per Section 98.093(2)(b), Florida Statutes, the Clerk of Circuit Court must furnish to the Division of Elections, a monthly list of persons who have returned signed jury notices indicating a change of address. Once the Division of Elections receives this information, they forward it to all of the Supervisors of Elections.

In 2017, our office received 5 Jury Address Change Lists from the Department of State, Division of Elections, and so far in 2018, our office has received 6 Jury Address Change Lists.

Does your office receive information on the ineligibility of jurors (i.e. felon, non-citizen) from your Clerk of Circuit Court? [__] YES [X] NO

Per section 98.075, Florida Statutes, the Department of State, Division of Elections receives ineligibility information from, but not limited to, the Clerk of the Circuit Court. The Division does a preliminary review of the information to determine whether it is creditable and reliable. If it is deemed creditable and reliable, the information is forwarded to the appropriate Supervisor of Elections office.

In what format do you receive this information (i.e. spreadsheet, copy of questionnaires?)

Our office receives all of the above information in PDF format.

Please let me know if you have any further questions.

My response:

Good afternoon,

Our office received, via email, the following questions regarding List and Eligibility Maintenance procedures. Below are the questions along with the answers.

Does your office receive juror change of address updates from your Clerk of Circuit Court? [__] YES [X] NO If yes, how often?

The Clerk of Circuit Court does not supply Jury Address Change Lists directly to our office because per Section 98.093(2)(b), Florida Statutes, the Clerk of Circuit Court must furnish to the Division of Elections, a monthly list of persons who have returned signed jury notices indicating a change of address. Once the Division of Elections receives this information, they forward it to all of the Supervisors of Elections.

In 2017, our office received 5 Jury Address Change Lists from the Department of State, Division of Elections, and so far in 2018, our office has received 6 Jury Address Change Lists.

Does your office receive information on the ineligibility of jurors (i.e. felon, non-citizen) from your Clerk of Circuit Court? [__] YES [X] NO

Per section 98.075, Florida Statutes, the Department of State, Division of Elections receives ineligibility information from, but not limited to, the Clerk of the Circuit Court. The Division does a preliminary review of the information to determine whether it is creditable and reliable. If it is deemed creditable and reliable, the information is forwarded to the appropriate Supervisor of Elections office.

In what format do you receive this information (i.e. spreadsheet, copy of questionnaires?)

Our office receives all of the above information in PDF format.

Please let me know if you have any further questions.

Does your office receive information on the ineligibility of jurors (i.e. felon, non-citizen) from your Clerk of Circuit Court? [__] YES [X] NO

Per section 98.075, Florida Statutes, the Department of State, Division of Elections receives ineligibility information from, but not limited to, the Clerk of the Circuit Court. The Division does a preliminary review of the information to determine whether it is creditable and reliable. If it is deemed creditable and reliable, the information is forwarded to the appropriate Supervisor of Elections office.

In what format do you receive this information (i.e. spreadsheet, copy of questionnaires?)

Our office receives all of the above information in PDF format.

Please let me know if you have any further questions.

My response:

Good afternoon,

Our office received, via email, the following questions regarding List and Eligibility Maintenance procedures. Below are the questions along with the answers.

Does your office receive juror change of address updates from your Clerk of Circuit Court? [__] YES [X] NO If yes, how often?

The Clerk of Circuit Court does not supply Jury Address Change Lists directly to our office because per Section 98.093(2)(b), Florida Statutes, the Clerk of Circuit Court must furnish to the Division of Elections, a monthly list of persons who have returned signed jury notices indicating a change of address. Once the Division of Elections receives this information, they forward it to all of the Supervisors of Elections.

In 2017, our office received 5 Jury Address Change Lists from the Department of State, Division of Elections, and so far in 2018, our office has received 6 Jury Address Change Lists.

Good afternoon,

Our office received, via email, the following questions regarding List and Eligibility Maintenance procedures. Below are the questions along with the answers.

Does your office receive juror change of address updates from your Clerk of Circuit Court? [__] YES [X] NO If yes, how often?

The Clerk of Circuit Court does not supply Jury Address Change Lists directly to our office because per Section 98.093(2)(b), Florida Statutes, the Clerk of Circuit Court must furnish to the Division of Elections, a monthly list of persons who have returned signed jury notices indicating a change of address. Once the Division of Elections receives this information, they forward it to all of the Supervisors of Elections.

In 2017, our office received 5 Jury Address Change Lists from the Department of State, Division of Elections, and so far in 2018, our office has received 6 Jury Address Change Lists.

Does your office receive information on the ineligibility of jurors (i.e. felon, non-citizen) from your Clerk of Circuit Court?

[__] YES [X] NO

Per section 98.075, Florida Statutes, the Department of State, Division of Elections receives ineligibility information from, but not limited to, the Clerk of the Circuit Court. The Division does a preliminary review of the information to determine whether it is creditable and reliable. If it is deemed creditable and reliable, the information is forwarded to the appropriate Supervisor of Elections office.

In what format do you receive this information (i.e. spreadsheet, copy of questionnaires?)

Our office receives all of the above information in PDF format.

Please let me know if you have any further questions. Best,

Please describe the request: Received 4/26/18 10:28 AM
Dear Supervisor Earley:
The American Civil Rights Union is interested in determining the use of certain voter list maintenance procedures. I hope that you will assist us by answering the following questions. (Please just reply to info@theacru.org and add your answers.)
Does your office receive juror change of address updates from your Clerk of Circuit Court?  [] YES [] NO  If yes, how often?
Does your office receive information on the ineligibility of jurors (i.e. felon, non-citizen) from your Clerk of Circuit Court?  [] YES [] NO  If yes, how often?
In what format do you receive this information (i.e. spreadsheet, copy of questionnaires?)
If you wish to provide additional detail about the sharing of data between the Clerks of Circuit Court, Division of Elections or DMV and your office, please tell us how in your reply.
Thank you very much for providing this information. Please don't hesitate to call me if you have any questions.
Sincerely,
Jan Tyler

Vote@ received the below request from the ACLU.

They asked three questions:

1. Do we received juror change of address updates from Clerk of Court (Yes or No). If yes, how often?

2. Does your office receive information on the ineligibility of jurors (ie felon/non citizen) from Clerk of Court (Yes or No). If yes, how often?
3. What Format do we receive info from Clerk of Court?

My response:

Good afternoon,

Our office received, via email, the following questions regarding List and Eligibility Maintenance procedures. Below are the questions along with the answers.

Does your office receive juror change of address updates from your Clerk of Circuit Court? [__] YES [X] NO If yes, how often?

The Clerk of Circuit Court does not supply Jury Address Change Lists directly to our office because per Section 98.093(2)(b), Florida Statutes, the Clerk of Circuit Court must furnish to the Division of Elections, a monthly list of persons who have returned signed jury notices indicating a change of address. Once the Division of Elections receives this information, they forward it to all of the Supervisors of Elections.

In 2017, our office received 5 Jury Address Change Lists from the Department of State, Division of Elections, and so far in 2018, our office has received 6 Jury Address Change Lists.

Does your office receive information on the ineligibility of jurors (i.e. felon, non-citizen) from your Clerk of Circuit Court? [__] YES [X] NO

Per section 98.075, Florida Statutes, the Department of State, Division of Elections receives ineligibility information from, but not limited to, the Clerk of the Circuit Court. The Division does a preliminary review of the information to determine whether it is creditable and reliable. If it is deemed creditable and reliable, the information is forwarded to the appropriate Supervisor of Elections office.

In what format do you receive this information (i.e. spreadsheet, copy of questionnaires?)

Our office receives all of the above information in PDF format.

Please let me know if you have any further questions.

My response:

Good afternoon,

Our office received, via email, the following questions regarding List and Eligibility Maintenance procedures. Below are the questions along with the answers.

Does your office receive juror change of address updates from your Clerk of Circuit Court? [__] YES [X] NO If yes, how often?

The Clerk of Circuit Court does not supply Jury Address Change Lists directly to our office because per Section 98.093(2)(b), Florida Statutes, the Clerk of Circuit Court must furnish to the Division of Elections, a monthly list of persons who have returned signed jury notices indicating a change of address. Once the Division of Elections receives this information, they forward it to all of the Supervisors of Elections.

In 2017, our office received 5 Jury Address Change Lists from the Department of State, Division of Elections, and so far in 2018, our office has received 6 Jury Address Change Lists.

Does your office receive information on the ineligibility of jurors (i.e. felon, non-citizen) from your Clerk of Circuit Court? [__] YES [X] NO

Per section 98.075, Florida Statutes, the Department of State, Division of Elections receives ineligibility information from, but not limited to, the Clerk of the Circuit Court. The Division does a preliminary review of the information to determine whether it is creditable and reliable. If it is deemed creditable and reliable, the information is forwarded to the appropriate Supervisor of Elections office.

In what format do you receive this information (i.e. spreadsheet, copy of questionnaires?)

Our office receives all of the above information in PDF format.

Please let me know if you have any further questions.

My response:

Good afternoon,

Our office received, via email, the following questions regarding List and Eligibility Maintenance procedures. Below are the questions along with the answers.

Does your office receive juror change of address updates from your Clerk of Circuit Court? [__] YES [X] NO If yes, how often?

The Clerk of Circuit Court does not supply Jury Address Change Lists directly to our office because per Section 98.093(2)(b), Florida Statutes, the Clerk of Circuit Court must furnish to the Division of Elections, a monthly list of persons who have returned signed jury notices indicating a change of address. Once the Division of Elections receives this information, they forward it to all of the Supervisors of Elections.

In 2017, our office received 5 Jury Address Change Lists from the Department of State, Division of Elections, and so far in 2018, our office has received 6 Jury Address Change Lists.

Does your office receive information on the ineligibility of jurors (i.e. felon, non-citizen) from your Clerk of Circuit Court? [__] YES [X] NO

Per section 98.075, Florida Statutes, the Department of State, Division of Elections receives ineligibility information from, but not limited to, the Clerk of the Circuit Court. The Division does a preliminary review of the information to determine whether it is creditable and reliable. If it is deemed creditable and reliable, the information is forwarded to the appropriate Supervisor of Elections office.

In what format do you receive this information (i.e. spreadsheet, copy of questionnaires?)

Our office receives all of the above information in PDF format.

Please let me know if you have any further questions.

My response:

Good afternoon,

Our office received, via email, the following questions regarding List and Eligibility Maintenance procedures. Below are the questions along with the answers.

Does your office receive juror change of address updates from your Clerk of Circuit Court? [__] YES [X] NO If yes, how often?

The Clerk of Circuit Court does not supply Jury Address Change Lists directly to our office because per Section 98.093(2)(b), Florida Statutes, the Clerk of Circuit Court must furnish to the Division of Elections, a monthly list of persons who have returned signed jury notices indicating a change of address. Once the Division of Elections receives this information, they forward it to all of the Supervisors of Elections.

In 2017, our office received 5 Jury Address Change Lists from the Department of State, Division of Elections, and so far in 2018, our office has received 6 Jury Address Change Lists.

Does your office receive information on the ineligibility of jurors (i.e. felon, non-citizen) from your Clerk of Circuit Court? [__] YES [X] NO

Per section 98.075, Florida Statutes, the Department of State, Division of Elections receives ineligibility information from, but not limited to, the Clerk of the Circuit Court. The Division does a preliminary review of the information to determine whether it is creditable and reliable. If it is deemed creditable and reliable, the information is forwarded to the appropriate Supervisor of Elections office.

In what format do you receive this information (i.e. spreadsheet, copy of questionnaires?)

Our office receives all of the above information in PDF format.

Please let me know if you have any further questions.

My response:

Good afternoon,

Our office received, via email, the following questions regarding List and Eligibility Maintenance procedures. Below are the questions along with the answers.

Does your office receive juror change of address updates from your Clerk of Circuit Court? [__] YES [X] NO If yes, how often?

The Clerk of Circuit Court does not supply Jury Address Change Lists directly to our office because per Section 98.093(2)(b), Florida Statutes, the Clerk of Circuit Court must furnish to the Division of Elections, a monthly list of persons who have returned signed jury notices indicating a change of address. Once the Division of Elections receives this information, they forward it to all of the Supervisors of Elections.

In 2017, our office received 5 Jury Address Change Lists from the Department of State, Division of Elections, and so far in 2018, our office has received 6 Jury Address Change Lists.

Does your office receive information on the ineligibility of jurors (i.e. felon, non-citizen) from your Clerk of Circuit Court? [__] YES [X] NO

Per section 98.075, Florida Statutes, the Department of State, Division of Elections receives ineligibility information from, but not limited to, the Clerk of the Circuit Court. The Division does a preliminary review of the information to determine whether it is creditable and reliable. If it is deemed creditable and reliable, the information is forwarded to the appropriate Supervisor of Elections office.

In what format do you receive this information (i.e. spreadsheet, copy of questionnaires?)

Our office receives all of the above information in PDF format.

Please let me know if you have any further questions.

Vote@ received the below request from the ACLU.

They asked three questions:

- 1. Do we received juror change of address updates from Clerk of Court (Yes or No). If yes, how often?
- 2. Does your office receive information on the ineligibility of jurors (ie felon/non citizen) from Clerk of Court (Yes or No). If yes, how often?

  3. What Format do we receive info from Clerk of Court?

Dear Supervisor Earley:
The American Civil Rights Union is interested in determining the use of certain voter list maintenance procedures. I hope that you will assist us by answering the following questions. (Please just reply to info@theacru.org and add your answers.)
Does your office receive juror change of address updates from your Clerk of Circuit Court? [] YES [] NO If yes, how often?
Does your office receive information on the ineligibility of jurors (i.e. felon, non-citizen) from your Clerk of Circuit Court? [] YES [] NO If yes, how often?
In what format do you receive this information (i.e. spreadsheet, copy of questionnaires? )
If you wish to provide additional detail about the sharing of data between the Clerks of Circuit Court, Division of Elections or DMV and your office, please tell us how in your reply.
Thank you very much for providing this information. Please don't hesitate to call me if you have any questions.
Sincerely,
Jan Tyler Florida Director info@theacru.org (303) 929-2066

RUSSIAN FIRMS DECRY CYBER SANCTIONS - U.S. sanctions on Russian companies accused of helping the Kremlin launch cyberattacks caught the security research community and several of the targeted firms off guard. The Treasury Department sanctions announced Monday seek to punish Digital Security, the Kvant Scientific Research Institute and Divetechnoservices, along with two companies that the U.S. says are "owned or controlled" by Digital Security: ERPScan and Embedi. But cyber experts were surprised to see ERPScan and Embedi on the list. The companies are "key infosec vendors," tweeted independent security researcher Kevin Beaumont. ERPScan is highly respected by the research giant Gartner for its analysis of SAP enterprise security platforms, Beaumont told MC in an email. Embedi is well-known for finding flaws in Intel's computer chips. "There is either a huge mistake or the US knows something amazing we don't," said a respected security researcher who goes by the pseudonym "the grugq."

The companies claim to be just as surprised. Alexander Polyakov, ERPScan's founder and chief technology officer, told CyberScoop that his company was not a subsidiary of Digital Security. Alex Kruglov, Embedi's marketing chief, told CyberScoop that the company had "never worked for [the] Russian government." He also denied that his company was a Digital Security subsidiary, though he admitted that some Embedi researchers and the company's current CEO used to work there.

The situation is likely the product of the peculiar job market for digital security researchers, many of whom move frequently between government and industry. "I guess these companies may have hired people with interesting backgrounds," Beaumont said. "One thing with hardcore cybersecurity research - there's a very limited talent pool."

Beaumont also noted that "lots of researchers get into bed with their local intelligence agencies at some stage." Polyakov FL-LEON-19-0521-A-002320 told Motherboard that the U.S. sanctioned his firm simply because "I and some of my peers were born in Russia."

Democratic lawmakers praised the Treasury Department for the new sanctions, which were partly issued under a law that Congress passed last year to tighten the screws on Russia and other foreign adversaries. The move "sends an important message that we will not tolerate Russia's behavior," said Sen. Amy Klobuchar, though she added that "sanctions alone will not stop Russian cyberattacks." In addition to the companies, the sanctions cover three Divetechnoservices executives. "The entities designated today have directly contributed to improving Russia's cyber and underwater capabilities through their work with the FSB," Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin said in a statement, "and therefore jeopardize the safety and security of the United States and our allies."

WYDEN OPENS ELECTION SECURITY FRONTS - Sen. Ron Wyden is introducing election security legislation today that requires paper ballots and "risk-limiting" audits that verify results. Currently, 18 states use paperless machines in at least some jurisdictions, and 22 states do not require any post-election audits. Wyden's bill counts two potential Democratic presidential hopefuls, Sens. Kirsten Gillibrand and Elizabeth Warren, among its co-sponsors, as well as Patty Murray, the Senate's No. 3 Democrat. A summary of the legislation from Wyden's office asserts that the subject requires federal action. But: "This bill is the least-intrusive way to secure federal elections. It does not require federal personnel to secure or monitor states' voting infrastructure, it does not regulate the voting technology manufacturers, it does not impose detailed technological cybersecurity standards on state election bodies, nor require indepth, third-party audits of states' election cybersecurity."

On Monday, Wyden wrote to the Election Assistance Commission about what kind of guidance the commission was giving states on the recently appropriated $380 million election security fund. "Absent guidance from the EAC, states may opt to spend these new funds on insecure voting technology," he wrote to the commission in a letter that requested up-to-date advice. He asked whether it employs full-time technical staff with cybersecurity expertise, and whether the commission has a process for making sure EAC-verified voting systems keep up with the best cybersecurity advice. Additionally, Wyden asked what outside experts the commission has relied on since 2016, since Commissioner Christy McCormick last year dismissed intelligence community conclusions that Russia was behind the U.S. election interference and cited John McAfee, a cyber pioneer widely known these days for his eccentric commentary.

WARNER TALKS CYBER BIG PICTURE - Mark Warner, the top Democrat on the Senate Intelligence Committee, contends that the U.S. military is misguided in its spending priorities on cyber. In a speech last week at an event that was closed to the press, Warner noted that the Pentagon far outspends Russia's military. "But we're spending it mostly on weapons designed to win wars that take place in the air, on land, and at sea," he said, according to prepared remarks Warner's office shared with MC. "We must expand our toolkit so we can win on all the 21st century battlefields." A missing overarching doctrine doesn't help either. "The absence of such a doctrine governing responses to cyberattacks allows for rapid, unpredictable escalation because our adversaries do not know what actions will trigger what responses," he said. "It took centuries of land wars to define rules of armed conflict and create militarily norms around proportionality, meaning what type of actions will trigger limited or full-scale military responses. There are no rules of the road in cyberspace, which leaves us open to an accidental conflict."

Furthermore, the U.S. is not leading enough internationally. "When it comes to cyber norms, we are allowing other nations to write the playbook," Warner told an audience that included the NSA workforce. "All of you in this room know better than anyone that creating universal cyber norms is not an easy task. We will need the help of everyone in this room to strike the right balance between protecting our national security without stifling innovation and our companies' competitive edge." The approach to developing international cyber norms could follow the tack the U.S. took during the nuclear arms race when it waged an international campaign to highlight the dangers of atomic weapons.

"Today, we need to undertake a similar campaign to work with other countries to set forth a common set of standards governing cyber," Warner said. "We need strong and predictable rules that keeps people, products, ideas, and capital flowing. And that also protect our critical systems and national infrastructure."

DEFENSE POLICY BILL IN THE HOME STRETCH - The Senate on Monday made its first substantive changes to its version of the fiscal 2019 National Defense Authorization Act. Sen. Jim Inhofe, the top Republican on the Senate Armed Services Committee in the absence of Chairman John McCain, offered a bipartisan package of 44 amendments, which was adopted to a substitute amendment that contains the Armed Services' massive defense policy bill, S. 2987. The Senate is using the House-passed NDAA, H.R. 5515, as a vehicle. Included in the package is a bipartisan amendment by Sens. Tom Cotton and Chris Van Hollen to reimpose sanctions on Chinese telecom giant ZTE. The measure, if included in the final bill, would effectively reverse the deal the Trump administration announced last week to get the phone-maker back into the U.S. market. Another bipartisan addendum on cyber scholarships and another requiring a briefing on digital education and training also made the cut.

There could be more changes yet to come. Warner and Sen. Cory Gardner filed an amendment on Monday that would apply their internet of things security bill to DoD purchases. Lawmakers likely will know more about the ultimate state of the chamber's annual defense policy bill after today's party lunches, though there might not necessarily be a final decision on amendments.

PANEL TAKES ON ELECTION MEDDLING - The Senate Judiciary Committee today dives into election interference, especially how law enforcement is equipped to deal with it. The panel will hear from Adam Hickey, deputy assistant attorney general in the Justice Department's National Security Division, and Matthew Masterson, a senior adviser on election security at DHS, among others. A Senate aide told MC that Democrats are expected to cover the waterfront, including what's being done, what else can be done, what laws apply, WikiLeaks and the Trump tower meeting between campaign officials and a Russian lawyer.

WE ALL LIVE IN A HACKED SUBMARINE - A top Senate Democrat seemingly confirmed that Chinese hackers successfully stole massive amounts of data about U.S. Navy submarine programs from a government contractor. The "very serious" incident "involved information that in itself may not have been classified but cumulatively is very revealing of programs," Sen. Jack Reed, the ranking member on the Senate Armed Services Committee, told reporters on Monday. Investigators blame the digital attack on the Chinese Ministry of State Security. The theft has special meaning to Reed, as the contractor was reportedly working for an organization at Naval Station Newport in his home state. Reed said he spoke with Chief of Naval Operations Adm. John Richardson to "one, make sure they were thoroughly evaluating the impact of the breach; two, that they were going to hold accountable the responsible parties; and three, that they were going to ensure that will prevent any further encroachments like this if at all possible."

HI, I'M APPLE (NOT REALLY) - Researchers today are releasing findings about a vulnerability in eight top security vendors that effectively allows hackers to impersonate Apple and place malicious code in macOS products. Identity security firm Okta said it had notified the vendors about the "code signing" trick and patches were on the way. "By exploiting this vulnerability, threat actors can trick even the most security savvy people and bypass a core security function that most end users don't know or think about as they go about their digital activities," wrote Matias Brutti, director of Okta REX, its Research & Exploitation Team. "And, with the proliferation of apps for the workplace and personal use in everybody's daily lives, bad actors can easily abuse this vulnerability."

SYSADMINS TAKE NOTE - Hackers could have exploited a flaw in popular video processing devices to completely commandeer the boxes and jump to other parts of a network, the security firm Rapid7 revealed today. The firm's researchers discovered a vulnerability in Crestron Electronics' DGE-100 box, which are commonly installed in offices to boost the features of touchscreen displays. The DGE-100's product page says it "provides for the creation of a completely custom graphical environment combining advanced controls for audio & video, lighting, shades, HVAC, security, and other functions with dual-window video display, annotation, audio feedback, and web browsing." The flaw in the product's Crestron Console service meant that if a DGE-100 box's owner didn't set an administrator password, anyone could gain root access to the device and turn it into "a persistent 'beachhead' into the affected network," according to Rapid7's analysis. Crestron issued a patch on June 4, two months after Rapid7 first alerted it to the threat, and the manufacturer said there was "no evidence of any customers being impacted by this issue." Rapid7 encouraged DGE-100 owners to immediately update their firmware and ensure that their boxes had administrator passwords.

ON YOUR MARKS, GET SET... - The U.S. Cyber Challenge is getting ready to launch its 2018 boot camps with an event at Virginia Tech that will bring together students for "intensive instruction by some of the nation's leading cybersecurity experts," the organization said Monday. The June 18-22 boot camp will feature classes on subjects like Windows memory forensics and penetration testing. Cyber experts will visit the students on Wednesday for a lunch discussion about "the needs our country has today for talented individuals in cybersecurity and the hurdles employers face in both acquiring talent and retaining the talent," according to a statement. The boot camp is the first of four such conferences across the country this summer; the others will take place in Delaware, Illinois and Nevada. DHS, the Center for Internet Security and Amazon, among other entities, have partnered to fund the training sessions. Karen Evans, national director of the U.S. Cyber Challenge, said her group's goal was to "help these talented individuals strengthen their skill sets in information security and begin a path toward their dream career and securing our nation's government and economy."

TWEET OF THE DAY - Anyone who plugs this in should probably be fired, yeah?

REPORT WATCH

- Most IT pros believe email security breaches are growing more costly, according to a new survey out today from security firm Barracuda Networks and Dimensional Research. In a poll of 600 professionals, 81 percent said the cost was rising dramatically or at least somewhat.

PEOPLE ON THE MOVE

- Lucas Schleusener, who worked in the Obama administration as a speechwriting assistant at the Defense Department and national security associate at the White House, is joining cybersecurity startup Fractal Industries as director of public policy. He comes over from Avicenna Strategy.
- Tech company Evotek has hired Matt Stamper as its chief information security officer and an executive adviser. He previously worked as research director at Gartner's security and risk management practice.

Lots of excellent stuff here, but he seems confused about BMDs, given that something like current BMDs are needed in some circumstances for accessibility, and that both BMD produced ballots and hand-marked paper ballots need the same auditing. Stressing the need for voters to actually verify the paper ballots that BMDs produce, and that vendors should design a UX that makes that common, should be the main focus.

COMMITTEE ON BUDGET
COMMITTEE ON ENERGY & NATURAL RESOURCES
SELECT COMMITTEE ON INTELLIGENCE
JOINT COMMITTEE ON TAXATION

221 DIRKSEN SENATE OFFICE BUILDING WASHINGTON, DC 20510 (202) 224-5244

June 11, 2018

Commissioner Thomas Hicks, Chair Commissioner Christy McCormick, Vice Chair U.S. Election Assistance Commission 1335 East West Highway, Suite 4300 Silver Spring, MD 20910

Dear Commissioners Hicks and McCormick:

I write to inquire about the Election Assistance Commission's (EAC) efforts to help states improve the cybersecurity of elections.

In 2005, the EAC published the Voluntary Voting System Guidelines (VVSG)-recommendations designed to ensure state voting systems guarantee "basic functionality, accessibility, and security." These guidelines serve as suggestions to the states and producers of voting technology-several of which cite compliance with the VVSG as evidence that their products are secure.

In 2007, the National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST) compiled a set of suggested changes to the VVSG, including recommending the use of voter-verifiable paper ballots. The EAC subsequently rejected these recommendations. Although the EAC has made revisions to the VVSG since, the guidelines still encourage states to adopt policies-including certifying machines that make auditing difficult and permitting voting systems to be connected to the intemet-that are wildly inconsistent with modem cybersecurity best practices.

Given the well-resourced, organized, and persistent threat posed by foreign governments to the integrity of our elections, it is more important than ever that the EAC promote the use of secure voting technologies and practices. Indeed, earlier this year, congress recognized the importance of election security by appropriating $380 million for the EAC to distribute to states for election technology and security upgrades.

Absent guidance from the EAC, some states may opt to spend these new funds on insecure voting technology. Election security experts have worked tirelessly to understand and articulate the vulnerabilities certain types of machines can introduce into elections. For instance, paperless 'direct-recording electronic' (DRE) machines cannot be meaningfully audited and leave voters unsure whether their vote will be properly tabulated. Newer voting technologies, including 'voter verified paper audit trails' (VVPAT) voting machines and 'ballot marking devices' (BMD) that generate non-human readable printouts like barcodes, theoretically allow voters to verify their ballots. Security experts agree, however, that in practice these machines do not substantially increase election security and in fact enable cyberattacks through malware and system failure. Failing to clearly impart this knowledge to the states would be a tremendous wasted opportunity.

Beyond voter verification, it is important that voting machines employ basic cyber hygiene. Specifically, voting machines and the computers used to program them should never be connected to the internet, nor should remote administration software ever be installed on them.

The EAC must act to secure our elections from advanced cyber threats. In particular, the EAC should issue up-to-date guidelines that incorporate the recommendations of cybersecurity experts. The EAC should also promptly advise states against using EAC-distributed federal funds to purchase insecure voting technologies-described above-which violate cybersecurity best practices. I would also appreciate responses to the following questions by July 15, 2018:

- 1. Does the EAC currently employ any full-time technical staff with demonstrated expertise in cybersecurity?
  - a. If yes, please describe their roles and responsibilities.
  - b. If not, please explain why.
- 2. What are the EAC's processes for ensuring that EAC-certified voting systems used by states are properly maintained by manufacturers and administrators such that they adhere to cybersecurity best practices?
- 3. Has the EAC ever revoked the certification of a voting system because of a cybersecurity issue?
  - a. If yes, please provide a record of any such instances.
  - b. If no, does this mean that the EAC believes that all previously certified voting machines are still secure?
- 4. How will the EAC ensure that the cybersecurity concerns outlined by cybersecurity experts, including those at NIST, are properly conveyed to states as the states determine how to spend their share of the $380 million dollars recently appropriated by Congress?
- 5. Does the EAC support the common-sense requirement for open-ended investigation of potential vulnerabilities, such as penetration testing, red teaming, or open-ended vulnerability testing, in voting systems by an independent body of experts before certification?
  - a. If not, please explain why.
  - b. If yes, please describe what steps, if any, the EAC has taken to facilitate or encourage these robust cybersecurity-testing practices.

6. In a public letter on January 7, 2017, Commissioner McCormick dismissed the intelligence community's assessment that Russia engaged in election interference in 2016. In support of this claim, Commissioner McCormick cited statements made by John McAfee during a TV appearance on Russia Today on January 6, 2017. In her letter, Commissioner McCormick described Mr. McAfee as a "cyber security expert." Please identify all of the other cybersecurity experts the EAC has relied upon for advice since January 2016.

If you have any questions regarding this request, please contact Chris Soghoian in my office.

Sincerely,

/s/

Ron Wyden United States Senator

WHERE SCOTUS FINALISTS STAND - President Donald Trump is expected to announce his pick to replace Justice Anthony Kennedy tonight, and the MC team dug into the records of the three most widely reported finalists for their positions on cybersecurity and related topics:

- KAVANAUGH: The federal judge whom Trump appears most likely to nominate has a history of embracing warrantless surveillance and rejecting Fourth Amendment challenges to it. Judge Brett Kavanaugh of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit wrote a concurring opinion in 2015 when the court declined to rehear a case affirming the legality of the NSA's warrantless phone metadata collection program. The operation, exposed by former NSA contractor Edward Snowden in 2013, "is entirely consistent with the Fourth Amendment," Kavanaugh wrote, citing the "third-party doctrine" that says records collection from a service provider like a phone company does not constitute a search of the customer. (Months earlier, Congress had enacted a law requiring the NSA to stop collecting the records itself and begin requesting them from the phone companies.) Furthermore, he wrote, a "critical national security need outweighs the impact on privacy occasioned by this program."

Five years earlier, Kavanaugh dissented from the court's decision not to reconsider its ruling that authorities had violated a suspect's Fourth Amendment rights by placing a GPS tracker on his car without a warrant. The ruling was "inconsistent" with judicial precedent, Kavanaugh and other Republican appointees argued. According to them, the suspect had no reasonable expectation of privacy in his public movements, and so the court should have heeded a 1983 Supreme Court ruling that allowed warrantless monitoring of a vehicle's physical movements. Interestingly, though, Kavanaugh wrote a separate statement arguing that the government might have violated the suspect's Fourth Amendment property right by tampering with his vehicle. In a landmark Supreme Court decision two years later, Justice Antonin Scalia agreed with this argument and cited it while ruling that authorities needed a warrant to attach a GPS tracker to a suspect's car.

- KETHLEDGE: Judge Raymond Kethledge, a Michigan resident, has served on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 6th Circuit for a decade. Most notably, he wrote the court's decision in Carpenter v. United States, which argued the government was right to convict plaintiff Timothy Carpenter on armed robbery charges after law enforcement obtained cellphone location data without a warrant to place him near a series of robberies. The key question was whether cellphone companies' data regarding where customers' calls are placed is also protected by the Fourth Amendment's shield against "unreasonable search and seizure."

Last month the Supreme Court reversed the decision, determining that the government must get a warrant to obtain cell site location information. Chief Justice John Roberts, writing for the majority, argued that because of "the unique nature of cell phone location records, the fact that the information is held by a third party does not by itself overcome the user's claim to Fourth Amendment protection."

- BARRETT: Only selected for her first judicial appointment last year, U.S. Court of Appeals for the 7th Circuit Judge Amy Coney Barrett has yet to weigh in on any significant cases on cybersecurity or similar tech issues. And her prior scholarly writings - which drew the most attention during her Senate Judiciary hearing last year, particularly her views on social issues - are similarly barren on the subject.

Nonetheless, during a discussion at that hearing about Roe v. Wade, Barrett declined to say whether she personally thought privacy was a constitutionally protected right. "The court has quite clearly held that it is," she answered Sen. Richard Blumenthal. Pressed again, she responded, "I would follow all court precedent, and whether I agree or disagree would be beside the point to the discharge of my duties." Pressed a third time, she said, "I think the question is whether I have personal views that would be appropriate to share in this context, given the misimpression it would give litigants who might appear before me if I were confirmed." The only other vague hint of where she might stand on tech and privacy goes back to her clerkship under Justice Antonin Scalia from 1998 to 1999, whose views on those subjects earned him grudging admiration from civil liberties advocates.

- Take two for Thomas Hardiman, from our friends at Morning Tech: After reportedly narrowing his list down to three finalists, Trump is giving the Third Circuit judge an eleventh-hour second-glance. Hardiman, who was on the president's shortlist the last time there was a Supreme Court vacancy, has faced plenty of public vetting over his views on guns. But here's a few tech-related cases we've dug up on him: he was part of a panel that upheld the conviction of a man who made violent remarks on Facebook after the Supreme Court remanded; herevived an attorney's lawsuit challenging the NSA's electronic surveillance program, writing that the attorney had done enough to tentatively show his Google, Facebook and Dropbox content may have been seized in the dragnet; and he has authored opinions challenging the rules of FCC spectrum auctions, writing in 2010 that the agency had failed to give proper notice in how it developed some auction rules but was "loath" to unwind the results of the auctions.

THE WEEK AHEAD - Two committees hold simultaneous hearings Wednesday checking in on election security, with both the Senate Rules and House Homeland Security panels convening. Election Assistance Commission Chairman Thomas Hicks and EAC Vice Chairwoman Christy McCormick testify before the Senate Rules Committee in the first group of witnesses, alongside Matt Masterson, senior cybersecurity adviser at DHS, and Charles Romine, director of the information technology laboratory at technical standards agency NIST. Three election vendors testify in the second group of witnesses. The Homeland Security Committee hasn't yet announced its witness list, although its reach is broader than just election security, including DHS's performance on protecting "other critical infrastructure."

Also Wednesday, the Senate Commerce Committee will meet to discuss Meltdown and Spectre, the critical processor flaw discovered earlier this year. The only government witness is Donna Dodson, chief cybersecurity adviser and director of the National Cybersecurity Center of Excellence at NIST. Other witnesses come from ARM - a chip manufacturer that was affected less by the flaw that Intel - and academia.

As if Wednesday wasn't busy enough, the House Rules Committee weighs what kind of amendments to allow to an intelligence policy bill (H.R. 6237), and as usual there are a handful of cybersecurity amendments on the slate. The boldest, offered by Democratic Rep. Alcee Hastings, would create a national cybersecurity coordinator, chosen by the Office of the Director of National Intelligence. Members of both parties have criticized the White House for eliminating its cybersecurity coordinator position. The bill could see floor action this week.

WRONG AGAIN - Trump inaccurately said late last week that a federal judge's decision to throw out a lawsuit related to the DNC hack proved his long-running claim that the entire Russian hacking story was a hoax. "Just won lawsuit filed by the DNC and a bunch of Democrat crazies trying to claim the Trump Campaign (and others), colluded with Russia," Trump tweeted after the judge tossed the lawsuit, which was brought by DNC donors and a former staffer, not the committee itself.

Right-wing pundits and conservative blogs were quick to repeat Trump's argument. But in dismissing the lawsuit, the judge did not weigh in on the merits of the plaintiffs' claims, which centered on an alleged conspiracy between the Trump campaign, former adviser Roger Stone, the Russian government, and WikiLeaks to disrupt the 2016 campaign by publishing stolen Democratic emails. "It bears emphasizing that this Court's ruling is not based on a finding that there was no collusion between defendants and Russia during the 2016 presidential election," wrote Judge Ellen Huvelle, a Bill Clinton appointee to the federal district court in Washington. "This is the wrong forum for plaintiffs' lawsuit. The Court takes no position on the merits of plaintiffs' claims."

The group that represented the plaintiffs said it "respectfully disagree[d]" with the ruling but called the case "far from over." "The Court recognizes that there is sufficient evidence to suggest a conspiracy between the Trump Campaign and the Kremlin, but believes this case belongs in a different court," Ian Bassin of Protect Democracy said in a statement. "What today's decision indicates is that the merits of this case will proceed somewhere."

GEORGIA STEPS UP IN CYBER - State government agencies and universities will inaugurate a new cybersecurity partnership on Tuesday in Augusta, Ga. The aptly named Georgia Cyber Center will bring together the Georgia Bureau of Investigation, the Georgia Department of Defense, the City of Augusta, Augusta University, the Technical College System of Georgia and other organizations "to strengthen cyber defenses and combat the growing number and complexity of cyberattacks," according to a statement. The Hull McKnight Building, home of the cyber center, will host a cyber range where students and professionals can test their skills and explore new technologies; an incubator for cutting-edge technologies; a shared space for Augusta University and Augusta Technical College to merge their resources and classes; and a cybercrime forensics center where Georgia's many law enforcement agencies can access state investigators' forensic expertise. Georgia hailed the $100 million building, which took 17 months to complete, as "the single largest investment in a cybersecurity facility by a state government to date, strengthening the state of Georgia's position as a national leader in cybersecurity."

RECENTLY ON PRO CYBERSECURITY - Russian President Vladimir Putin said global cooperation is the only way to combat cyberattacks. ... The FAA must do more to mitigate security risks to its Data Communications system, according to the DOT inspector general. ... The European Data Protection Board issued a letter it sent to the nonprofit coordinating internet domain names, pressuring it to comply with Europe's General Data Protection Regulation.

WHERE SCOTUS FINALISTS STAND — President Donald Trump is expected to announce his pick to replace Justice Anthony Kennedy tonight, and the MC team dug into the records of the three most widely reported finalists for their positions on cybersecurity and related topics:

— KAVANAUGH: The federal judge whom Trump appears most likely to nominate has a history of embracing warrantless surveillance and rejecting Fourth Amendment challenges to it. Judge Brett Kavanaugh of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit wrote a concurring opinion in 2015 when the court declined to rehear a case affirming the legality of the NSA's warrantless phone metadata collection program. The operation, exposed by former NSA contractor Edward Snowden in 2013, "is entirely consistent with the Fourth Amendment," Kavanaugh wrote, citing the "third-party doctrine" that says records collection from a service provider like a phone company does not constitute a search of the customer. (Months earlier, Congress had enacted a law requiring the NSA to stop collecting the records itself and begin requesting them from the phone companies.) Furthermore, he wrote, a "critical national security need outweighs the impact on privacy occasioned by this program."

Five years earlier, Kavanaugh dissented from the court's decision not to reconsider itsruling that authorities had violated a suspect's Fourth Amendment rights by placing a GPS tracker on his car without a warrant. The ruling was "inconsistent" with judicial precedent, Kavanaugh and other Republican appointees argued. According to them, the suspect had no reasonable expectation of privacy in his public movements, and so the court should have heeded a 1983 Supreme Court ruling that allowed warrantless monitoring of a vehicle's physical movements. Interestingly, though, Kavanaugh wrote a separate statement arguing that the government might have violated the suspect's Fourth Amendment property right by tampering with his vehicle. In a landmark Supreme Court decision two years later, Justice Antonin Scalia agreed with this argument and cited it while ruling that authorities needed a warrant to attach a GPS tracker to a suspect's car.

— KETHLEDGE: Judge Raymond Kethledge, a Michigan resident, has served on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 6th Circuit for a decade. Most notably, he wrote the court's decision in Carpenter v. United States, which argued the government was right to convict plaintiff Timothy Carpenter on armed robbery charges after law enforcement obtained cellphone location data without a warrant to place him near a series of robberies. The key question was whether cellphone companies' data regarding where customers' calls are placed is also protected by the Fourth Amendment's shield against "unreasonable search and seizure."

Last month the Supreme Court reversed the decision, determining that the government must get a warrant to obtain cell site location information. Chief Justice John Roberts, writing for the majority, argued that because of "the unique nature of cell phone location records, the fact that the information is held by a third party does not by itself overcome the user's claim to Fourth Amendment protection."

— BARRETT: Only selected for her first judicial appointment last year, U.S. Court of Appeals for the 7th Circuit Judge Amy Coney Barrett has yet to weigh in on any significant cases on cybersecurity or similar tech issues. And her prior scholarly writings — which drew the most attention during her Senate Judiciary hearing last year, particularly her views on social issues — are similarly barren on the subject.

Nonetheless, during a discussion at that hearing about Roe v. Wade, Barrett declined to say whether she personally thought privacy was a constitutionally protected right. "The court has quite clearly held that it is," she answered Sen. Richard Blumenthal. Pressed again, she responded, "I would follow all court precedent, and whether I agree or disagree would be beside the point to the discharge of my duties." Pressed a third time, she said, "I think the question is whether I have personal views that would be appropriate to share in this context, given the misimpression it would give litigants who might appear before me if I were confirmed." The only other vague hint of where she might stand on tech and privacy goes back to her clerkship under Justice Antonin Scalia from 1998 to 1999, whose views on those subjects earned him grudging admiration from civil liberties advocates.

BACK TO NEWS

Sep 24, 2018

Summit to Feature Senators Blunt and Klobuchar, ODNI Director Evanina,

State and Local Election Directors, Election Vendor Fair

Silver Spring, Md. – On Wednesday, October 3, 2018, just one month before the 2018 midterm elections, the U.S. Election Assistance Commission (EAC) will host the EAC Election Readiness Summit in Capitol Visitors Center, Rooms SVC 208/209 & SVC 215 from 9:00 a.m. – 4:30 p.m. ET. The event will feature expert panelists and keynote speakers who will examine election security best practices, as well as investments in accessibility, post-election audits, and other vital election activities. Following these discussions, the EAC will host an open house for election vendors who wish to display and demonstrate their equipment.

The EAC Election Readiness Summit event aims to inform the public and lawmakers about the steps election leaders can take to ensure secure, accessible, and efficient elections. The summit will also highlight innovative and cost-effective steps election administrators should consider as they look to 2020 and beyond.

In January, the EAC began the year with an all-day summit focused a spectrum of issues that state and local election officials would face as they prepared for the 2018 federal elections. The EAC Election Readiness Summit will be the bookend event to an intense year of preparation for election officials around the country, who have worked tirelessly to improve the security and resiliency of their systems.

The EAC Election Readiness Summit is open to the public and members of the press. Attendees are strongly encouraged to reserve their space by registering here. To request an interview with a summit speaker, make arrangements for broadcast equipment, or seek additional information about the event, please contact Brenda Bowser Soder at bsoder@eac.gov or 202-897-9285.

Those who cannot join the summit in person can watch the event online and follow the conversation online at #Countdown18.

State and Local Election Directors, Election Vendor Fair

Silver Spring, Md. –On Wednesday, October 3, 2018, just one month before the 2018 midterm elections, the U.S. Election Assistance Commission (EAC) will host the EAC Election Readiness Summit in Capitol Visitors Center, Rooms SVC 208/209 & SVC 215 from 9:00 a.m. – 4:30 p.m. ET. The event will feature expert panelists and keynote speakers who will examine election security best practices, as well as investments in accessibility, post-election audits, and other vital election activities. Following these discussions, the EAC will host an open house for election vendors who wish to display and demonstrate their equipment.

The EAC Election Readiness Summit event aims to inform the public and lawmakers about the steps election leaders can take to ensure secure, accessible, and efficient elections. The summit will also highlight innovative and cost-effective steps election administrators should consider as they look to 2020 and beyond.

In January, the EAC began the year with an all-day summit focused a spectrum of issues that state and local election officials would face as they prepared for the 2018 federal elections. The EAC Election Readiness Summit will be the bookend event to an intense year of preparation for election officials around the country, who have worked tirelessly to improve the security and resiliency of their systems.

The EAC Election Readiness Summit is open to the public and members of the press. Attendees are strongly encouraged to reserve their space by registering here. To request an interview with a summit speaker, make arrangements for broadcast equipment, or seek additional information about the event, please contact Brenda Bowser Soder at bsoder@eac.gov or 202-897-9285.

Those who cannot join the summit in person can watch the event online and follow the conversation online at #Countdown18.

The U.S. Election Assistance Commission (EAC) was established by the Help America Vote Act of 2002 (HAVA). It is an independent, bipartisan commission charged with ensuring secure, accurate and accessible elections by developing guidance to meet HAVA requirements, adopting voluntary voting system guidelines, and serving as a national clearinghouse of information on election administration. EAC also accredits testing laboratories and certifies voting systems, as well as administers the use of HAVA funds. For more information, visit www.eac.gov.

Gema and David,

I would like to submit to the Working Group this letter signed by over two dozen computer security experts, former election officials and election security experts summarizing the security risks with the use of wireless modems and asking DHS and EAC to urge election administrators to discontinue use of wireless modems in voting systems.

I am submitting this letter to the CS Working Group to support the proposal to include a ban on wireless modems in the next iteration of the VVSG. I hope we can discuss this on the next call.

Thank you,

Susan

Sent via EMAIL and US Mail

Dear Director Kolasky, EAC Chair Hicks and EAC Vice-Chair McCormick,

In the last two years reports of unprecedented cyber threats against U.S. election infrastructure have blanketed the news and rattled public confidence. DHS Secretary Nielsen recently stated, "[t]here is little doubt that adversaries and non-state actors continue to view elections as a target for cyber and influence operations," warning "[o]ur democracy itself is in the crosshairs." We must recognize that foreign nation states and other bad actors targeting U.S. elections are highly motivated and possess significant financial and technical resources.

Against the background of these profound threats, we as members of the computer science, cybersecurity, and election integrity communities are writing to convey our grave concerns regarding the use of public telecommunications and wireless technologies—such as cellular modems—in voting machines, despite repeated warnings and chronicled incidents of their risky deployment. We urge both the U.S. Election Assistance Commission and Department of Homeland Security to caution state and local election officials against using wireless and cellular communication and recommend suspending use of wireless modems in voting machines for the upcoming elections.

We are directing this request to EAC and DHS because these agencies are leading the federal effort to share information on the threat of cyber attacks on election infrastructure with state and local officials that administer elections and there appear to be profound misconceptions regarding the use of cellular modems that should be corrected.

[&]quot;DHS Secretary: Russia Continues to View US Elections as a Target of Cyberattacks" Veronica Stracqualursi, CNN, July 14th, 2018 https://www.cnn.com/2018/07/14/politics/dhs-secretary-kirstjen-nielsen-russia-2018-midterm-elections/index.html

Many of the voting machines currently in use around the country can connect to public telecommunications networks (principally the Internet) using an embedded or integrated wireless cellular modem or in cases of standard PCs through their integrated Network Interface Controller (NIC). These voting machines use wireless cellular modems to transmit unofficial post-election results. Computers that aggregate election results may be equipped with modems or wireless network interfaces to receive those results. To justify the use of cellular modems in election systems, many will assert that cellular modems operate on a network separate from the Internet and that use of these modems does not expose voting systems to the public Internet. This assertion is not accurate.

Modern cellular modems (unlike older wired analog modems) use IP packets, IP addresses, and IP routers, and in fact, are part of the Internet. The LTE protocol commonly used in cellular (wireless mobile) networks has known vulnerabilities that are subject to exploitation. There also are published reports of attackers rerouting network traffic to foreign nations by exploiting known weaknesses in the Border Gateway Protocol (BGP) that certain types of network routers employ to direct Internet data traffic.² Moreover, a cellular device can be fooled into connecting to false mobile cell towers (such as Stingray surveillance devices³) to cause a server disruption, and if there is improper authentication of a connection, there could be false reports from devices impersonating precinct voting machines.

Network infrastructure consists of many interconnected systems, some of which are publicly exposed. Data can be routed through foreign infrastructure even if both ends of the communication are in the U.S. Importantly, cellular networks are typically beyond the security control of election officials and the federal government.

Even when using hardware and software defenses common problems such as outdated software, misconfiguration, and human error can leave critical election infrastructure vulnerable. Attacks such as denial of service, data manipulation, malware infection, and remote access can be made with anonymous execution and enormous scale.

In short, they can wreak havoc on an election.

Connecting to the public networks even briefly during machine maintenance, programming, preelection testing, poll worker training, or on Election Day can make the system vulnerable to attacks that could impact current or future election results.

The convenience of transmitting vote totals online does not outweigh the need of the American people to be assured their votes will be accurately transmitted and counted.

For an introductory overview of these devices, see generally, MSI-catcher, https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=IMSI-catcher&oldid=856220555 (last visited Oct. 2, 2018).

² For a clear and concise introductory treatment of BGP and network traffic routing complete with illustrations and videos, see: https://blog.cdemi.io/beginners-guide-to-understanding-bgp/

Therefore, we recommend discontinuing the use of wireless technology for transmitting vote totals given the current threats and these inherent, unresolved vulnerabilities.

We strongly urge the Department of Homeland Security and the U.S. Election Assistance Commission to caution states against using wireless modems in voting machines and offer the following recommendations to all state and local election officials:

- 1. Voting system components—from vote capture and tabulation machines to election management systems—should not be connected to the Internet, cellular network, or other public telecommunications infrastructure at any time, even temporarily, from the time of manufacture until end of life.
- 2. Election administrators should discontinue the electronic transmission of election results from vote tabulation devices and adopt procedures for the physical delivery of election results, either on digital media such as memory cards, thumb drives, or on paper to election management systems.
- 3. Cellular modems within voting systems should be physically removed, and not simply disabled by software means.

These recommendations do not imply that posting of unofficial election results on properly configured and protected public accessible government web sites should be stopped.

We do not wish to imply that discontinuing the use of wireless modems in voting systems will ensure their security. Many other attack vectors still exist. We recognize the only way to ensure resilience in voting systems is by requiring voter-verified paper ballots and robust, manual postelection audits of the paper ballots.

The undersigned thank you for your service and your immediate attention to this critical national security issue. We stand ready to work with you to protect our nation's election infrastructure from all threats, foreign and domestic.

TLP: WHITE EI-ISAC Weekly News Alert

TO: All EI-ISAC Members and Partners

DATE: January 9, 2019

SUBJECT: EI-ISAC Weekly News Alert 1/9/2019

The EI-ISAC Weekly News Alert is a summary of open source reporting on election security and topics that may be of interest to election officials. The Weekly News Alert is intended to provide situational awareness of the cyber risk landscape and cybersecurity best practices to election officials through open source news reporting and analysis by the EI-ISAC and other experts. If you would like to submit security-related stories that may be of interest to the elections community, please contact elections@cisecurity.org.

ODNI Assessment Concludes No Intelligence to Support a Compromise of 2018 U.S. Midterm Elections - ODNI (12/21/18)

TLP: WHITE On December 21, 2018, the Office of the Director of National Intelligence (ODNI) submitted the Intelligence Community's (IC) report on foreign interference in the 2018 U.S. General Election as directed by Executive Order 13848. The report states that no intelligence reporting "indicates any compromise of our nation's election infrastructure that would have prevented voting, changed vote counts, or disrupted the ability to tally votes." Additionally, the report notes that observed interference activity during the election paralleled previously known campaigns originating from nation-states, such as Russia, China, and Iran, which aimed to conduct strategic information operations in the U.S. The ODNI also reaffirmed that preserving the integrity of U.S. elections is a "top priority" of the IC.

EI-ISAC Analyst Note: On September 12, 2018, President Trump signed Executive Order 13848 mandating sanctions on foreign entities or individuals participating in U.S. election interference. Sanctions automatically go into effect against any foreign government identified as interfering in U.S. elections. The order also dictates that following Election Day, ODNI must conduct an investigation to determine whether election meddling took place. After a 45-day review period, that assessment must be passed to the Departments of Justice and Homeland Security, which will have 45 days to determine if any malicious actions warrant a response.

Consistent with ODNI's findings, the EI-ISAC did not observe any successful strategic cyber targeting affecting election outcomes. Cyber activity observed by the EI-ISAC included normal scanning activity and typosquatting of election-related domains, while noncyber activity included mostly accidental misinformation regarding polling locations and times (via text, phone, and social media) and weather related power outages. For a more detailed summary of Election Day activity, members may contact elections@cisecuritv.org.

USDT Sanctions Russian Operatives for Malign Activities Including 2016 U.S. Election Interference - USDT (12/19/18)

TLP: WHITE On December 19, 2018, the U.S. Department of the Treasury's (USDT) Office of Foreign Assets Control (OFAC) announced sanctions against 15 Russian operatives associated with Russian intelligence agencies for their involvement "in cyber operations to interfere with the 2016 election and a wide range of other malign activities." Nine of the 15 sanctioned operatives are acting or former officers in the Main Directorate of the General Staff of the Armed Forces of the Russian Federation (G.U., formerly GRU) and were previously indicted by the U.S. Department of Justice (DOJ) on July 13, 2018, for "Hacking Offenses Related to the 2016 Election."

U.S. Senate Confirms Two Additional Commissioners to the EAC -The Hill (1/2/19)

TLP: WHITE On January 2, 2019, the U.S. Senate confirmed two additional Commissioners, Benjamin Hovland and Donald Palmer, to the Election Assistance Commission (EAC), thereby filling the remaining vacancies and allowing the commission to hold a quorum for the first time since March 2018. The newly confirmed Commissioners are scheduled to join current EAC Commissioners, Thomas Hicks and Christy McCormick, early this year.

House Bill Designed to Strengthen and Enhance Cyber Capabilities Signed Into Law -Congress (12/21/18)

TLP: WHITE On December 21, 2018, U.S. President Donald Trump signed into law the "Strengthening and Enhancing Cybercapabilities by Utilizing Risk Exposure (SECURE) Technology Act (H.R. 7327)". The bill requires U.S. Department of Homeland Security (DHS) Secretary Kirstjen Nielsen to establish a security vulnerability disclosure policy and a bug bounty program, and to enhance Federal acquisition supply chain security within a predetermined timeline. The timeline sets deadlines for each requirement, spanning from 90 days to one year after the Act's establishment.

EI-ISAC Analyst Note: The bill includes similar components from other cyber initiatives introduced to Congress, such as the Public-Private Cybersecurity Cooperation Act (H.R.6735), Federal Acquisition Supply Chain Security Act of 2018 (S.3085), and Hack the

U.S. County Vendor Phished Using Spoofed County Email Address - Government Technology (12/19/18)

TLP: WHITE On December 19, 2018, the Government Technology magazine reported that malicious cyber actors spoofed a Sedgwick County, Kansas, email address in a phishing attempt designed to socially engineer a vendor into providing information on the county's past financial transactions. The county confirmed the scam was unsuccessful and that no sensitive information was compromised.

El-ISAC Analyst Note: Election offices and supporting members are strongly encouraged to review the El-ISAC Cybersecurity Spotlights on BEC scams, Spoofing, Phishing, and Social Engineering to ensure employees are properly trained and that mitigation techniques are in place to avoid becoming victim to similar malicious tactics, techniques, and procedures (TTPs). On Wednesday, January 23rd, the MS-ISAC will host a best practice webcast on Domain-based Message Authentication, Reporting & Conformance (DMARC), which is an email authentication, policy, and reporting protocol, designed to detect/prevent email spoofing.

SUBJECT: EI-ISAC Weekly News Alert 1/9/2019

The EI-ISAC Weekly News Alert is a summary of open source reporting on election security and topics that may be of interest to election officials. The Weekly News Alert is intended to provide situational awareness of the cyber risk landscape and cybersecurity best practices to election officials through open source news reporting and analysis by the EI-ISAC and other experts. If you would like to submit security-related stories that may be of interest to the elections community, please contact elections@cisecurity.org.

ODNI Assessment Concludes No Intelligence to Support a Compromise of 2018 U.S. Midterm Elections - ODNI (12/21/18)

TLP: WHITE On December 21, 2018, the Office of the Director of National Intelligence (ODNI) submitted the Intelligence Community's (IC) report on foreign interference in the 2018 U.S. General Election as directed by Executive Order 13848. The report states that no intelligence reporting "indicates any compromise of our nation's election infrastructure that would have prevented voting, changed vote counts, or disrupted the ability to tally votes." Additionally, the report notes that observed interference activity during the election paralleled previously known campaigns originating from nation-states, such as Russia, China, and Iran, which aimed to conduct strategic information operations in the U.S. The ODNI also reaffirmed that preserving the integrity of U.S. elections is a "top priority" of the IC.

EI-ISAC Analyst Note: On September 12, 2018, President Trump signed Executive Order 13848 mandating sanctions on foreign entities or individuals participating in U.S. election interference. Sanctions automatically go into effect against any foreign government identified as interfering in U.S. elections. The order also dictates that following Election Day, ODNI must conduct an investigation to determine whether election meddling took place. After a 45-day review period, that assessment must be passed to the Departments of Justice and Homeland Security, which will have 45 days to determine if any malicious actions warrant a response.

Consistent with ODNI's findings, the EI-ISAC did not observe any successful strategic cyber targeting affecting election outcomes. Cyber activity observed by the EI-ISAC included normal scanning activity and typosquatting of election-related domains, while noncyber activity included mostly accidental misinformation regarding polling locations and times (via text, phone, and social media) and weather related power outages. For a more detailed summary of Election Day activity, members may contact elections@cisecuritv.org.

USDT Sanctions Russian Operatives for Malign Activities Including 2016 U.S. Election Interference - USDT (12/19/18)

TLP: WHITE On December 19, 2018, the U.S. Department of the Treasury's (USDT) Office of Foreign Assets Control (OFAC) announced sanctions against 15 Russian operatives associated with Russian intelligence agencies for their involvement "in cyber operations to interfere with the 2016 election and a wide range of other malign activities." Nine of the 15 sanctioned operatives are acting or former officers in the Main Directorate of the General Staff of the Armed Forces of the Russian Federation (G.U., formerly GRU) and were previously indicted by the U.S. Department of Justice (DOJ) on July 13, 2018, for "Hacking Offenses Related to the 2016 Election."

The newly confirmed Commissioners are scheduled to join current EAC Commissioners, Thomas Hicks and Christy McCormick, early this year.

TLP: WHITE On December 21, 2018, U.S. President Donald Trump signed into law the "Strengthening and Enhancing Cybercapabilities by Utilizing Risk Exposure (SECURE) Technology Act (H.R. 7327)". The bill requires U.S. Department of Homeland Security (DHS) Secretary Kirstjen Nielsen to establish a security vulnerability disclosure policy and a bug bounty program, and to enhance Federal acquisition supply chain security within a predetermined timeline. The timeline sets deadlines for each requirement, spanning from 90 days to one year after the Act's establishment.

That's the Pentagon's plan: It's in the final phase of testing technology that will reduce smartphone users' reliance on difficult-to-remember passwords or an endless stream of text message verification codes, an official there told me.

It's working with computer chipmakers and smartphone developers to make the technology commercially available as early as 2020, said Steven Wallace, a systems innovation scientist at the Pentagon's Defense Information Systems Agency, or DISA. It's currently testing the system on 50 phones at the Defense Department.

"Our goal from the very start was not to have something that was focused solely on the DoD," Wallace said. "Our focus from the start was something usable at the commercial level."

The tech companies haven't made any firm commitments to adopt the identification system but appear eager to integrate the technology into smartphones within the next year or two, Wallace said.

He declined to name the companies DISA is working with but said if all goes wellthe technology "will be available in the majority of handsets" in the United States.

The technology would offer an extra layer of security for smartphone users by ensuring that a thief -- or someone who, say, picks up a phone left on a subway seat or park bench -- doesn't get access to all the personal and professional information stored inside the device, Wallace said. If stolen phones are inoperable, there's less of a market for them. And more broadly, if consumer devices are better protected, national security improves: It gets tougher for hackers to steal information and intellectual property.

But the Pentagon's motivation is not just about securing consumers: If the tool is commercially available, the Pentagon can get the extra protection without paying an arm and a leg for specialized devices that only highly secured industries are using. In the past, Wallace said, the Pentagon has built super-secure smartphones but they've been too costly to deploy to anyone but a handful of top officials -- costing more than $4,500 per unit.

Once the technology is fully vetted, DoD plans to use the technology for general purpose smartphones but not ones that access classified information, he said.

Wallace hopes the cutting-edge identity verification system will be like the Global Positioning System and the Internet itself — in that they are all tools that were initially developed for military use but ended up benefiting society at large.

"I'm not going to say that we're going to create something that's as broad and as grand as GPS or the Internet, but there's a history of the department working on things and those things ending up in consumer devices." Wellow

Similar technology is being used to verify the identities of some employees in highly regulated industries, such as financial services and health care, but it isn't deployed commercially, Dawud Gordon, CEO of the company TwoSense, which is working on a separate but related DISA project, told me. Those industry tools build the sensing technology into software rather than into the smartphone's hardware, Gordon told me.

The DISA project relies on sensors that already exist inside smartphone computer chips and are used by gaming apps but not generally for security, Wallace told me.

DISA is working with a contractor to use those sensors to create a unique profile for how each smartphone user does various things, he said — including walking with the phone, typing on it and pulling it out of her pocket or purse. DISA then creates a "risk score" for the user that includes a weighted combination of all those factors, he said. If this score drops too low the person will be locked out of the phone.

If a person is locked out in error, she could regain access using a more standard log in, such as a password, Wallace told me.

Just because the capability exists in the phone's hardware doesn't mean people would have to use it to verify their identities, Wallace said. The smartphone provider could offer it as an option or organizations could use it to ensure employees don't leave unsecured devices in cabs or restaurants.

Because the sensors are on the phone's hardware, the information they collect won't be available to phone apps or other third parties, Wallace said, reducing privacy concerns. The only information that should leave the hardware side is when the phone user's risk score drops too low and she's locked out, he said.

Testing on DOD devices is expected to be finished within two months.

2020 Democratic presidential candidate Sen. Amy Klobuchar (D-Minn.) in Des Moines on Feb. 21. (Charlie Neibergall/AP)

PINGED: Three Democratic senators including presidential hopeful Amy Klobuchar (D-Minn.) want to know what the Department of Homeland Security is doing to secure the 2020 election. In a letter to DHS Secretary Kirstjen Nielsen, Klobuchar and Sens. Gary Peters (D-Mich.) and Richard J. Durbin (D-III.) sought answers about the size of teams at the department that are tasked with protecting U.S. elections and combating foreign influence.

Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency Director Christopher Krebs this monthsaid his agency is "doubling down" on election security protection after the Daily Beast reported that DHS had downsized those efforts. Krebs said CISA was reducing the size of task forces supporting election security and countering foreign influence but replacing those workers with permanent agency employees. In their letter, the senators praised the federal government's work to secure elections but added that "we need to further bolster our election infrastructure ahead of 2020."

The lawmakers also asked how many staffers CISA plans to recruit to help protect elections and what other initiatives the agency is taking to fend off potential threats to next year's election. "Given clear warnings from Intelligence Community officials that the 2020 presidential election remains a target for our adversaries, it is vital that we take strong action now in order to ensure our systems are secure on Election Day," the senators said.

identify and patch cybersecurity vulnerabilities in the health-care sector. He also said that he wants to collaborate with federal agencies and others to develop a strategy aimed at reducing cybersecurity weaknesses in the health-care sector. "The health care industry has been identified as a lucrative target due to the valuable personally identifiable information criminals can monetize and lucrative opportunities to secure payment from victims of ransomware," Warner said.

Warner's letters to the Food and Drug Administration, Department of Health and Human Services, Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services and National Institute of Standards and Technology follow similar missives that he sent to health-care groups last week. The senator also asked the federal agencies whether they have partnered with the private sector to seek input on how to better protect computer systems in the health-care sector.

PWNED: A bipartisan group of 11 senators wants the Trump administration to further its crack down on Chinese telecommunications firm Huawei. The senators called for a U.S. ban on Huawei-produced devices called "inverters" that convert solar energy into useable power for other devices. Both industrial-scale inverters "and those used by homeowners, school districts, and businesses are equally vulnerable to cyberattacks," the lawmakers said in a letter to Energy Secretary Rick Perry and Nielsen at DHS.

The senators also said Perry and Nielsen should collaborate with local officials at all levels of government and with businesses in the energy sector to protect the nation's energy systems. Sens. John Cornyn (R-Tex.), Marco Rubio (R-Fla.) and Senate Intelligence Committee Chairman Richard Burr (R-N.C.) were among the Republicans who signed the letter. Warner, the Senate Intelligence Committee's vice chairman, and Sen. Dianne Feinstein (D-Calif.) were among the Democrats who joined the bipartisan group. You can see the full list of senators who signed the letter here.

- The finance and insurance industry was malicious hackers' favorite target in 2018 according to the annual IBM X-Force Threat Intelligence Index released today. This industry drew 19 percent of all attacks and incidents last year, followed by transportation services with 13 percent. "We expect the transportation sector to continue rising as an attractive target for malicious actors, because of the industry's reliance on information technology to facilitate operations, its ubiquitous need for integration of third-party vendors, and its vast supply chain," the report said. "These factors make for a larger attack surface than other industries." The report also found that cyber criminals appear to rely less on ransomware attacks and more on cryptojacking an attack that allows hackers to use other people's devices to mine cryptocurrency.
- Security researchers found a sharp increase in the size of distributed denial-of-service attacks against companies involved in market research and public opinion polling between the second half of 2017 and the second half of 2018, according to cybersecurity company NETSCOUT's Threat Intelligence Landscape Report, which was released today. Those attacks might be a backdoor for nation states to affect public perceptions of elections and the political process, Mike McNerney, product manager for NETSCOUT Threat Intelligence, said in a statement.
- Cyberattacks and concerns about data integrity rank fifth among the top 10 risks to the global economy in 2019 according to a report released yesterday by the Economist Intelligence Unit, the research arm of the Economist Group. "Although these attacks have been relatively contained so far, there is a risk that their frequency and severity will increase to the extent that corporate and government networks could be brought down or manipulated for an extended period," according to the report. The authors of the report added that security breaches could jeopardize billions of dollars in daily transactions. "Were government activities to be severely constrained by an attack or physical infrastructure damaged, the impact on economic growth would be even more severe," the report said.

In regards to Chinese cyber attacks, intelligence officials and security are cautioning that these attacks are stealthier, more sophisticated, and directed against strasuch as service providers.

TLP: WHITE China's Ministry of State Security is conducting cyber attacks that were previously the People's Liberation Army. As a result, Chinese cyber attacks are less likely to use malware attributed to China. These attacks instead rely on malware sold on the Dark Web and use previously such as Dropbox. Iran also increased attacks against targets in the U.S. with redirected against core vulnerabilities in the internet's backbone.

El-ISAC Analyst Note: TLP: WHITE While Russia remains the most active nation-state taffecting U.S. election infrastructure, election officials should maintain awareness of the elandscape that nation-state adversaries present to better understand, prepare for, and defend threats. China's offensive cyber efforts are historically directed against intellectual property that align with Beijing's 5 year economic plan. However, China's shift in tactics to target servicely put election offices at greater risk of an indirect compromise as highlighted in the El-News Alert released on 2/13/2019. Election offices should include cybersecurity requirent contract negotiations, and regularly assess the level of access they grant their third-party service providers.

TLP: GREEN On November 2, 2018, the EI-ISAC notified members that the NCCIC and FBI potential for an increase in Iranian cyber efforts against the U.S. in Joint Activity Alert Axincrease in Iranian attacks was highlighted by recent attacks against DNS infrastructure at DHS issuing Emergency Directive 19-01. ## TLP: GREEN EI-ISAC Weekly News Alert

DATE: February 27, 2019

SUBJECT: EI-ISAC Weekly News Alert 2/27/2019

The EI-ISAC Weekly News Alert is a summary of open source reporting on election security and topics that may be of interest to election officials. The Weekly News Alert is intended to provide situational awareness of the cyber risk landscape and cybersecurity best practices to election officials through open source news reporting and analysis by the EI-ISAC and other experts. If you would like to submit security-related stories that may be of interest to the elections community, please contact elections@cisecurity.org.

McCormick Elected New EAC Chairwoman – EAC (2/25/19)

TLP: WHITE On February 25, 2018, Commissioner Christy McCormick was elected as the Chairwoman of the U.S. Election Assistance Commission (EAC), a position she will hold for one year. McCormick previously served as Chairwoman of the EAC in 2015. Chairwoman McCormick identified the following focus areas for the coming year:

- Preparation for the 2020 Presidential Election The EAC will prioritize work to support election administrators through efforts to enhance election security, address aging election equipment, share best practices, and support other key areas of election administration. The EAC is poised to launch a new effort to assist election officials who must conduct elections in the face of unanticipated disasters.
- Replacing Aging Election Equipment The EAC will continue to work with states to use Help America Vote Act (HAVA) funds for new election equipment. It will also work toward adoption of the next generation of Voluntary Voting System Guidelines (VVSG).
- Ensuring Voter Accessibility The EAC will protect the rights of all Americans to vote privately and independently, increase election access for U.S. military personnel and Americans living overseas, and help election officials provide access to those who speak English as a second language.

China and Iran Escalate Cyber Attack Against U.S. Entities - The New York Times (2/18/2019)

TLP: WHITE A summary of an intelligence briefing read to The New York Times indicates that malicious Chinese and Iranian cyber activity against the U.S. has returned to levels observed prior to 2015. Both Chinese and Iranian cyber attacks significantly decreased following the 2015 agreement between then-President Barack Obama and Chinese President Xi Jinping, and the signing of the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action with Iran. In regards to Chinese cyber attacks, intelligence officials and security researchers are cautioning that these attacks are stealthier, more sophisticated, and directed against strategic targets such as service providers.

TLP: WHITE China's Ministry of State Security is conducting cyber attacks that were previously operated by the People's Liberation Army. As a result, Chinese cyber attacks are less likely to use malware that is easily attributed to China. These attacks instead rely on malware sold on the Dark Web and use public storage services such as Dropbox. Iran also increased attacks against targets in the U.S. with recent attacks directed against core vulnerabilities in the internet's backbone.

El-ISAC Analyst Note: TLP: WHITE While Russia remains the most active nation-state threat directly affecting U.S. election infrastructure, election officials should maintain awareness of the evolving threat landscape that nation-state adversaries present to better understand, prepare for, and defend against these threats. China's offensive cyber efforts are historically directed against intellectual property theft in sectors that align with Beijing's 5 year economic plan. However, China's shift in tactics to target service providers will likely put election offices at greater risk of an indirect compromise as highlighted in the El-ISAC Weekly News Alert released on 2/13/2019. Election offices should include cybersecurity requirements in their contract negotiations, and regularly assess the level of access they grant their third-party vendors and service providers.

TLP: GREEN On November 2, 2018, the EI-ISAC notified members that the NCCIC and FBI assessed the potential for an increase in Iranian cyber efforts against the U.S. in Joint Activity Alert AA18-305. This increase in Iranian attacks was highlighted by recent attacks against DNS infrastructure and resulted in DHS issuing Emergency Directive 19-01. This attack pattern was also addressed in the Internet Corporation for Assigned Names and Numbers (ICANN) statement on Malicious Activity Targeting DNS Infrastructure. Additionally, election offices should follow the recommendations in ED19-01.

Internet Security Threat Report 24: Symantec's Annual Threat Report - Symantec (02/19/2019)

TLP: WHITE Symantec released their annual threat report looking at trends in 2018 in comparison to 2017. The report gives insight on malicious cyber activity globally, including criminal trends and attack motivations The top findings are as follows:

- Formjacking, skimming of customers' payment information via order forms on infected web servers, emerged as the top breakthrough threat of 2018.
- Cryptojacking increased from 2017 to 2018 but is currently trending down due to the decrease in the price of cryptocurrency. FL-LEON-19-0521-A-002468

- Ransomware decreased by 20% overall. However, ransomware affecting mobile phones and enterprises increased by 33% and 13% respectively.
- Supply chain attacks, including targeting of software providers to change code, increased by 78%.
- Malspam use of malicious Microsoft Office files increased by 48%, while the malicious use of PowerShell increased 1000%.
- The number of attack groups using destructive malware increased by 25%.

EI-ISAC Analyst Note: TLP: WHITE Election offices should review the findings in the Internet Security Threat Report to help establish security priorities for 2019. In particular, election offices should consider using group policy to block macros in documents downloaded from the internet and to limit the execution of PowerShell where possible. Additionally, election offices should consider the supply chain and evaluate risk when making device and software purchases.

DRIVING THE DAY

EAC BLIND SPOT — Only half of the members of the Election Assistance Commission have security clearances, and none of them had clearances for the 2016 and 2018 election cycles, Eric reports. Thomas Hicks, who chaired the EAC in 2016 and 2018, and Donald Palmer, who joined the commission in February, lack them, while Christy McCormick, the agency's current chairwoman, has an interim clearance. Benjamin Hovland, who also joined in February, has a full clearance. Then-Commissioner Matthew Masterson did not have one during the 2016 cycle.

supposed to address," Sen. Ron Wyden told POLITICO in a statement. "An Election Assistance [Commission member] without a security clearance is like making a baseball player hit without a bat." Read more here.

THE CYBER ANGLE ON THE EMP EO— The executive order President Donald Trump signed to defend against electromagnetic pulse attacks might bolster cyber defenses, too. Sam Feinberg, executive director of the think tank Helena, told MC that the EO could make an otherwise crippling cyberattack on the electricity grid reversible in days, if not hours. "If implemented, this EO will lead to physical hardening of the grid," he said via email. "Happily, the kind of hardening needed to protect infrastructure against EMPs also provides protection against cyberattacks."

"This is because the most damaging cyberattacks (like Stuxnet) permanently incapacitate physical infrastructure, rather than just temporarily switching them off," he said. "To the extent that transformers, SCADA systems, and other physical grid systems are made resilient to the extremely high current being induced by EMPs, they will also become meaningfully more resilient to the most damaging and threatening types of cyberattacks — which aim, for example, to route abnormally high currents through transformer components and melt them."

DO YOU EVEN EO, BRO? — The Trump administration's long-awaited executive order that would ban Huawei products from the U.S. should be part of a larger strategy aimed at managing next-generation tech, wrote cyber expert James Lewis of the Center for Strategic and International Studies. That larger strategy should include, among other things: support for Western telecom companies for research and development; an executive order on telecom supply chain security "that clearly lays out U.S. policy;" and a long-term plan with China to help it conform to international norms for trade and security. "China is not going away. It will always be powerful and the United States, working with its partners, must encourage and require change," Lewis wrote.

OOPS! — A Georgia bill authorizing the state to buy new voting machines rules out several popular models, the OSET Institute, an election technology research group, said in a report published late last week. The bill (HB 316), which Gov. Brian Kemp is likely to sign soon, requires Georgia to buy a ballot-marking device that produces "voter verifiable" paper ballots displaying barcodes that are scanned and tallied. But, OSET said, "the vast majority" of BMDs do not count as "voter verifiable," because they "do not allow voters to verify the same choice data that the voting system in fact uses to tabulate votes" — that is, the barcode is "not readable by the voter."

Georgia's election office is already moving ahead with the RFP process, but as OSET pointed out, HB 316 preemptively disqualifies several of the vendors that may submit proposals — including Election Systems & Software and Dominion, two of the three largest firms. Those companies' products tally the data in the barcode, which — if the BMD is hacked — could be different from the human-readable text that voters can check. "Excepting two commercial solutions, a voter cannot verify the choices that are used for counting with today's BMDs," OSET said. "Therefore, there is no way for the voter to verify what choices are actually being counted, and hence for the majority of solutions, the ballot cannot be said to be 'verifiable' by the voter."

MULE-ER — South Korean authorities extradited a Ukrainian man whom the U.S. said ran an international money laundering operation abetted by cyber criminals that netted him nearly $3 million, the Justice Department announced late last week. The unsealed indictment states that Aleksandr Musienko employed overseas cyber criminals to target online bank accounts in the U.S. "belonging to a large number of individual and corporate victims." Musienko, according to DoJ, lured "money mules" for his scheme. "Once Musienko had his network of money mules in place, Musienko then offered his money mule services to his cybercriminal partners to assist them in transferring stolen funds," DoJ's statement reads. "He directed his 'money mules' to use their own bank accounts to receive and then transfer proceeds from the compromised bank accounts overseas."

suspended its internet voting pilot program due to "critical errors" found in its code. ... U.S. and Chinese officials are making progress toward a trade agreement, the White House said. ... Germany's cybersecurity agency is talking with Huawei over a U.K. government report critical of the company's security.

OOPS! — A Georgia bill authorizing the state to buy new voting machines rules out several popular models, the OSET Institute, an election technology research group, said in a report published late last week. The bill (HB 316), which Gov. Brian Kemp is likely to sign soon, requires Georgia to buy a ballot-marking device that produces "voter verifiable" paper ballots displaying barcodes that are scanned and tallied. But, OSET said, "the vast majority" of BMDs do not count as "voter verifiable," because they "do not allow voters to verify the same choice data that the voting system in fact uses to tabulate votes" — that is, the barcode is "not readable by the voter."

Georgia's election office is already moving ahead with the RFP process, but as OSET pointed out, HB 316 preemptively disqualifies several of the vendors that may submit proposals — including Election Systems & Software and Dominion, two of the three largest firms. Those companies' products tally the data in the barcode, which — if the BMD is hacked — could be different from the human-readable text that voters can check. "Excepting two commercial solutions, a voter cannot verify the choices that are used for counting with today's BMDs," OSET said. "Therefore, there is no way for the voter to verify what choices are actually being counted, and hence for the majority of solutions, the ballot cannot be said to be 'verifiable' by the voter."

MULE-ER — South Korean authorities extradited a Ukrainian man whom the U.S. said ran an international money laundering operation abetted by cyber criminals that netted him nearly $3 million, the Justice Department announced late last week. The unsealed indictment states that Aleksandr Musienko employed overseas cyber criminals to target online bank accounts in the U.S. "belonging to a large number of individual and corporate victims." Musienko, according to DoJ, lured "money mules" for his scheme. "Once Musienko had his network of money mules in place, Musienko then offered his money mule services to his cybercriminal partners to assist them in transferring stolen funds," DoJ's statement reads. "He directed his 'money mules' to use their own bank accounts to receive and then transfer proceeds from the compromised bank accounts overseas."

States spent just a fracti	on of $380 million in election	security money before midterms
BY JOSEPH MARK	s
THE KEY

Congress scrambled in early 2018 to deliver a surge in election security money before the midterms. But it turns out that states only spent about 8 percent of the $380 million Congress approved by the time the elections rolled around.

A new voting machine, which prints a paper record on display at a polling site in Conyers, Ga. (David Goldman/AP)

That's the bad news in a spending report released Thursday by the Election Assistance Commission, which is responsible for disbursing the money.

The good news is that states are on track to spend the majority of the money before the 2020 elections — which intelligence officials say are far likelier than the midterms to be a hacking target for Russia and other U.S. adversaries.

The report highlights the lengthy process of investigations and reviews that are necessary before states can make major upgrades to specialized election equipment. Given the tight time frame — Congressapproved the money in March and the EAC began disbursing it to states in June — EAC Chairwoman Christy McCormick told me that 8 percent is a reasonable amount to have spent and about what the commission expected.

It's also a warning to Congress that the clock is ticking if it wants to deliver more election security money that will make a meaningful difference in 2020.

"I've heard from states across the board — Democratic and Republican — that more funds are needed," said a person familiar with the election funding process who spoke on the condition of anonymity because they weren't authorized to speak publicly. "The timing of that money is important, but there's still time to make a difference for 2020."

Congress delivered the $380 million in election security money after the 2016 contest was marred by a Kremlin-backed hacking and disinformation campaign that included probing election systems in 21 states. There's no evidence, however, that hackers successfully penetrated any voting machines or changed any votes.

The $31 million states had spent by September 2018 was mostly targeted at low-hanging fruit such as training staff on cybersecurity best practices, instituting new digital protections for staff accessing election systems and more regularly updating software, according to state narratives included in Thursday's report.

Many states also planned to use the money for audits immediately after the elections.

"States were able to take advantage of the money to harden their systems before the 2018 elections," McCormick said. "I think it helped us to have the most secure election we've seen so far, especially since 2016 when the alarm bells were rung."

Before 2020, states expect to use much of the remaining money to hire new security staff, conduct election hacking war games and to update or replace outdated systems, such as voting machines that don't include paper votes or paper receipts.

Those will all dramatically improve election security, McCormick told me.

State and federal officials agree, however, that the initial $380 million isn't enough to cover the costs of replacing major election systems across a whole state.

That means either states will have to cover the shortfall or the federal government will have to kick in more — and it's far from clear whether Democrats and Republicans will agree on new money, let alone approve that money on a schedule that will allow states to make effective use of it.

Congressional Republicans rebuffed Democrats' efforts to deliver an additional $250 million in election security money to states last year. A major Democratic bill that commits $120 million to election security sailed through the Democratic-controlled House this Congress but will be a nonstarter in the Senate.

And the bipartisan election security bills that gained momentum last Congress — and might be a vehicle for more funding this Congress — have not been re-introduced.

That leaves a big question mark about whether Congress will approve any additional election security funding. And states, meanwhile, are inking contracts for new machines and service while the clock is ticking down to 2020.

PINGED: A federal technology manager pleaded guilty Thursday to stealing a government database that contained nearly 250,000 Homeland Security Department employees' personal information and detailed more than 150,000 internal investigations, my colleague Spencer S. Hsu reports.

The tech manager was allegedly conspiring with a former DHS acting inspector general to create a commercial version of the database – valued at more than $3 million – to sell to other government agencies.

"Sonal Patel, 44, of Sterling, Va., faces a maximum penalty of five years in prison after pleading guilty to one count of conspiracy to commit theft of government property, and agreeing to cooperate with prosecutors regarding a scheme that ran from 2014 to 2017," Spencer reported.

"Patel in court papers acknowledged instructing a subordinate to send her directions on how to install the copy, and steering the Agriculture Department inspector general's office to using the commercial version instead of the free government version. In June 2016, her plea statement said, she handed two DVDs with copied data to Conspirator 1 India," who would create the copycat program.

PATCHED: Georgia Gov. Brian Kemp (R) signed a bill approving the statewide purchase of new voting machines Thursday that some security experts say aren't secure enough.
Everyone agrees that the machines — which include a touch screen that prints a paper ballot — are more secure than Georgia's old system, which was fully electronic. Many security experts, however, say the machines are less secure than simple pen-and-paper ballots.
Advocates of the machines point out that they're easier for people with disabilities to use and print a paper ballot so the voter can verify whether their vote was counted correctly. Critics, however, say people rarely verify those printouts are accurate.
Here's more from the Associated Press's Ben Nadler: "The signing comes months after Kemp, then the state's chief election officer, defeated Democrat Stacey Abrams in the governor's race, and amid several lawsuits challenging the state's handling of elections."
"The 2018 election drew national attention and shook voter confidence after it was marred by issues including long voter lines, reports of malfunctioning voting machines and high rates of rejected absentee ballots."

PWNED: Members of a second House committee are pressing the Federal Emergency Management Agency for more information about a security failure that resulted in the agency improperly sharing the personal information of 2.3 million disaster victims with a contractor.
Republicans on the House Science Committeewrote to FEMA on Thursday asking for a briefing by April 18 about the incident in which the agency improperly shared data about victims of 2017 hurricanes and wildfires — including financial information — with a contractor that placed those victims in hotels.
The House Homeland Security Committee has been briefed on the mishap butwrote to FEMA with additional questions last week.
"The privacy incident at FEMA is particularly concerning to the committee as this information can be used to prey upon individuals in a variety of ways, including identity theft, fraud, targeted scams, and spear phishing," Republican Science Committee members wrote to FEMA acting administrator Pete T. Gaynor. "Unfortunately, fraud and scams abound in the wake of natural disasters as nefarious actors seek to capitalize on the misfortune of affected communities."
The lawmakers are also concerned the incident will "undermine disaster survivors' confidence in their ability to safely and securely share their personal information with FEMA," which could, in turn, prevent them from receiving important benefits.

Cybersecurity news from the public sector:
The National Security Agency officially released the source code for its cybersecurity toolGhidra Thursday — following through on a promise that NSA Cybersecurity Adviser Rob Joyce made at the RSA Conference in March.
The newly open-sourced tool is part of a post-Snowden NSA effort to be more open about its operations and to take a more active role in the ethical hacking community. The agency released Ghidra to the software code-sharing site

'on the side of the road' before the latter boarded a flight from Dulles International Airport to meet with software developers in a reverse-engineering platform used to take 'compiled,' deployed software and 'decompile' it. In other words, it transforms the ones and zeros that computers understand back into a human-readable structure, logic, and set of commands that reveal what the software you churn through it does."

"Reverse engineering is a crucial process for malware analysts and threat intelligence researchers, because it allows them to work backward from software they discover in the wild — like malware being used to carry out attacks — to understand how it works, what its capabilities are, and who wrote it or where it came from. Reverse engineering is also an important way for defenders to check their own code for weaknesses and confirm that it works as intended."

VIA ELECTRONIC MAIL

Mark Earley Leon County Supervisor of Elections 2990-1 Apalachee Parkway Tallahassee, FL 32301 Vote@leoncountyfl.gov

Re: Public Records Request

Dear Public Records Officer:

Pursuant to the Florida's public records law, as codified at Fla. Stat. Chapter 119, American Oversight makes the following request for public records.

Requested Records

American Oversight requests that Leon County promptly produce the following:

All communications (including emails, email attachments, text messages, calendar invitations/entries, letters, memoranda, or other communications) between any county elections official and any of the individuals or entities listed below:

- Kris Kobach (including communications from kkobach@gmail.com, kris@kris&kobach.com, or any email addresses ending in ks.gov)
- J. (John) Christian Adams
- Hans von Spakovsky
- John R. Lott Jr.
- Ken Block
- Donal Palmer
- Robert Popper
- Catherine Engelbrecht
- Christy McCormick (including communications with cacm@aol.com)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of the Election Law Center (electionlawcenter.com)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of the Government Accountability Institute (g-a-i.org)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of Simpatico Software Systems (simpaticosoftware.com)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of Judicial Watch (judicialwatch.org)

- Anyone communicating on behalf of Heritage Foundation (heritage.org)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of Heritage Action for America (heritageaction.com)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of Public Interest Legal Foundation (publicinterestlegal.org)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of American Civil Rights Union (theacru.org)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of True The Vote (truethevote.org)

American Oversight believes that your office is the most likely location for the records it seeks. However, if other county boards, commissions, offices, departments, or divisions are likely to possess records responsive to this request, American Oversight asks that you forward this request to those boards, commissions, offices, departments, or divisions or promptly notify American Oversight so that it may submit this request directly to those boards, commissions, offices, departments, or divisions.

Please provide all responsive records from November 9, 2016, to the date the search is conducted.

American Oversight seeks all responsive records regardless of format, medium, or physical characteristics. In conducting your search, please understand the term "record" in its broadest sense, to include any written, typed, recorded, graphic, printed, or audio material of any kind. We seek records of any kind, including electronic records, audiotapes, videotapes, and photographs, as well as letters, emails, facsimiles, telephone messages, voice mail messages and transcripts, notes, or minutes of any meetings, telephone conversations or discussions. Our request includes any attachments to these records. No category of material should be omitted from search, collection, and production.

In addition, American Oversight insists that your office use the most up-to-date technologies to search for responsive information and take steps to ensure that the most complete repositories of information are searched. American Oversight is available to work with you to craft appropriate search terms. However, custodian searches are still required; governmental authorities may not have direct access to files stored in .PST files, outside of network drives, in paper format, or in personal email accounts.

Please search all records regarding official business, including files or emails in the personal custody of your officials, such as personal email accounts.

In the event some portions of the requested records are properly exempt from disclosure, please disclose any reasonably segregable non-exempt portions of the requested records. If it is your position that a document contains non-exempt segments, but that those non-exempt segments are so dispersed throughout the document as to make segregation impossible, please state what portion of the document is non-exempt, and how the material is dispersed throughout the document. If a request is denied in whole, please state specifically that it is not reasonable to segregate portions of the record for release.

Please take appropriate steps to ensure that records responsive to this request are not deleted by your office before the completion of processing for this request. If records potentially responsive to this request are likely to be located on systems where they are subject to potential deletion, including on a scheduled basis, please take steps to prevent that deletion, including, as appropriate, by instituting a litigation hold on those records.

To ensure that this request is properly construed, that searches are conducted in an adequate but efficient manner, and that extraneous costs are not incurred, American Oversight welcomes an opportunity to discuss its request with you before you undertake your search or incur search or duplication costs. By working together at the outset, American Oversight and the Department of State can decrease the likelihood of costly and time-consuming litigation in the future.

Where possible, please provide responsive material in electronic format by email or in PDF or TIF format on a USB drive. Please send any responsive material being sent by mail to American Oversight, 1030 15th Street NW, Suite B255, Washington, DC 20005. If it will accelerate release of responsive records to American Oversight, please also provide responsive material on a rolling basis.

Conclusion

We share a common mission to promote transparency in government. American Oversight looks forward to working with your office on this request. If you do not understand any part of this request, have any questions, or foresee any problems in fully releasing the requested records, please contact Beth France at foia@americanoversight.org or 202.897.2465...

Re: Public Records Request

Dear Public Records Officer:

Pursuant to the Florida's public records law, as codified at Fla. Stat. Chapter 119, American Oversight makes the following request for public records.

Requested Records

American Oversight requests that Leon County promptly produce the following:

All communications (including emails, email attachments, text messages, calendar invitations/entries, letters, memoranda, or other communications) between any county elections official and any of the individuals or entities listed below:

- Kris Kobach (including communications from kkobach@gmail.com, kris@kriskobach.com, or any email addresses ending in ks.gov)
- J. (John) Christian Adams
- Hans von Spakovsky
- John R. Lott Jr.
- Ken Block
- Donal Palmer
- Robert Popper
- Catherine Engelbrecht
- Christy McCormick (including communications with cacm@aol.com)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of the Election Law Center (electionlawcenter.com)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of the Government Accountability Institute (g-a-i.org)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of Simpatico Software Systems (simpaticosoftware.com)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of Judicial Watch (judicialwatch.org)

- Anyone communicating on behalf of Heritage Foundation (heritage.org)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of Heritage Action for America (heritageaction.com)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of Public Interest Legal Foundation (publicinterestlegal.org)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of American Civil Rights Union (theacru.org)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of True The Vote (truethevote.org)

American Oversight believes that your office is the most likely location for the records it seeks. However, if other county boards, commissions, offices, departments, or divisions are likely to possess records responsive to this request, American Oversight asks that you forward this request to those boards, commissions, offices, departments, or divisions or promptly notify American Oversight so that it may submit this request directly to those boards, commissions, offices, departments, or divisions.

Please provide all responsive records from November 9, 2016, to the date the search is conducted.

American Oversight seeks all responsive records regardless of format, medium, or physical characteristics. In conducting your search, please understand the term "record" in its broadest sense, to include any written, typed, recorded, graphic, printed, or audio material of any kind. We seek records of any kind, including electronic records, audiotapes, videotapes, and photographs, as well as letters, emails, facsimiles, telephone messages, voice mail messages and transcripts, notes, or minutes of any meetings, telephone conversations or discussions. Our request includes any attachments to these records. No category of material should be omitted from search, collection, and production.

In addition, American Oversight insists that your office use the most up-to-date technologies to search for responsive information and take steps to ensure that the most complete repositories of information are searched. American Oversight is available to work with you to craft appropriate search terms. However, custodian searches are still required; governmental authorities may not have direct access to files stored in .PST files, outside of network drives, in paper format, or in personal email accounts.

Please search all records regarding official business, including files or emails in the personal custody of your officials, such as personal email accounts.

In the event some portions of the requested records are properly exempt from disclosure, please disclose any reasonably segregable non-exempt portions of the requested records. If it is your position that a document contains non-exempt segments, but that those non-exempt segments are so dispersed throughout the document as to make segregation impossible, please state what portion of the document is non-exempt, and how the material is dispersed throughout the document. If a request is denied in whole, please state specifically that it is not reasonable to segregate portions of the record for release.

Please take appropriate steps to ensure that records responsive to this request are not deleted by your office before the completion of processing for this request. If records potentially responsive to this request are likely to be located on systems where they are subject to potential deletion, including on a scheduled basis, please take steps to prevent that deletion, including, as appropriate, by instituting a litigation hold on those records.

To ensure that this request is properly construed, that searches are conducted in an adequate but efficient manner, and that extraneous costs are not incurred, American Oversight welcomes an opportunity to discuss its request with you before you undertake your search or incur search or duplication costs. By working together at the outset, American Oversight and the Department of State can decrease the likelihood of costly and time-consuming litigation in the future.

Where possible, please provide responsive material in electronic format by email or in PDF or TIF format on a USB drive. Please send any responsive material being sent by mail to American Oversight, 1030 15th Street NW, Suite B255, Washington, DC 20005. If it will accelerate release of responsive records to American Oversight, please also provide responsive material on a rolling basis.

Conclusion

We share a common mission to promote transparency in government. American Oversight looks forward to working with your office on this request. If you do not understand any part of this request, have any questions, or foresee any problems in fully releasing the requested records, please contact Beth France at foia@americanoversight.org or 202.897.2465...

Re: Public Records Request

Dear Public Records Officer:

Pursuant to the Florida's public records law, as codified at Fla. Stat. Chapter 119, American Oversight makes the following request for public records.

Requested Records

American Oversight requests that Leon County promptly produce the following:

All communications (including emails, email attachments, text messages, calendar invitations/entries, letters, memoranda, or other communications) between any county elections official and any of the individuals or entities listed below:

- Kris Kobach (including communications from kkobach@gmail.com, kris@kris&kobach.com, or any email addresses ending in ks.gov)
- J. (John) Christian Adams
- Hans von Spakovsky
- John R. Lott Jr.
- Ken Block
- Donal Palmer
- Robert Popper
- Catherine Engelbrecht
- Christy McCormick (including communications with cacm@aol.com)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of the Election Law Center (electionlawcenter.com)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of the Government Accountability Institute (g-a-i.org)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of Simpatico Software Systems (simpaticosoftware.com)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of Judicial Watch (judicialwatch.org)

- Anyone communicating on behalf of Heritage Foundation (heritage.org)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of Heritage Action for America (heritageaction.com)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of Public Interest Legal Foundation (publicinterestlegal.org)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of American Civil Rights Union (theacru.org)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of True The Vote (truethevote.org)

American Oversight believes that your office is the most likely location for the records it seeks. However, if other county boards, commissions, offices, departments, or divisions are likely to possess records responsive to this request, American Oversight asks that you forward this request to those boards, commissions, offices, departments, or divisions or promptly notify American Oversight so that it may submit this request directly to those boards, commissions, offices, departments, or divisions.

Please provide all responsive records from November 9, 2016, to the date the search is conducted.

American Oversight seeks all responsive records regardless of format, medium, or physical characteristics. In conducting your search, please understand the term "record" in its broadest sense, to include any written, typed, recorded, graphic, printed, or audio material of any kind. We seek records of any kind, including electronic records, audiotapes, videotapes, and photographs, as well as letters, emails, facsimiles, telephone messages, voice mail messages and transcripts, notes, or minutes of any meetings, telephone conversations or discussions. Our request includes any attachments to these records. No category of material should be omitted from search, collection, and production.

In addition, American Oversight insists that your office use the most up-to-date technologies to search for responsive information and take steps to ensure that the most complete repositories of information are searched. American Oversight is available to work with you to craft appropriate search terms. However, custodian searches are still required; governmental authorities may not have direct access to files stored in .PST files, outside of network drives, in paper format, or in personal email accounts.

Please search all records regarding official business, including files or emails in the personal custody of your officials, such as personal email accounts.

In the event some portions of the requested records are properly exempt from disclosure, please disclose any reasonably segregable non-exempt portions of the requested records. If it is your position that a document contains non-exempt segments, but that those non-exempt segments are so dispersed throughout the document as to make segregation impossible, please state what portion of the document is non-exempt, and how the material is dispersed throughout the document. If a request is denied in whole, please state specifically that it is not reasonable to segregate portions of the record for release.

Please take appropriate steps to ensure that records responsive to this request are not deleted by your office before the completion of processing for this request. If records potentially responsive to this request are likely to be located on systems where they are subject to potential deletion, including on a scheduled basis, please take steps to prevent that deletion, including, as appropriate, by instituting a litigation hold on those records.

To ensure that this request is properly construed, that searches are conducted in an adequate but efficient manner, and that extraneous costs are not incurred, American Oversight welcomes an opportunity to discuss its request with you before you undertake your search or incur search or duplication costs. By working together at the outset, American Oversight and the Department of State can decrease the likelihood of costly and time-consuming litigation in the future.

Where possible, please provide responsive material in electronic format by email or in PDF or TIF format on a USB drive. Please send any responsive material being sent by mail to American Oversight, 1030 15th Street NW, Suite B255, Washington, DC 20005. If it will accelerate release of responsive records to American Oversight, please also provide responsive material on a rolling basis.

Conclusion

We share a common mission to promote transparency in government. American Oversight looks forward to working with your office on this request. If you do not understand any part of this request, have any questions, or foresee any problems in fully releasing the requested records, please contact Beth France at foia@americanoversight.org or 202.897.2465...

Sincerely,

Austin R. Evers Executive Director American Oversight

American Oversight believes that your office is the most likely location for the records it seeks. However, if other county boards, commissions, offices, departments, or divisions are likely to possess records responsive to this request, American Oversight asks that you forward this request to those boards, commissions, offices, departments, or divisions or promptly notify American Oversight so that it may submit this request directly to those boards, commissions, offices, departments, or divisions.

Please provide all responsive records from November 9, 2016, to the date the search is conducted.

American Oversight seeks all responsive records regardless of format, medium, or physical characteristics. In conducting your search, please understand the term "record" in its broadest sense, to include any written, typed, recorded, graphic, printed, or audio material of any kind. We seek records of any kind, including electronic records, audiotapes, videotapes, and photographs, as well as letters, emails, facsimiles, telephone messages, voice mail messages and transcripts, notes, or minutes of any meetings, telephone conversations or discussions. Our request includes any attachments to these records. No category of material should be omitted from search, collection, and production.

In addition, American Oversight insists that your office use the most up-to-date technologies to search for responsive information and take steps to ensure that the most complete repositories of information are searched. American Oversight is available to work with you to craft appropriate search terms. However, custodian searches are still required; governmental authorities may not have direct access to files stored in .PST files, outside of network drives, in paper format, or in personal email accounts.

Please search all records regarding official business, including files or emails in the personal custody of your officials, such as personal email accounts.

In the event some portions of the requested records are properly exempt from disclosure, please disclose any reasonably segregable non-exempt portions of the requested records. If it is your position that a document contains non-exempt segments, but that those non-exempt segments are so dispersed throughout the document as to make segregation impossible, please state what portion of the document is non-exempt, and how the material is dispersed throughout the document. If a request is denied in whole, please state specifically that it is not reasonable to segregate portions of the record for release.

Please take appropriate steps to ensure that records responsive to this request are not deleted by your office before the completion of processing for this request. If records potentially responsive to this request are likely to be located on systems where they are subject to potential deletion, including on a scheduled basis, please take steps to prevent that deletion, including, as appropriate, by instituting a litigation hold on those records.

To ensure that this request is properly construed, that searches are conducted in an adequate but efficient manner, and that extraneous costs are not incurred, American Oversight welcomes an opportunity to discuss its request with you before you undertake your search or incur search or duplication costs. By working together at the outset, American Oversight and the Department of State can decrease the likelihood of costly and time-consuming litigation in the future.

Where possible, please provide responsive material in electronic format by email or in PDF or TIF format on a USB drive. Please send any responsive material being sent by mail to American Oversight, 1030 15th Street NW, Suite B255, Washington, DC 20005. If it will accelerate release of responsive records to American Oversight, please also provide responsive material on a rolling basis.

Conclusion

We share a common mission to promote transparency in government. American Oversight looks forward to working with your office on this request. If you do not understand any part of this request, have any questions, or foresee any problems in fully releasing the requested records, please contact Beth France at foia@americanoversight.org or 202.897.2465...

American Oversight believes that your office is the most likely location for the records it seeks. However, if other county boards, commissions, offices, departments, or divisions are likely to possess records responsive to this request, American Oversight asks that you forward this request to those boards, commissions, offices, departments, or divisions or promptly notify American Oversight so that it may submit this request directly to those boards, commissions, offices, departments, or divisions.

Please provide all responsive records from November 9, 2016, to the date the search is conducted.

American Oversight seeks all responsive records regardless of format, medium, or physical characteristics. In conducting your search, please understand the term "record" in its broadest sense, to include any written, typed, recorded, graphic, printed, or audio material of any kind. We seek records of any kind, including electronic records, audiotapes, videotapes, and photographs, as well as letters, emails, facsimiles, telephone messages, voice mail messages and transcripts, notes, or minutes of any meetings, telephone conversations or discussions. Our request includes any attachments to these records. No category of material should be omitted from search, collection, and production.

In addition, American Oversight insists that your office use the most up-to-date technologies to search for responsive information and take steps to ensure that the most complete repositories of information are searched. American Oversight is available to work with you to craft appropriate search terms. However, custodian searches are still required; governmental authorities may not have direct access to files stored in .PST files, outside of network drives, in paper format, or in personal email accounts.

Please search all records regarding official business, including files or emails in the personal custody of your officials, such as personal email accounts.

In the event some portions of the requested records are properly exempt from disclosure, please disclose any reasonably segregable non-exempt portions of the requested records. If it is your position that a document contains non-exempt segments, but that those non-exempt segments are so dispersed throughout the document as to make segregation impossible, please state what portion of the document is non-exempt, and how the material is dispersed throughout the document. If a request is denied in whole, please state specifically that it is not reasonable to segregate portions of the record for release.

Please take appropriate steps to ensure that records responsive to this request are not deleted by your office before the completion of processing for this request. If records potentially responsive to this request are likely to be located on systems where they are subject to potential deletion, including on a scheduled basis, please take steps to prevent that deletion, including, as appropriate, by instituting a litigation hold on those records.

To ensure that this request is properly construed, that searches are conducted in an adequate but efficient manner, and that extraneous costs are not incurred, American Oversight welcomes an opportunity to discuss its request with you before you undertake your search or incur search or duplication costs. By working together at the outset, American Oversight and the Department of State can decrease the likelihood of costly and time-consuming litigation in the future.

Where possible, please provide responsive material in electronic format by email or in PDF or TIF format on a USB drive. Please send any responsive material being sent by mail to American Oversight, 1030 15th Street NW, Suite B255, Washington, DC 20005. If it will accelerate release of responsive records to American Oversight, please also provide responsive material on a rolling basis.

Conclusion

We share a common mission to promote transparency in government. American Oversight looks forward to working with your office on this request. If you do not understand any part of this request, have any questions, or foresee any problems in fully releasing the requested records, please contact Beth France at foia@americanoversight.org or 202.897.2465...

Sincerely,

Austin R. Evers Executive Director

Good Afternoon,

We are looking forward to welcoming you all to Denver for the 2019 MS-ISAC Annual Meeting this weekend! Please review the below details and logistics, as well as the attached documents, related to this event. Please feel free to reach out to AnnualMeeting@msisac.org with any questions in advance of the 2019 MS-ISAC Annual Meeting.

Attached Documents

· Final Agenda for 2019 MS-ISAC Annual Meeting

To: All Attendees of the 2019 MS-ISAC Annual Meeting

· Full Attendee List – Please note that this list is sensitive and confidential, as it contains all attendee names and contact information

Crowd Compass Event App Step-by-Step Download/Login Instructions

- 1. Download the app on your mobile device "CrowdCompass AttendeeHub"
- 2. Search for "2019 MS-ISAC Annual Meeting"
- 3. Enter the password "denvermsisac19"
- 4. Enter your first and last name and email address (when asked)
- 5. Enter the 4-digit verification code that will be sent to your email

Alternatively, feel free to access the Event URL to utilize the Online Version of the event: https://crowd.cc/2019msisacannual

CVENT Registration – Please register for the event if you have not already done so, as this will ensure that your on-site registration and name badge process goes smoothly

http://www.cvent.com/d/dbg587?ct=27366acd-9b74-4227-823a-fef14319d0ef

Member Service Review Room

Most members are barely scratching the surface when it comes to the ISAC services. Come visit with the ISAC Staff in the Member Service Review Room, a new benefit available at this year's Annual Meeting. This is your opportunity to sit down with our team to review what federally funded, no-cost services you are taking advantage of and to learn about new services. We can address any account changes or requests at that time as well. Sign-ups for 30 minute blocks will be available at Registration or find an ISAC staff member to assist you.

Sheraton Denver Downtown Hotel

1550 Court Place Denver, CO 80202

https://www.marriott.com/hotels/travel/dends-sheraton-denver-downtown-hotel/?scid=bb1a189a-fec3-4d19-a255-54ba596febe2

Travel to/from Denver Airport

The Denver Airport is about 30-35 minutes away from Downtown Denver, and listed below are recommended options for transportation to/from the airport for reference:

- Taxi
  - Cost: Approx. $55.00 one-way
  - Additional Information: https://www.flydenver.com/taxi
- Uber/Lyft
  - Cost: Approx. $35.00 one-way for Uber Pool according to https://www.uber.com/fare-estimate/

Denver Airport Rail

- o Cost: $10.50/person
- o Duration: Approx. 37 minutes (including several stops)
- Brings you from Denver Airport to Denver Union Station, located in Downtown Denver. You could then take a cab or Uber to the hotel
- Additional Information: https://www.denver.org/about-denver/transportation/airport-rail/

Denver Weather

It looks like we will have great weather while in Denver – Sunny/Partly Cloudy and in the low 60s to mid-70s for the duration of the event.

Please feel free to let us know if you have any questions regarding the 2019 MS-ISAC Annual Meeting. Thank you again and we will see everyone in a few days!

Best, Jessica

Good Afternoon,

We are looking forward to welcoming you all to Denver for the 2019 MS-ISAC Annual Meeting this weekend! Please review the below details and logistics, as well as the attached documents, related to this event. Please feel free to reach out to AnnualMeeting@msisac.org with any questions in advance of the 2019 MS-ISAC Annual Meeting.

Attached Documents

To: All Attendees of the 2019 MS-ISAC Annual Meeting

· Full Attendee List – Please note that this list is sensitive and confidential, as it contains all attendee names and contact information

Crowd Compass Event App Step-by-Step Download/Login Instructions

- 1. Download the app on your mobile device "CrowdCompass AttendeeHub"
- 2. Search for "2019 MS-ISAC Annual Meeting"
- 3. Enter the password "denvermsisac19"
- 4. Enter your first and last name and email address (when asked)
- 5. Enter the 4-digit verification code that will be sent to your email

Alternatively, feel free to access the Event URL to utilize the Online Version of the event: https://crowd.cc/2019msisacannual

CVENT Registration – Please register for the event if you have not already done so, as this will ensure that your on-site registration and name badge process goes smoothly

Member Service Review Room

Most members are barely scratching the surface when it comes to the ISAC services. Come visit with the ISAC Staff in the Member Service Review Room, a new benefit available at this year's Annual Meeting. This is your opportunity to sit down with our team to review what federally funded, no-cost services you are taking advantage of and to learn about new services. We can address any account changes or requests at that time as well. Sign-ups for 30 minute blocks will be available at Registration or find an ISAC staff member to assist you.

Sheraton Denver Downtown Hotel

Travel to/from Denver Airport

The Denver Airport is about 30-35 minutes away from Downtown Denver, and listed below are recommended options for transportation to/from the airport for reference:

- Taxi
  - Cost: Approx. $55.00 one-way
  - Additional Information: https://www.flydenver.com/taxi
- Uber/Lyft
  - Cost: Approx. $35.00 one-way for Uber Pool according to https://www.uber.com/fare-estimate/

Denver Airport Rail

- o Cost: $10.50/person
- o Duration: Approx. 37 minutes (including several stops)
- Brings you from Denver Airport to Denver Union Station, located in Downtown Denver. You could then take a cab or Uber to the hotel
- Additional Information: https://www.denver.org/about-denver/transportation/airport-rail/

Denver Weather

It looks like we will have great weather while in Denver – Sunny/Partly Cloudy and in the low 60s to mid-70s for the duration of the event

Please feel free to let us know if you have any questions regarding the 2019 MS-ISAC Annual Meeting. Thank you again and we will see everyone in a few days!

Best, Jessica

Re: Public Records Request

Dear Public Records Officer:

Pursuant to the Florida's public records law, as codified at Fla. Stat. Chapter 119, American Oversight makes the following request for public records.

Requested Records

American Oversight requests that Leon County promptly produce the following:

All communications (including emails, email attachments, text messages, calendar invitations/entries, letters, memoranda, or other communications) between any county elections official and any of the individuals or entities listed below:

- Kris Kobach (including communications from kkobach@gmail.com, kris@kriskobach.com, or any email addresses ending in ks.gov)
- J. (John) Christian Adams
- Hans von Spakovsky
- John R. Lott Jr.
- Ken Block
- Donal Palmer
- Robert Popper
- Catherine Engelbrecht
- Christy McCormick (including communications with cacm@aol.com)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of the Election Law Center (electionlawcenter.com)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of the Government Accountability Institute (g-a-i.org)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of Simpatico Software Systems (simpaticosoftware.com)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of Judicial Watch (judicialwatch.org)

- Anyone communicating on behalf of Heritage Foundation (heritage.org)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of Heritage Action for America (heritageaction.com)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of Public Interest Legal Foundation (publicinterestlegal.org)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of American Civil Rights Union (theacru.org)
- Anyone communicating on behalf of True The Vote (truethevote.org)

American Oversight believes that your office is the most likely location for the records it seeks. However, if other county boards, commissions, offices, departments, or divisions are likely to possess records responsive to this request, American Oversight asks that you forward this request to those boards, commissions, offices, departments, or divisions or promptly notify American Oversight so that it may submit this request directly to those boards, commissions, offices, departments, or divisions.

Please provide all responsive records from November 9, 2016, to the date the search is conducted.

American Oversight seeks all responsive records regardless of format, medium, or physical characteristics. In conducting your search, please understand the term "record" in its broadest sense, to include any written, typed, recorded, graphic, printed, or audio material of any kind. We seek records of any kind, including electronic records, audiotapes, videotapes, and photographs, as well as letters, emails, facsimiles, telephone messages, voice mail messages and transcripts, notes, or minutes of any meetings, telephone conversations or discussions. Our request includes any attachments to these records. No category of material should be omitted from search, collection, and production.

In addition, American Oversight insists that your office use the most up-to-date technologies to search for responsive information and take steps to ensure that the most complete repositories of information are searched. American Oversight is available to work with you to craft appropriate search terms. However, custodian searches are still required; governmental authorities may not have direct access to files stored in .PST files, outside of network drives, in paper format, or in personal email accounts.

Please search all records regarding official business, including files or emails in the personal custody of your officials, such as personal email accounts.

In the event some portions of the requested records are properly exempt from disclosure, please disclose any reasonably segregable non-exempt portions of the requested records. If it is your position that a document contains non-exempt segments, but that those non-exempt segments are so dispersed throughout the document as to make segregation impossible, please state what portion of the document is non-exempt, and how the material is dispersed throughout the document. If a request is denied in whole, please state specifically that it is not reasonable to segregate portions of the record for release.

Please take appropriate steps to ensure that records responsive to this request are not deleted by your office before the completion of processing for this request. If records potentially responsive to this request are likely to be located on systems where they are subject to potential deletion, including on a scheduled basis, please take steps to prevent that deletion, including, as appropriate, by instituting a litigation hold on those records.

To ensure that this request is properly construed, that searches are conducted in an adequate but efficient manner, and that extraneous costs are not incurred, American Oversight welcomes an opportunity to discuss its request with you before you undertake your search or incur search or duplication costs. By working together at the outset, American Oversight and the Department of State can decrease the likelihood of costly and time-consuming litigation in the future.

Where possible, please provide responsive material in electronic format by email or in PDF or TIF format on a USB drive. Please send any responsive material being sent by mail to American Oversight, 1030 15th Street NW, Suite B255, Washington, DC 20005. If it will accelerate release of responsive records to American Oversight, please also provide responsive material on a rolling basis.

Conclusion

We share a common mission to promote transparency in government. American Oversight looks forward to working with your office on this request. If you do not understand any part of this request, have any questions, or foresee any problems in fully releasing the requested records, please contact Beth France at foia@americanoversight.org or 202.897.2465...

Sincerely,

Austin R. Evers Executive Director American Oversight

Jon,

Let me know if these requests are becoming overwhelming. This is a new twist in our public requests.

Thanks,

TJ
